LAVAL, PETAIN CLASH AT FIRST COURT MEETING

Pro-German Radio Talk Is Cause

BY ROBERT SAGE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Aug. 3—A year after Vichy was erased from the political map of Europe its two principal figures—now both prisoners charged with treason—faced each other this afternoon in the packed and hushed courtroom of the Seine high court of justice.

For nearly four hours Pierre Laval, weak, emaciated, and shrunken at the age of 62, stood pleading earnestly that he had always acted for the interests of the republican France he loved, while Marshal Petain, plump, healthy, and well groomed at the age of 89, sat silently and impressively in an armchair a few feet away from him.

Pierre Laval, who still carries Paul Collette's bullet a half inch from his heart, looked like a ghost of his former self when he entered the courtroom with a felt hat and a worn brief case in his hand. The former chief of government had lost between 25 and 40 pounds and his slightly worn gray pin stripe suit coat hung loosely on his body.

Collar Too Big

The collar of his white sport shirt was two or three sizes too big for his shrunken neck and was gathered into large creases under a stringy white four-in-hand tie.

Neither Petain, the former Vichy chief of state, nor the man who was known as his "evil genius" showed any signs of recognizing each other until well on in the session when Laval caused laughter by slipping on Petain's age. As Laval excused himself he turned toward his old chief and for a second smiled affectionately at him.

Petain raised his right arm slightly as tho to say it was not important, but his expression remained unchanged.

The aged marshal furnished a dramatic end to the session, however, by suddenly breaking his aloof silence to express violent indignation at Laval's earlier intimation that his famous radio declaration, "I desire the victory of Germany," had been approved by Petain as a remark designed to fool the Nazis.

"Hit the Ceiling"

Speaking with all the force he could muster, the marshal declared that he had ordered Laval to cut the phrase from his speech, and that he had "hit the ceiling" when he had heard Laval say it over the radio a few hours later.

Laval earlier had gone to great length to explain the series of grave events which he said moved him to brave the country's rage by making public the statement that he desired to see Germany victor.

In March, 1942, before Laval returned to the Vichy government, he said that Hermann Goering called him to the Quai d'Orsay for an interview that was supposed to be strictly confidential. Advising him not to return to the government at that time because he had always been "an honest enemy," Goering, Laval said, launched into a violent attack on France, and said that he and Hitler had discovered the real feeling of the French toward Germany

War Criminal Trials Sept. 1 in Nuernberg

NUERNBERG, Germany, Aug. 3 (AP)—Justice Robert H. Jackson, chief United States counsel on the allied war crimes commission, will establish headquarters here Aug. 15 and trials of arch war criminals will begin in the Nuernberg courthouse on Sept. 1, a spokesman for the jurist said today.

The former German palace of justice on the boulevard connecting Nuernberg and Furth has been chosen as the place for the trials, it was announced. An advance party is now trying to obtain lodging for an estimated 800 persons who will be here for the hearings.

Troops Assigned

The 26th regiment of the veteran United States 1st army division has been assigned to provide a security guard for the area.

German laborers already have started remodeling the courthouse, which was damaged by bombing and shelling before Nuernberg was captured April 20.

Major war criminals such as Hermann Goering and Joachim von Ribbentrop will be held in the Nuernberg municipal jail during the trials, which are expected to last several weeks.

Agreement Assured

LONDON, Aug. 3 (AP)—A four power agreement within a matter of days on a plan for mass trial of Germany's arch war criminals virtually was assured tonight.

From an American source close to Justice Robert H. Jackson, chief United States war crimes prosecutor, it was learned that representatives of Britain, France, Russia, and the United States have stepped up their procedure and that the draft of the trial plan likely would be completed Monday or Tuesday.

Jackson had demanded that the United States would insist upon more action and fewer arguments or would go ahead with its own trial of war criminals. Most of the major Nazis are in custody of American forces.

Two steps remain before plans are announced for the trial. The first centers around translation of legal phrases into four languages. The other depends upon the outcome of the still pending argument over the definition of "aggressive war," which Jackson insists shall be made the basis of the general indictment.

May Replace Briton

The American source said today it was expected these differences would be overcome within a few days, paving the way for the next three steps. They will be:

Formation of a court;

Appointment of prosecutors by France and Russia and a decision by Britain on whether it wishes to retain or replace David Maxwell Fyfe, attorney general under the Churchill government, who was assigned the prosecutor's job, and,

Determination of just how many top ranking Nazis will be tried together.

OPA Refuses Vet a Stove; Gone Too Long

Timken, Kas., Aug. 3 [Special]—An office of price administration regulation called "silly" by Gov. Andrew Schoeppel was disclosed today to have been invoked to deny a returned soldier permission to buy a new oil stove because he hasn't been around these parts lately to establish himself as an oil user.

For the last three and a half years Corp. Norville Sanders, 30, has been in the army, with 26 months' service overseas. Discharged recently with three battle stars and the good conduct medal, he returned to his farm home and applied for a stove. But an OPA certificate was refused because he had not been using oil for fuel for the last six months. During his absence his wife lived with her parents on a farm near Bison, Kas.

Gov. Schoeppel notified of the case, at first refused to believe it. He telephoned from Topeka to District OPA Director H. O. Davis in Wichita and was informed such a regulation did exist.

The Rules Are Cited

"I asked him why a service man returning from the war who did not have an opportunity to use a stove within six months—or within three and a half years as this young man did—would not be entitled to a certificate for a stove," the governor said. The OPA official then cited the regulations.

Information concerning the case was conveyed to the governor in a telegram from O. A. Schuetz, manager of the Timken Lumber company. Schuetz disclosed that three weeks before Sanders was discharged he had written to the lumber company in his home town asking the manager to obtain an oil stove for him.

Certificate Refused

The stove was obtained, Schuetz said, and when Sanders was released from the army he went to his local ration office in La Crosse, seat of Rush county, and asked for the required certificate. He was informed that because he had not been a fuel user he was not eligible to buy a new stove and was advised to try to buy a second hand one.

Gov. Schoppel said that upon his suggestion OPA Director Davis said he would consider taking up the matter with his superiors in Washington, D. C., to get the regulation changed.

Corp. Sanders said today he is eager to begin housekeeping with his wife and 2 year old child, born during his absence, but he needs a stove for cooking.

200,451 YANKS WILL SAIL FOR HOME FROM EUROPE THIS MONTH

PARIS, Aug. 3 (AP)—The United States army announced today that 200,451 American officers and enlisted men, including 35,000 potential dischargees with high point scores, are scheduled for redeployment to the United States this month. In July, 265,000 men were sent home.

Headquarters attributed the reduction in the total to the stepup in the time table of the Pacific war and diversion of shipping to ports carrying troops directly to the Pacific. The number of dischargees to be shipped home in August is approximately the same as for July.

Shipping restrictions have cut most heavily into the redeployment of infantry units to the Pacific via the United States. The August schedule calls for such a redeployment of only 46,302, compared with 102,000 in July.

TEXAS SURVIVOR OF DEATH MARCH ON BATAAN DIES

Fort Worth, Tex., Aug. 3 (AP)—Corp. James E. Newman, 25, survivor of the Bataan death march, who was suffering from tuberculosis of the throat, lungs, and stomach, died today in his home here.

James E. Newman

For Newman it was the end of a tough fight for life that started when the Japs captured him at Bataan. He got thru three years of Japanese imprisonment in the Philippines, altho he endured hopeless starvation and flesh melted from his body.

Doctors at army hospitals told him his case was hopeless. He asked to go home—back to the cottage he had left seven years before. That was where he wanted to make a final fight for life.

"He died from sheer exhaustion," his doctor said.

Woman Faints in Front of Train; Safe by 2 Feet

While walking on the Illinois Central station platform at 71st st. and Jeffery av., Mrs. Elizabeth Ryan, 64, of 2046 E. 73d st., last night fainted and fell in front of a train from which she had just alighted. At the same second Engineer Charles Smith, 39, of 7743 Langley av., started the train. He stopped it two feet from Mrs. Ryan who lay across a rail. Her head was cut in the fall.

3 Little Swans Go to Graves Without Song

Cleveland, O., Aug. 3 (AP)—There were no swan songs for Eva and Anthony's three cygnets.

In a silent, sorrowful ceremony last night, three stillborn swans were carried by their mother to watery graves without the last song which mythically precedes death of the birds.

Since Eva's nesting period began over six weeks ago, thousands of Clevelanders visiting the gardens of the museum of art hopefully awaited hatching of her four eggs.

Eggs Fail to Hatch

When one unfertile egg broke last week and the remaining failed to hatch at the end of the normal 42 day incubation period, museum attendants gave up hope.

Last night Eva, too, tired of her vigil. Slowly and deliberately she broke the gray-green and brown speckled eggs, revealing three lifeless bodies.

Each Body Buried

Then, as Anthony watched motionlessly from the edge of the lake, Eva silently took one of the bodies in her beak and swam to the center of the lake, where she dived to bury the swan. In a moment she came to the surface and returned to the nest to conduct a similar ritual for the other two birds.

When her solemn work was completed, Eva called to Anthony, who swam quickly to her. Together the swans swam back to the empty nest.

Joseph Krynak, assistant superintendent of the museum, and his wife, who were walking in the gardens, observed the incident.

SHOE RATIONING MAY END SOON DESPITE WAR

Washington, D. C., Aug. 3 [Special]—Shoe rationing may end early next year or sooner if the war ends in the meantime, a war production board official forecast today.

The official, who would not permit use of his name, said "shoe rationing will go out the window shortly after V-J day," and there were "very good" prospects of ending it early in 1946 even if the war still is going on.

L. E. Langston, executive vice president of the National Shoe Retailers' association, said earlier in New York City that a feeling among shoemakers that rationing may end by the first of 1946 seemed justified by WPB estimates and the increase of supplies in sight for civilian shoes.

Foe Hits Okinawa; Freighter Sunk in Gulf Near Tokyo

GUAM, Aug. 4 [Saturday]—(AP)—The Japanese have sunk one light American vessel and damaged another in air attacks on Okinawa. Adm. Nimitz announced today that the loss occurred on July 29, the first time in 10 days that the enemy has made any offensive gesture at Okinawa.

Nimitz's brief bulletin gave no details. The designation of light units usually includes vessels up to the size of light cruisers. While he did not say whether the attack was by suicide planes, that has been the enemy's general method in recent months.

Sink Jap Freighter

While unfavorable weather forced cancellation of air attacks on Japan, the 20th air force announced that Super Fortresses have plugged every major Japanese harbor with mines, completing the strangulation ring. Nimitz announced land based American naval planes yesterday sank a 700 ton Japanese freighter in Sagami gulf southwest of Tokyo.

The naval planes were attacked by five enemy fighters and five reconnaissance bombers, but shot down two of the reconnaissance planes and damaged one fighter without damage to themselves.

The 20th air force announced that the Super Forts had mined all important harbors of Japan and Korea to within 21 miles of Russia. It said only "shadow" shipping could move now. Japan's flow of food and war supplies was said to be cut to less than half of the country's needs.

Tokyo Area Attacked

Tokyo reported 100 American fighters and a few B-29s attacked the Tokyo area for an hour and a half Friday.

B-29s of Brig. Gen. John H. Davies' 313th bombardment wing have been busy with the mine-laying operations during the last four months. They extended the missions to the most distant harbors in recent weeks, while other Super Forts and Adm. Halsey's 3d fleet were burning and blasting Japan.

Mustangs Strafe Tokyo

Ninety-seven army Mustangs from Iwo strafed targets in the Tokyo area yesterday and shot down two of the 10 Japanese fighters that rose to meet them. They damaged another interceptor and destroyed eight and damaged six grounded enemy planes, the United States strategic air forces announced. Six of the Mustangs were lost, but one pilot was rescued.

From an American carrier, a dispatch told of marine flyers in training "for their assigned mission—sky support for troops landing on Japan."

In a censor delayed account, the dispatch disclosed that a new marine air group, "The Beachbusters," already had used Japanese held Pagan in the northern Marianas, boring thru anti-aircraft fire, to practice for the future invasion of Japan.

G I Joe in the Pacific

By ARTHUR VEYSEY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

CAMP O'DONNELL, Luzon, P. I., Aug. 3—Maj. Silas Moore of the army engineers brushed aside six foot high grass which now, in the wet season, covers the top of a knoll 80 miles north of Manila on the edge of the Luzon plain.

He came into a clearing where some one had whacked down the grass. In the center of this clearing, probably 20 feet square, rose a dirty, white concrete cross. "In memory of American dead, 1942, O'Donnell war personnel enclosure. Erected by Japanese imperial army," the inscription said.

All around were mounds of community graves. Some mounds were partly dug away. One could not tell whether those portions of the graves had never been filled in or if ghouls had been at work.

In the grass lay the remnants of crude wooden crosses that some of the 1,800 Americans who died here in six months of 1942 fashioned in their final days.

Few Crosses Still Upright

A few crosses were still upright. At the base of one lay a battered canteen. A little distance away was part of an army mess kit. The mounds, the crosses, the canteen, and the mess kit scrap were the only surface signs that 8,000 Americans spent horrible months here.

Moore was puzzled. "Surely this is not the American cemetery," he said. "My brother is buried here somewhere. Row six, section M, the war department said. His name was John. He was a lieutenant who was on Bataan. The Japs marched him here. That march of death, remember? He died here. He's buried here somewhere."

No flag flies here. No white crosses stand row by row. There is no neat lawn, not even poppies. The wild grass grows rank atop the knoll. On the sides where the water runs off swiftly even the grass gives out.

On an adjoining knoll tents rise where once stood the headquarters building of Camp O'Donnell and the Japanese barracks that was technically a hospital but was known as the "zero ward." There Americans were put to lie in the filth of disease and injury until they died. The buildings were burned last February. The present tents house some of the infantry who are using the former prison camp as part of a training ground for future campaigns.

Bodies to Be Moved

Within the next few days men from the army graves registration section will start removing the bodies from beneath the Jap cross to the new American army cemetery at Santa Barbara, near Lingayen gulf. For the last six months the men have been attempting to gather data on the graves. Charts will be made of teeth and sent to Washington, D. C., to check their identity.

When the last of the bodies of the men from Bataan are moved to Santa Barbara, to rest with those whose lives were lost in redeeming Bataan and erasing Camp O'Donnell, the dirty gray cross the Japs raised in mockery will be destroyed.

Pacific Command Shifts Discussed by Leaders

EDITORIAL ANNOUNCEMENT

When the Potsdam agreement was received, three editorial writers were asked to study it and express their views upon the instrument. They were quite similar in purport, tho couched in different terms. The TRIBUNE presents them all, as its views. They appear on today's editorial page.

ABOARD U. S. S. AUGUSTA WITH PRESIDENT TRUMAN, Aug. 3 (AP)—Powerful new blows to speed complete defeat of Japan and liberation of the Japanese held territories were planned by the British-American high commands at the Potsdam Big Three conference, it was disclosed officially today.

At the same time, President Truman told reporters aboard this homeward bound cruiser that he made "no secret agreements of any kind" in the meeting with Generalissimo Stalin and Prime Minister Attlee. The President is preparing a radio report which he will make to the people of the United States soon after his return to Washington, D. C., next week.

Joint Announcement

Disclosure of the military talks was made jointly aboard the Augusta and in London where Prime Minister Attlee has already returned. Russia did not participate in this announcement since Russia is not a party to the war against Japan.

The President and prime minister, their statement said, approved various undisclosed proposals made by British and American chiefs of staff. The military leaders discussed a "reallocation of areas and commands in the Southwest Pacific and southeast Asia areas and consideration was given to employment in the war against Japan of forces of the other allied nations that are at war with Japan."

[In Washington, D. C., it is expected that Adm. Mountbatten, British commander in southeast Asia, will be given a greatly enlarged command area embracing the bulk of the territory over which Gen. MacArthur originally had control. That is the area of the Southwest Pacific which includes Australia, the Solomon Islands, and the Dutch East Indies. It will give the British leader the task of liberating the Indies, the Malay states, and Singapore. Washington also expects that the troops of other nations at war with Japan, particularly Dutch troops, will be used when and where they can in these liberation battles.]

Text of Report

"During the Berlin conference," the text of the report said, "the American and British chiefs of staff held daily meetings to perfect details of the coördination of British and American forces in accomplishing a total defeat of the Japanese military and naval forces, the unconditional surrender of Japan at the earliest possible date and the liberation of Japanese occupied territory.

"The British will bring to bear against Japan all of their naval, land and air forces which can be advantageously used.

"There was a discussion of a reallocation of areas and commands in the southwest Pacific and southeast Asia areas, and consideration was given to the employment in the war against Japan of forces of the other allied nations that are at war with Japan. The proposals of the combined chiefs of staff were approved by the President and the prime minister."

[These disclosures rounded out public information on the Potsdam talks, on which the first report, dealing almost exclusively with political decisions affecting Europe, was made Thursday. That bulletin, released jointly by the President, the prime minister, and Generalissimo Stalin,

U. S. Carriers Lose Only 97 Men

GUAM, Aug. 3 (AP)—Low losses constitute one of the reasons Adm. Halsey's 3d fleet has been able to remain in Japanese home waters so long—24 days, assuming it still is there—and to hit the enemy again and again, both from the air with more than 1,000 carrier planes and from the sea with seven naval bombardments.

Adm. Nimitz's bulletins for the period July 10 thru July 30 have reported only 116 American planes and 13 British craft lost in many thousands of sorties.

Nimitz reported only 97 American pilots and air crewmen and three British airmen lost in the same period.

Here are Adm. Nimitz's figures:

Date Target	Planes	Air-men	Planes	Air-men
July 10—Tokyo	10	13	..	..
July 14-15—Honshu-Hokkaido	24	18	..	..
July 18—Tokyo	13	22	3	..
July 24—Inland sea	33	36	..	..
July 28—Inland sea	37	..	8	..
July 30—Tokyo-Nagoya-Maizuru	11	11	2	2
Totals	116	97	13	2

Marianas based B-29s have flown 27,000 sorties over Japan with a loss of only .0055 per cent, headquarters reported.

Altogether, 149 Super Forts and 1,639 crewmen have been lost to enemy action since the first attack on Tokyo last Thanksgiving day.

said of military questions only that they were discussed. Whether they concerned possible Russian participation in the Pacific-Asiatic war was not divulged.]

Confers with Rosenman

Those coming home with the President on the Augusta include Secretary of State Byrnes and Samuel I. Rosenman, special counsel to the President.

Mr. Truman has been spending some of his time with Rosenman and other advisers on official business and also has surveyed public reaction to the Big Three statement.

He keeps in very close touch with the White House and with developments in the Pacific war.

The President told reporters that he has intended all along for the American people to be fully informed on agreements worked out at his first Big Three meeting and it was in this connection that he gave assurances that "there are no secret agreements of any kind" in the decisions reached.

President's Proposals

The President is represented as having gone into the Potsdam conference with a series of proposals for which he sought British and Russian acceptance. Among these the establishment of a council of foreign ministers to write a peace for Europe was a primary objective. There is some talk that the work of this council, which is designed to deal quickly with political problems as they arise, may eliminate need for future Big Three meetings.

The council will have its first session in London by September 1. It is to be composed of the foreign ministers of the United States, Britain, Russia, China, and France, assuming the last two agree to join as the Big Three invited them to do.

Truman Advisers in London

LONDON, Aug. 3 (AP)—Three top ranking advisers of President Truman at Potsdam—W. Averell Harriman, Joseph E. Davies, and William L. Clayton—reached here today.

Harriman, United States ambassador to Russia, is planning to return to Moscow tomorrow by way of Sweden. Davies, special representative of Mr. Truman in London, will return to the United States within a few days. Clayton is here as head of the united nations relief and rehabilitation administration delegation from the United States. He will confer later with the British on economic policies between the two countries.

Secretary of Navy Forrestal arrived here last night. It was presumed his visit related to conference with British naval chiefs on prosecution of the war in the Pacific.

MEAD PROPOSES AIR 'WEST POINTS' —JUST IN CASE

Washington, D. C., Aug. 3 (AP)—A half dozen "West Points of the Air" were proposed today by Sen. Mead [D., N. Y.] to maintain American air power at high strength after the war.

Mead, chairman of the senate's war investigation committee, told a reporter: "We were not ready for this war. We must not be caught short again."

At the same time Sen. Taft [R., O.] proposed a naval officer graduate training school on the west coast. He said he would write to Navy Secretary Forrestal advancing this suggestion as an alternative to proposed expansion of the naval academy at Annapolis, Md. Taft said he had in mind a west coast school which would give advanced technical instruction beyond that of the present naval academy.

U. S. RETURNS TREASURE LOOT TO SELASSIE

ADDIS ABABA, July 31 [Delayed] (AP)—The United States government formally presented to Emperor Haile Selassie today a large cache of silverware, royal robes, and other articles stolen from the Ethiopian royal palace during the Italian occupation.

The royal treasure was retrieved by operatives of Maj. Gen. William J. Donovan's United States strategic services in northern Italy during a final roundup of leading Fascists and their loot.

The cargo, weighing more than 800 pounds and consisting of 350 items, was flown from Cairo in a special plane. It was presented officially to the emperor by J. K. Caldwell, American minister to Ethiopia.

BRITISH PUBLISH BERLIN PAPER IN GERMAN TONGUE

BERLIN, Aug. 3 [Reuters]—Berliners saw the first British controled German language newspaper for the German capital when Der Berliner appeared on the streets yesterday. Like the four Russian controled daily newspapers, it has four pages. At present it will appear only three times a week, Maj. Gen. Lewis O. Lyne, commander of the British sector of Berlin, in a message published in today's issue, said the aim of the newspaper was to "publish news out of the whole world and Berlin comprehensively and as factually as possible. News and comment will be kept separate so that the reader may form his own judgment."

Boulahanis Gets 14 Years in Mike Dooman Murder

Peter Boulahanis, 28, was sentenced yesterday to 14 years in prison for the murder of Mike Dooman, 37, in a tavern at 938 Belmont av., last New Year's day. Punishment was set by a jury in the Criminal court of Judge Frank M. Padden.

POTSDAM SNUBS WILSON TENETS, WHEELER HOLDS

BY ARTHUR EVANS

The Potsdam conference made it apparent that the peace treaty is to be a piecemeal job, with Woodrow Wilson's idea of "open covenants openly arrived at" tossed out the window, Sen. Wheeler [D., Mont.] said in Chicago yesterday. He spent the day at the Morrison hotel en route from Washington, D. C., to his home state.

"Never before in the history of the world," he continued, "have three powers met in secret and sought to carve up Europe without any of the small countries, allies or enemies, being consulted about their future.

"Americans who looked aghast at the treaty of Versailles are going to think it was child's play compared with the Potsdam decisions and the effect they are going to have on the whole of Europe."

Russia Unwilling to Help

He emphasized the failure of the conference to bring Russia into the war against Japan, adding:

"The American people were hoping that out of the conference, because of all the aid we have given Russia, she would agree to declare war on Japan, help bring the war in the orient to an end, and thereby save the lives of thousands and thousands of American boys. Russia has got everything it wanted from the United States, but apparently is unwilling to give anything in return."

Recently returned from a tour of Europe with a group of other senators, Sen. Wheeler expressed the view that the continent appears headed for communism.

Predicts Red Europe

"I do not feel the Potsdam announcement sets a pattern for peace in Europe," he said, "I think all of Europe is likely to go communist. I found a prevailing belief that Italy, France, Germany, and other countries will go communist when we take our troops out. This may not mean the same kind of communism as in Russia, but I feel sure it is going to happen.

"Europe for ages has had a distinct European civilization. It is now going to have a civilization under Russian-Asiatic domination. While they talk of free elections, you're not going to have free elections in Poland, Czechoslovakia, Jugoslavia, and other countries. You're going to find communist dominated elections without any free speech, free press, or free radio, or opportunity to discuss the difference between a dictatorship of the proletariat and democracy."

Yalta Curb on Truman

The senator indicated a belief that President Truman found his hands tied at Potsdam by the Yalta agreements.

"Possibly he could not have done better because of the Yalta and Tehran agreements," the senator said, "but no one who knows anything about Europe can feel that the Potsdam announcement means a peaceful settlement of Europe's problems. Nor does it mean carrying out the Atlantic charter and the four freedoms. It does not mean freedom of speech, or freedom from want, or fear, for never has there been so much fear by the people of Europe as now.

"In the first World war we were 'fighting for democracy,' but after the war, there were more dictators in Europe than before. Now, after this war, there will be less democracy in Europe than after the last war.

Predictions Come True

"I was assailed for predictions I made prior to our entry into the war that we would have a debt of 300 billion dollars, that Europe would go communist, and would have starvation, chaos, and revolution. It's all of that now.

"Are we in the United States going to send Americans to Europe to maintain what is agreed to at Potsdam? Are we going to send our boys over to keep the people of Poland, Bulgaria, Lithuania, Romania, and other countries under the absolute control of Russia?

"The only thing to prevent future wars is a United States of Europe, undominated by England, Russia, or the United States."

TWO GERMANS TO HANG FOR KILLING FLYERS

MUNICH, Germany, Aug. 3 (AP)—Two German civilians were sentenced to be hanged by a United States 3d army military commission today for the mob slaying of two allied flyers near Frankfurt on the Main, Aug. 29, 1944.

Nikolaus Fachinger, 40, father of eight children, former police chief of Gross Gerau, and Heindrich Flauaus, a resident of the village, were sentenced at a trial attended by 40 German civilians.

The victims of the attack were not identified, but were believed to have been Americans. They were beaten to death with iron bars. Flauaus confessed and implicated Fachinger.

City of Rockford Is Placed Off Limits for Camp Grant

Rockford, Ill., Aug. 3 (AP)—The army today declared the city of Rockford "off limits" for permanent and transient personnel of near-by Camp Grant except those officers and men whose families live in Rockford, because of infantile paralysis in the city. The order by Maj. Gen. David McCoach Jr., Chicago, commanding the 6th service command, was on recommendation of the command's surgeon after consultation with the Camp Grant commander and medical officers.

Battleship Strasbourg Again Floated at Toulon

PARIS, Aug. 3 [Reuters]—The 26,000 ton French battleship Strasbourg, scuttled with the French fleet in Toulon in November, 1942, has been refloated and is being refitted there, the French Press agency reported.

4,166,000 MOVED TO HOMES FROM WESTERN EUROPE

FRANKFURT-ON-MAIN, Germany, Aug. 3 (AP)—Nearly 65 per cent of all displaced persons in western Europe have been restored to their homelands in perhaps the greatest mass repatriation in history, United States army statistics disclosed today.

This means that 4,166,000 persons representing 17 European nationalities have been cleared from the ruined cities and highways of the American, British and French occupation zones, leaving 2,174,182 still to be reclaimed.

Of these the Polish group, with 899,950 still living in camps thruout the three zones, is the largest. Most are fearful of the future and would refuse repatriation, if possible, because of the continuous diet of anti-Russian propaganda fed them by the Germans thruout the war.

VET KILLED PWs IN LINE OF DUTY, INSPECTOR SAYS

Colorado Springs, Colo., Aug. 3 (AP)—Harold W. Garland, 23, wounded overseas veteran of Columbus, Ind., acted in the line of duty when he shot and killed three German prisoners of war in a potato field last Wednesday, Lt. Col. Peter A. Fredericksen, Camp Carson inspector, said tonight.

Garland fired when the three men tried to escape, Camp Carson officials said.

Garland is not confined but is under technical arrest in the prisoner of war area pending the outcome of the case. He will be tried on a murder charge under the 96th article of war, as is customary in such cases in order to protect him from future jeopardy.

'PURPLE HEART KID,' HIT FIVE TIMES, FIGHTS ON

WITH 11TH AIR BORNE DIVISION, Luzon, Aug. 3 (AP)—Wounded on five occasions in the battle for Luzon, Corp. Archie Miller, 21, Portsmouth, O., has won the nickname "the purple heart kid."

He has been hit twice by mortar fragments, once by grenade splinters and twice by rifle bullets. He suffered wounds in the head, neck, shoulder, hand, jaw, and leg. Once, only two days after he had been wounded in the hand, a Japanese bullet struck his rifle, drove a splinter from the stock into his forehead, and penetrated his leg. That put him in a hospital 19 days.

The last time he was wounded a bullet hit his helmet and lacerated his scalp.

REDS JUBILANT OVER GAINS IN EAST PRUSSIA

MOSCOW, Aug. 3 (AP)—The Russian people, press and radio today enthusiastically hailed the Big Three's decisions at Potsdam, including the agreement in principle to place the ice-free port of Koenigsberg and roughly 5,400 additional square miles of East Prussia in Soviet hands.

The army newspaper Red Star declared that the East Prussian capital for centuries "was an important springboard of Prussian-German aggression against Slavonic peoples."

The full text of the Potsdam bulletin was read twice over the Soviet home radio. There was not a single note of criticism in any of the editorials or broadcasts on the conference.

Izvestia said the Potsdam conference "offers new assurance that the government and peoples of the three great democratic powers, together with the other united nations, will provide the creation of a just and lasting peace."

London Enthusiastic

LONDON, Aug. 3 (AP)—Diplomatic observers agreed today that the Potsdam declaration displayed a toughness with Germany sufficient to assure the world that it would be a long time before that nation again could threaten universal peace. The London press chorused approval of the Potsdam decisions.

France Hails Step for Peace

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Aug. 3—Foreign office circles today said the Potsdam declaration marks a step forward in re-establishment of lasting peace. The Quai D'Orsay seemed particularly pleased by France's membership on the new five power council of foreign ministers, for this body is expected to have a large part in re-organizing Europe and dealing with other problems referred to it by interested governments.

Official circles consider that France has regained her status as a world power by her admission to the council and her participation in the occupation of Germany and Austria and the control of Berlin.

[France has been invited to participate in the big power conferences on reparations, another dispatch said.]

Austria Weighs Stand

VIENNA, Austria, Aug. 3 (AP)—Cabinet officers of the government of Dr. Karl Renner were said tonight to be rewriting an official statement on the Big Three's treatment of demands for extended authority. Government sources indicated that Renner expected more favorable consideration than the promise from Potsdam that the Austrian question would be "examined."

Spain Told of Ban

MADRID, Spain, Aug. 3 (AP)—The Spanish government today authorized the press to report that "Spain was excluded" from the Big Three's Potsdam invitations to neutral countries to join the united nations.

Two of Madrid's four evening papers published the text of the Potsdam bulletin—except for the section dealing with Spain. Both papers paraphrased this section, saying that the bulletin "then refers to Spain and says that the three governments will not support any request for membership in the united nations from the aforementioned country."

Thus Spaniards learned that Spain had been excluded from membership, but did not learn why. Neither the press nor radio mentioned the Big Three's statement that the Franco regime had been "founded with axis support" and had had "close association with aggressor states."

Owners of tens of thousands of radio sets in Spain heard these statements, however, in foreign broadcasts.

Italy Disappointed

ROME, Aug. 3 (AP)—Italians, fearing their pre-war continental territory will shrink when the final decisions of the Big Three affecting the future of Europe are announced, seemed today to be foredoomed to disappointment by the Potsdam declaration, however cheerful officials might try to appear.

Germans Still in Dark

BERLIN, Aug. 3 (AP)—The German public will be kept in ignorance of the Big Three Potsdam decisions, at least as far as any official announcement is concerned, until Saturday morning, when Berlin newspapers will publish the text.

GERMANS EAGER TO ESCAPE INTO AMERICAN ZONE

Expect It to Become a U. S. Colony

BY HENRY WALES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BERLIN, Aug. 3—Most of the Germans who talked today about the Big Three decisions were still too dazed from the emancipation from bombing and shelling and too weak from undernourishment and dysentery to evince any real reaction.

"Alles kaput" [everything is done for], they shrug, and ask for a cigaret or a bit of chocolate.

But most of them formed an identical determination — to abandon everything they may possess and try to wangle their way into the American or British areas of occupation. Most Germans expect the military occupation will continue thruout their lifetime, and they believe conditions will be easier under the higher living standards of the Yanks and the Britishers.

"American Colony"

A former school principal is actually happy over the prospect. "It means the part of Germany occupied by the Americans will become practically a part of the United States," he said. "Over a term of years the Americans will naturally establish American customs and methods of conveniences and will teach us Germans the American way of life.

"The United States zone will be like an American colony in the heart of old Europe, and certainly better living conditions which will thrive there will give the Germans a palpable illustration of what to aim for in the entire fatherland if it ever becomes a sovereign state again."

Expect Rigid Controls

It was expected that the situation will result in the Red army establishing rigid controls for passage from the Russian zone into the others to prevent the mass of the civilian population draining into adjacent zones. Passes already are necessary for the Germans to enter or depart from the Russian area, but they have not been strictly enforced.

American and British officials point out that they cannot permit any mass displacement of the population out of the area controled by the Russians and that they intend to prohibit movement of refugees.

MOSCOW RADIO BEAMS BIG THREE TEXT TO JAPAN

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS]

The Moscow radio yesterday began a Japanese language broadcast to Japan of the text of the Big Three's Potsdam statement relating to control of Germany.

The broadcast, reported by the FCC, began with a summary, in which it did not mention that the statement omitted any reference to Japan. This was followed by a reading of several paragraphs of the text dealing with the treatment of Germany.

The announcer then said "the reading of other articles will be continued in later broadcasts."

FRANCE URGED TO BACK EXILES AGAINST FRANCO

PARIS, Aug. 3 (AP)—The foreign affairs committee of the French consultative assembly adopted a new resolution today demanding that the French government break diplomatic relations with the Spanish government of Generalissimo Franco. The resolution asked that the French enter into an accord with the Big Three "to take measures destined to support the republican government" for Spain being formed in Mexico. A group of Spanish Republicans have been attempting to set up a governmnet in exile in Mexico.

STORM BREWING IN SENATE OVER PEACE TREATIES

BY WALTER TROHAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 3—Storm signals were hoisted in the senate today for the passage of the peace treaties with Italy, Romania, Bulgaria, Hungary, and Finland as proposed in the Stalin-Truman-Attlee declaration on the Potsdam conference.

While there was general approval among senators of the rigorous treatment accorded Germany, the declaration came under criticism as sowing the seeds for the next World war, as approving Russian domination of Europe, and for leaving major world questions unanswered.

3 Unanswered Questions

The principal unanswered questions, according to congressional circles, are:

1. Will Russia make war on Japan?
2. What is to be done about the Dardanelles and the Kars plateau in Turkey?
3. How are the Big Three going to conduct promised elections?

The blast of criticism, largely from Republican ranks, indicated that any treaties which are to be prepared by the council of foreign ministers, established under the agreement, will have tough sailing in the senate. The critical fire outweighed pious hopes voiced by internationalist Democrats that the agreement was a step in the right direction.

Plead for More Time

Many senators were silent, pleading for more time to study the 6,000 word statement on the Potsdam deliberations. Among these were Senators Vandenberg [R., Mich.], and Burton [R., O.], both of whom will come up for reelection in 1946 to test their support of Roosevelt foreign policy.

Sen. Taft [R., O.], warned again that the declaration "sows the seeds of future war" in giving Poland, Russia's newest satellite, eastern Germany and part of East Prussia by way of recompense for soviet seizure of the eastern 41 per cent of Poland.

Taft went over the 14 articles of the declaration with newspaper men and found praise only for the harsh terms given Germany. He voiced widely prevalent senatorial regret that the agreement apparently formalized Russian absorption of Lithuania, Latvia, and Estonia, and also tacitly approved the soviet sphere of influence in Poland, Bulgaria, Finland, Hungary, Romania, and eastern Austria. He added it was obvious the Russians can do "what they please with the puppet Polish government."

Statement "Vague"

Taft described as "vague" the statement that the allied press will enjoy full freedom in reporting developments in Romania, Bulgaria, Hungary, and Finland. He also said the agreement would seem to be circumventing a peace conference in providing that the foreign ministers council shall draft peace treaties.

Taft again questioned the wisdom of President Truman in assuming to speak for the United States on boundary questions without consulting the senate or the American people. This thought also was voiced by other senators, who regretted Truman's action, altho they expressed themselves cheered by the chief executive's statement that no secret agreement had been concluded at the conference.

No Freedom So Far

Sen. Wherry [R., Neb.] regretted that the declaration failed to settle such problems as that of Yugoslavia, saying it was his understanding there is no freedom of speech or of the press in that country. He complained that supplies given by the united nations relief and rehabilitation administration to Marshal Tito are being withheld from the Serbs and used for the marshal's cohorts.

He also found that while plans on Germany are detailed, those on Austria are vague, altho the allies have pledged themselves to make that country independent.

Where Plane Sank

Location of take-off and destination points and of port where Clipper crashed (arrow).

Miami, Fla., Aug. 3 (AP)—Four passengers were killed and 10 other persons—including the crew of four and a five month old baby—rescued when a Pan American clipper crashed and sank while alighting on the water at Fort De France, Martinique, today.

It was not immediately learned whether there were any serious injuries among the crew and six passengers saved. Civil aeronautics authority and Pan American officials will leave for the scene of the crash tomorrow to conduct an investigation.

The dead: Mrs. Susan Mendes, 29, and her son, John, 2; Judith Johns, 60, of Fort De France, and Cyril John, 46, of Port of Spain, Trinidad.

The plane opened a seam in the hull as it hit the water and sank 11 minutes later. It had left the Port of Spain two hours earlier, bound for San Juan, Puerto Rico.

STETTIN UNDER POLISH CONTROL, BRITON REVEALS

LONDON, Aug. 3 (AP)—Administration of the Baltic shipbuilding center of Stettin, under German control for 225 years, has been given over by the Big Three to the Poles, a British foreign office spokesman said today.

Stettin, capital of the Prussian province of Pomerania and the port city for Berlin, was not mentioned in the Big Three bulletin issued after the Potsdam meeting, and from the definition of the western frontier of Poland in the statement it appeared it would remain German.

Map Locates Stettin

City on West Bank

The declaration said the western boundary line of Poland would run immediately west of Swinemuende, former German naval base largely controling Stettin's outlet to the Baltic, thence along the Oder river to the confluence of the western Neisse river and on to the Czechoslovak border. Stettin is on the west bank of the Oder.

The British foreign office commentator explained, however, that it had been decided to turn over administration of the city to the Poles, who call it by the Polish name of Szczecin.

Thus while "final delimitation" of the Polish frontiers must await a peace conference, the Big Three has given the Poles immediate administration of almost all agricultural Pomerania, industrial Silesia, about two-thirds of East Prussia, and a big portion of Brandenburg.

Teschen Unsettled

The dispute about the Teschen area on the Polish-Czechoslovak frontier was left for Poland and Czechoslovakia to decide, and an amicable solution is anticipated, a British foreign office commentator said.

Sweden ceded Stettin to Prussia at the peace conference of Stockholm in 1720. The city of approximately 270,000 population is of at least historic interest in Russia, for Empress Catherine II. was born there.

FREE 3 NEWSMEN JAILED BY JUDGE FOR CONTEMPT

Higher Court Grants Writ on Same Day

Corpus Christi, Tex., Aug. 3 [Special]—Because their newspaper criticised a court decision in an eviction case involving a service man as a "raw deal" and a "travesty on justice," three Corpus Christi newspaper men spent an afternoon in the Nueces county jail today on a contempt of court citation.

They had been sentenced to a three day term, but after 5 hours and 45 minutes in jail they were freed on a temporary writ of habeas corpus from the Court of Criminal Appeals at Austin, Tex., which set Oct. 10 as the date for a hearing.

Freed on $250 Bonds

Those ordered to jail, by County Judge Joe D. Browning, were Conway Craig, publisher of the Caller-Times; Managing Editor Bob McCracken, and Reporter Tom Mulvany. Following the issuance of the habeas corpus writ, they were released on bond of $250 each.

Sheriff John Harney herded the three to the jail after Judge Browning had passed sentence. He booked them as "H-90, H-91, and H-92," after which he took them into the jail kitchen for a round of coffee. They were "mugged" and finger printed.

Meanwhile, Marcellus Eckhardt, defense attorney, rushed to Austin where he and Ireland Graves, Austin attorney, argued the case before the Court of Criminal Appeals, the highest court in Texas on criminal matters. Appellate Judge F. L. Hawkins ordered the release of the three.

Press Freedom Is Issue

Graves said afterward that when the case comes up Oct. 10 he will fight it out on the question of freedom of the press.

"We will claim denial of liberty guaranteed by the due process clause of the 14th amendment to the Constitution of the United States and two sections of the constitution of Texas," he said.

Judge Browning's contempt citation was based on reports in the Caller-Times of an eviction suit tried before him May 25, 26, and 27.

Testimony in the three day hearing before Browning was concluded yesterday. The defense did not present witnesses. The three respondents waived their constitutional immunity to testify and were called by the prosecution.

The contempt case was based on the newspaper's coverage of a suit of forcible entry and detainer tried before Judge Browning May 25, 26, and 27.

Lease Issue in Suit

The issue in the suit was whether Bush M. Jackson, owner of a building, should have possession of it on the ground that Joe L. Mayes, cafe operator, and his agent, Floyd F. Burchard, had violated the terms of a lease.

Under the lease, which expired March 14, Mayes had the option to continue for another 12 months upon payment of a monthly rental of $275 instead of the previous $250. Mayes was drafted into the army on Jan. 17 and left his cafe business in charge of Burchard, who testified at the trial that he had not seen the lease agreement and sent the usual $250 check to Jackson on March 14.

Burchard said that only when the check was rejected did he learn of the provision for an increase in rent.

Jury Holds Out

Judge Browning ordered a directed verdict for Jackson at the conclusion of the suit May 26, but the six man jury held out until the following morning before obeying him. In its verdict the jury said: "It is to be understood that this verdict is rendered and recorded on the order of this court against the conscience of this jury."

In suits of forcible detainer, the county court is the final arbiter, Texas state law providing no appeal to a higher tribunal.

Browning's contempt citation against the newspaper men was issued June 4 and referred to an article published May 30 under the editorial masthead "The Crow's Nest," written by McCracken. In this article the newspaper asserted that Browning's behavior had brought down "the wrath of public opinion on his head" and that a service man seemed to be getting "a raw deal."

Ruling Called Travesty

The editorial also asserted that the judge's granting of a motion for an instructed verdict for Jackson was "a travesty on justice" and "high handed procedure."

Browning's citation said the editorial and news articles "omitted much material evidence that would have enabled the public generally to form a fair estimate of the real nature of the controversy." It said also that the articles "needlessly repeated and emphasized the fact that the defendant, Mayes, was in the armed services."

The court asserted that the articles failed to state the terms of the contract and failed to state the legal grounds on which the motion for an instructed verdict was sought. It said the purpose of the articles was "calculated to reflect upon the integrity of the court" and to influence it in its ruling on a motion for a new trial.

Refuse to Purge Selves

The hearing concluded today was to give the newspaper men a chance to "purge" themselves of the alleged contempt. This would include publishing statements retracting certain parts of the articles and stating that errors had been made.

McCracken arose and read a typed statement to the court:

"As I saw it then, and as I see it now, the statements in the papers could not have had the effect of overthrowing the will or undermining the conscience of the judge. They could have had no such effect upon any judge worthy of the name." Mulvany and Craig announced that they subscribed to the same sentiments.

Judge Browning then affirmed his June 4 contempt citation and ordered the newspaper men to the county jail for three days.

Royal Romance

[Acme Telephoto]

MISS MARY MOHAMMED

A U. S. ROMANCE? PRINCE DOESN'T RECALL THE GIRL!

Besides, He's Wed, Has 6 Children

New York, Aug. 3 [Special]—Drawing himself up stiffly and pointing a forefinger heavenward, Prince Amir Mohammed Ibn Abdul Aziz, 32, son of King Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia, sputtered today that he's a one woman man—with a wife and six children.

The occasion was an interview in which the prince was asked about a reported budding romance between him and Mary Mohammed, 22, a Detroit typist.

"I may have as many wives as I wish," he shrilled, "but I have proposed to no American woman. Romance? Of course not! In fact, I do not remember even meeting this young lady, charming tho she may be."

But She Remembers!

In Detroit, however, Miss Mohammed, an Assyrian by birth, remembered his royal highness quite well, altho she, too, denied any international romance. She recalled meeting the prince when the Arabian delegation to the San Francisco conference, of which he is a member, visited her home city.

She said she met the prince at a dinner, that he accompanied her to her parent's home and spent several hours there and that later, at his invitation, she and her sister-in-law visited New York, where he presented her with a gold love knot pin set with 17 rubies. Inquiry today disclosed that she and her sister-in-law were guests at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel from July 14 to 22.

"I Do Not Remember"

Before reporters who interviewed him at the Waldorf, thru an interpreter provided by the state department, the prince raised high the padded shoulders of his Broadway suit and gave an emphatic reply to each question.

"There were 2,000 people at that dinner in Detroit," he said. "I met many persons and many of them were girls. But I do not remember Miss Mohammed."

"But she says you took her to Coney Island," said a reporter. "She says you telephoned her long distance many times."

"I have never seen Coney Island," the prince replied. "Is it in New York, this Coney Island?"

Shuns Playboy

"You see," the interpreter cut in with a nervous ad lib, "the prince and his fellow delegates are in this country for the San Francisco conference. He must not be made to look like a playboy. Any friendships he may have made in this country have no romantic aspects, but are merely part of his good will tour."

Miss Mohammed, told in Detroit of the prince's remarks, recalled that he "got quite a kick" out of Coney Island, and said the pin he gave her was "so lovely."

As for the prince's children—four girls and two boys—she said "they reflect no discredit upon the prince; I am not interested in his personal life."

BOY WITH BULLET IN HEART ABLE TO WALK AROUND

Paris, Ill., Aug. 3 [Special]—Tho he has a bullet lodged in the lower part of his heart, Dale Barnett, 14, walked around in a hospital today apparently suffering no pain.

Dale wounded yesterday when he and his brother, Max, 17, were practicing shooting with a .38 caliber revolver on their farm near Chrisman. The gun accidentally discharged in Max's hands and the bullet glanced off Dale's ribs and entered the lower part of the heart.

Dr. H. D. Junkin, surgeon in charge of Paris hospital, said physicians do not plan to probe for the bullet unless the boy's condition gets worse. He said the heart muscle is not damaged. Dale will be able to go home in about a week, he said. The boys are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Barnett of Chrisman.

NAZI SAYS JAPS NAMED SUZUKI TO SEEK PEACE

WITH U. S. 3D ARMY IN GERMANY, Aug. 3 (AP)—Herbert von Dircksen, former German ambassador to Tokyo and London, said today the German government was advised last January that Japan was "forming a new government with Baron Kantaro Suzuki as premier to try to come to an understanding with the United States and Great Britain." [Suzuki took office as premier last April 7.]

Herbert von Dirckson

Von Dircksen, now under house arrest, expressed surprise at Suzuki's rejection of the recent American-British-Chinese surrender ultimatum and said the Japanese premier now has become the puppet of Japanese militarists "against his will."

Now Sees Fight to Finish

The diplomat said he was convinced that the chances of unconditional surrender without a fight to the finish now were all but lost.

"Prompt refusal of your surrender terms — I wish your government had seen fit to explain 'unconditional surrender' to us—makes it obvious that the militaristic clique will carry Japan to the same senseless self-destruction that Germany suffered at the hands of the Nazis," he said.

Von Dircksen, a 63 year old career diplomat who was ambassador to Tokyo from 1933 to 1938 and to London from the spring of 1938 until the outbreak of war, said he learned thru semi-official channels of Japan's plan to attempt an understanding with the western allies.

Tells of Peril to Suzuki

"There was understood to be great danger of Suzuki's assassination when his plans should become known to the Japanese general staff," he said.

The diplomat added that it was understood in Berlin that Suzuki was backed by Tsuneo Matsudaira, a minister of the Japanese imperial house who is considered to be a powerful behind-the-scenes influence on Emperor Hirohito.

Matsudaira formerly was Japanese ambassador to London and Washington. Von Dircksen described him as "pro-English and pro-American."

HITLER'S SCARED HALF BROTHER IS FREED BY BRITISH

TWENTY-FIRST ARMY GROUP HEADQUARTERS, Germany, Aug. 3 (AP)—Alois Hitler, Adolf's half brother, has been released by British authorities after being detained for about six weeks for questioning, it was announced today. He had been captured in the Hamburg area.

"It is clear to us," a British military government statement said, "that he has led a perfectly blameless existence, being absolutely scared stiff of being associated in any way with the fuehrer's activities."

Alois was said to have been the proprietor of a beer tavern in Berlin during most of the war.

TIGHTER BELTS AHEAD FOR U. S., SAYS LEHMAN

LONDON, Aug. 3 (AP)—Herbert H. Lehman, director general of the United States relief and rehabilitation administration, said today the people in the United States would have to undergo further belt tightening to supply Europe's food needs this winter.

Economic conditions confronting Europe, he told a press conference, "will be such as to strain the political and economic structure of the continent so seriously that the consequences may do incalculable harm to our hopes for a permanent and peaceful settlement in European affairs."

Lehman held out hope that the greatest strain would be over by the harvest of 1946, provided there was good weather and reestablishment of communications.

ALLOWS U-BOAT CREW TO POSE, BUT NO TALKING

Miami, Fla., Aug. 3 (AP)—After being held incommunicado for more than 36 hours under army censorship, five officers and nine crewmen of the German submarine U-530, which surrendered to Argentine authorities July 10, were permitted to pose for photographs at the Miami prisoner of war camp today.

They were not permitted to talk, however, and no comment was forthcoming on rumors that the U-boat had put Adolf Hitler and his one time mistress, Eva Braun, ashore before they surrendered.

All 14 were flown here by navy plane and were immediately turned over to army intelligence authorities, who were tight mouthed about any information gleaned as to Hitler.

800 Italian Civilians Will Be Deported Soon

Washington, D. C., Aug. 3 (AP)—Eight hundred Italian civilians, most of them seamen interned early in the war, will be deported to Italy this month, a spokesman for the immigration service said today.

19 LABORITES NAMED TO NEW BRITISH CABINET

LONDON, Aug. 3 (AP)—Nineteen new ministers—seven of them once miners, another formerly a taxicab driver, still another once a Baptist lay preacher—stepped into Prime Minister Clement Attlee's new Labor cabinet today.

Drawn from the heart of the Labor party, they represented a cross-section of the British working class. The 19, one of them a woman, also included a former school teacher and former printer.

They brought Attlee's list of ministers to 25, with eight ministerial posts still to be filled.

The new appointments included John James Lawson, former miner, as secretary of state for war; Albert Victor Alexander, first lord of the admiralty, and William W. Benn, air secretary. This triumverate will play a leading role in prosecution of the war against Japan.

The woman minister is red haired, 54 year old Ellen Wilkinson, named to the educational portfolio. She is the second woman to attain cabinet rank in Britain.

Attlee, who returned from Potsdam yesterday and spent his first night at No. 10 Downing st., official residence of Britain's prime ministers, went today to Buckingham palace, where he received royal approval of his cabinet list.

The other new ministers:

Emmanuel Shinwell, minister of fuel and power, a vital post.

George Alfred Isaacs, minister of labor and national service.

Ben Smith, minister of food.

Barony Conferred on Him

Frederick William Pethick-Lawrence, secretary of state for India and Burma. At the same time, King George VI. conferred a barony on him.

Alfred Barnes, minister of war transport.

Aneurin Bevan, minister of health.

Tom Williams, minister of agriculture and fisheries.

John Wilmot, minister of supply and of aircraft production.

James Chuter Ede, home secretary.

Lord Addison, secretary of state for dominion affairs.

George Henry Hall, secretary of state for colonies.

Joseph Westwood, secretary of state for Scotland.

Philip John Noel-Baker, minister of state.

Wilfred Paling, minister of pensions.

William Whiteley, parliamentary secretary to the treasury, who was just appointed chief Labor whip in commons.

French Blonde Gets Life for Betraying Patriots

PARIS, Aug. 3 (AP)—Helene de Tranze, 19, blonde beauty, was sentenced today to life at hard labor and six of her male companions in the Georgian Odichari gang were sentenced to death for turning over French patriots to the Nazis during the occupation. Other members of the gang drew sentences ranging from brief imprisonment to years at hard labor. Chalga Odichari, the leader, is still at large.

Vincent Morgan Ryan and Arline Judge after wedding yesterday in Las Vegas, Nev.

Arline Judge, former film actress, and Vincent Morgan Ryan, 40, an account executive for a Chicago advertising agency, were married yesterday in Las Vegas, Nev. It was Miss Judge's fourth marriage and Ryan's second. Both obtained divorces recently in Superior court. Miss Judge was attended at the 2 a. m. wedding by her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Armond Judge of Las Vegas. Her mother, Mrs. J. A. Judge, also was present. The bride wore a two-piece blue crepe suit with an orchid. The couple said they plan eventually to make their home in Evanston.

GEN. MOLLISON MEDITERRANEAN AIR FORCE CHIEF

ROME, Aug. 3 (AP)—Brig. Gen. James A. Mollison was appointed commanding general of the United States army air forces in the Mediterranean theater today, succeeding Maj. Gen. James M. Bevans, who was given an undisclosed assignment.

Mollison was succeeded as commander of the United States 15th air force by Brig. Gen. William L. Lee, former commander of the 15th's 49th bombardment wing.

Mollison, whose home is in Mobile, Ala., will direct the final stages of redeployment from Italy to the United States and the Pacific, due to be completed by the end of November.

REPORT PATTON ORDERS FASCIST POLES TO MOVE

LONDON, Aug. 3 (AP)—The Prague radio said today that Gen. Patton had ordered the removal from Czechoslavakia of 1,500 "Polish Fascists" who had occupied five villages in the Bohemian forests.

Earlier the Moscow radio said the Polish group "get their food by plundering the population and also by gifts from the American army." Moscow said the Poles had set up headquarters 45 miles west of Pilsen and were attempting to provoke dissension among the allies.

"In that Fascist refuge," the broadcast added, "they've organized headquarters for subversive work in Poland. They are trying to contact the command of American troops in Germany."

LAVAL, PETAIN CLASH AT FIRST COURT MEETING

Pro-German Broadcast Causes Outburst

"Love of France" Theme

Laval, whose theme all thru his long testimony had been his love for France and his determination to preserve the republic, said that he was so alarmed at what Goering had told him that he immediately violated his vow of secrecy and arranged an interview with Petain to acquaint the latter with the gravity of the situation.

In consideration of Goering's threats and the necessity of dealing with ticklish Franco-German questions, including that of slave labor, he said that after his return to power it was absolutely necessary to gain the confidence of the Germans in order to deal successfully with them. It was for this reason and this reason alone, Laval insisted, that he deliberately wrote the compromising phrase in the draft of his speech to be delivered on the radio June 22, 1942: "I believe in and desire the victory of Germany, for otherwise bolshevism will sweep over Europe."

Laval said he read the speech to a high official who advised him to cut out this sentence. He said that he admitted the official was right, but that he was leaving the sentence in for his own reasons. He then submitted the text to Petain, he said.

A Key to the Germans

According to Laval's version, Petain read the speech, and when he came to the compromising sentence said that Laval knew nothing about military matters and insisted that the words "I believe in" be cut. Laval intimated that Petain approved the phrase, "I desire the victory of Germany," and added that the chief of state fully understood his reasons for including it.

Laval said he knew his words would be "a drop of sulfuric acid" to France. But he insisted that these words served as "a skeleton key" with the Germans. When they made impossible demands, Laval said, he was able to reply, "You know my sentiments, but that is one thing we can never do."

He asserted that this enabled him particularly to hold out against the German labor chief, Fritz Sauckel, whose first demand was 250,000 French laborers for Germany. His own position was more delicate than the public realized, Laval said, for 600,000 prisoners of war had been liberated provisionally and the Germans could have recalled all of them if they were not satisfied with the French attitude.

Tells of 4 Conditions

Laval also said that his "skeleton key" enabled him to insist on four conditions when demands were made for the formation of French SS troops, namely, that enlistments would be voluntary, that the troops would do no police duty in France, that they would be disarmed when discharged and that they would not be called to fight against the French. When the Germans wanted to send the French SS and a legion of French volunteers against the allies in Normandy, Laval said that he enforced his terms.

Laval, upon completing his testimony, was led out of the court room and the audience was starting to break up when the presiding judge asked Petain the customary question as to whether he had anything to say. Petain, who was talking animatedly to a lawyer, spoke up in a loud voice to say:

"My reaction to M. Laval's words was very violent when he said I approved this sentence in his speech. I thought those words were suppressed, and hit the ceiling when I heard him give them over the radio that evening."

Thruout his testimany Laval displayed none of the expected pugnacity. He seemed weak, and once requested the judge's permission to sit down for a short time. He also requested a bottle of water and took frequent drinks during his long testimony. At one point when he alluded to his family he choked and his eyes filled with tears. But as he continued talking his confidence returned and he regained some of his old fire.

A Skilful Evader

Laval was technically not a witness, but was called thru the judge's discretionary powers to answer questions. He accordingly was not obliged to take the traditional oath before speaking.

Laval, who was a lawyer before he was a politician, and accordingly knows well all the tricks of both professions, skillfully evaded most attempts to pin him down on embarrasing questions.

"I was born in the little village of Auvergne," he said. "I have my feet deep in the soil. I love my country."

This was his theme. He insisted that everything he had done had been in the best interests of France at the moment it was done.

He bore no hatred toward the English or any other people, he said. All his efforts were directed first toward keeping France out of the war and later toward getting it the best possible position, he said.

Other developments in Laval's testimony at the trial were:

A STORY OF INTRIGUES

PARIS, Aug. 3 (AP)—Pierre Laval, in his testimony at the trial of Marshal Petain today, told a story of intrigue and secret agreements in the pre-war chancelleries of Europe.

"I will defend myself, and I will accuse," he said.

He disclosed that in 1935 he had concluded a secret military alliance binding France and Mussolini's Italy.

He introduced the names of the prince of Wales, who was to become England's King Edward VIII, and his father, the late King George V.; Samuel Hoare, who was the British foreign secretary; Anthony Eden; Stanley Baldwin, former British prime minister, and others in British and French public life.

He declared that the famous Montoire meeting of Petain and Hitler, at which the policy of collaboration was supposed to have been reached, resulted in "nothing at all."

But Laval also admitted ruefully that he had remarked, "Here is where we overthrow the French republic," when he had pushed thru the acts making Petain virtual dictator in 1940. This was said in jest, he said.

Plays Every Card

Laval, who was foreign minister in 1934 and 1935 and premier and foreign minister in 1936 at the time of the Ethiopian crisis, said he "played every card in my hand" to prevent the coalition between Germany and Italy."

His idea was, he said, to "solve all issues lying between France and Italy."

So he and Hoare, then British foreign secretary, negotiated their famous agreement with Mussolini which "was known to Baldwin and the entire British government."

This agreement, which would have given Italy control of the greater part of Ethiopia, "was in order to bind Italy and France together against German aggression, which already had begun in Austria," Laval said.

"Political passions overthrew Hoare, and everything was lost when news of the agreement leaked out," Laval said. "In parliament Hoare said his lips were sealed. I don't know why."

In Touch with Baldwin

He himself had informed the prince of Wales of the alliance, he said, and Baldwin had been kept informed almost hourly as the negotiations progressed.

Eden, he added, who told him of the desire of the prince of Wales for a private talk, and Lord Vansittart, British permanent undersecretary of state for foreign affairs, had kept in touch with Baldwin.

In his talk with the prince of Wales, the present Edward Windsor, Laval said he had explained the dangerous Ethiopian situation, and asked him to discuss the situation with King George V.

"Anti-Fascist sentiments apparently were stronger than love of peace," Laval commented. "I suppose Hoare for that reason was unable to reveal that King George himself had asked him to find a solution together with me."

After shouting, "I hate war. I detest war even when we win, and we always lose," Laval then referred to the British-German naval agreement of 1935 which the British reached "without consulting us." By the agreement Germany limited herself to specified percentages in new naval construction. Laval said this was despite a British-French agreement to enter into no separate negotiations with Germany.

"Opposed 1940 Armistice"

Reminded to restrict himself more closely to Petain's trial, Laval declared he "firmly opposed the armistice" of 1940 and that he did not believe the outcome would be changed by removing the government to North Africa.

"In fact, this war was never a legally declared war," he added. "If we had had a parliament meeting we might never have declared war with our lack of material. We had no modern bombers. It was several months before he had nine bombers."

Coming to the events of July, 1940, when Petain was given full powers, Laval denied he was the "evil genius" or the planner of a coup d'etat.

Laval said he insisted that the word "republic" be inserted in the national assembly resolution giving Petain full power. Petain had no power to act as a dictator, he insisted, as all his acts were subject to approval by the cabinet.

Calls It All Illegal

"Petain paid no attention to this," he declared. "He signed what he was asked to sign. None of his acts was legal."

Even the designation of himself as Petain's successor in event of the marshal's death was invalid, Laval admitted.

Called by Judge Paul Mongibeaux, former Senate Secretary Gen. de La Pomeraye said that Laval asked him to get the signature of Senate President Jules Jeanneney to the three constitutional acts, and had made the remark about overthrowing the republic.

"I am not a Fascist, not a Nazi, I love the republic," exclaimed Laval, jumping to his feet.

Revealing the "inside story" of the Montoire meeting with Hitler, Laval said he went with a suitcase to the German embassy for another conference with Von Ribbentrop.

There he saw "a lot of uniforms and automobiles" and was told he was being taken to see Hitler. He said he forced Otto Abetz, German ambassador, to stop the car en route, and Petain was informed that Hitler was waiting to see him.

Confer with Hitler

"Did Petain go willingly?" Laval was asked.

"I don't know how he felt, but I did not bring him by force," Laval said.

Laval said he and Petain conferred with Hitler and Ribbentrop on "conversational generalities."

"We also talked of collaboration, but nothing definite was decided at Montoire—it was a meeting to enter into contact," Laval added.

Asked more about collaboration, Laval exclaimed, "But Mr. President, we were in the month of October, 1940. England was alone. Russia and the United States were not in the war. Who in his right mind would have thought otherwise than Germany would win the war?"

A roar of protests interrupted the testimony.

Dealing with the mysterious chapter of his arrest by Petain in February, 1941, Laval said he telephoned to Petain from Paris and informed him that Hitler would be offended if the marshal refused an invitation to be present when the ashes of Napoleon II. were returned to France.

Told to come to Vichy, Laval said his own and the resignations of all the other ministers were requested when they were gathered in the room.

"Altho I didn't know what the idea was I signed mine too, and Petain declared that only mine and one other were accepted," Laval related.

Asked why he reentered the government in 1942, Laval said: "I considered it my duty now that I knew Germany's intensions."

Good conduct medals were awarded to 90 WACs and enlisted men assigned to the hospital, who paraded in a brief review before the Purple Heart recipients.

ATTENDANCE AT CHURCHES IN BERLIN GAINS

BERLIN, Aug. 3 (AP)—Church attendance is increasing in Berlin. The American military commander said tonight that 174 Christian churches and at least one synagog were functioning again.

"There is complete religious freedom here, but military government regulations prohibit churches or other German institutions from engaging in the dissemination of Nazism or militarism," said the commander, Maj. Gen. Floyd L. Parks.

A survey conducted by Capt. Paul F. Shafer, former principal of the San Fernando, Cal., high school, showed that 122 Protestant and 52 Catholic churches were open. Almost without exception, the oldest and most revered religious buildings in Berlin are badly damaged.

Free Worship Under Reds

VIENNA, Aug. 3 (AP)—Cardinal Theodore Innitzer said today that Catholic churches in the environs of Vienna occupied by the Red army had been permitted free worship since liberation by the Russians.

There have been no incidents against church property or priests since he asked the soviet general staff for protection, he said.

WINDSOR DENIES LAVAL CLAIM OF SECRET TALKS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 3 (AP)—Edward Windsor, in a statement issued by the British information service, tonight denied that he had ever had any secret conversation on political matters with Pierre Laval, altho he said he had met him at a Paris social function.

Laval, former chief of government for the one time Vichy regime of Marshal Petain, now on trial in France for treason, testified today that he had informed the prince of Wales, who is now Edward Windsor, of a secret alliance between France and Italy.

The statement issued on behalf of Windsor said: "The duke has authorized the British embassy to state that, altho he met Laval at a social function at the British embassy in Paris, September, 1935, it is untrue that any conversation on political matters took place between them."

ILLINOISAN WILL WAGE WAR ON BELL BOTTOMS

HONOLULU, T. H., Aug. 30—Rep. C. W. Bishop [Rep., Ill.] will "introduce a bill to do away with bellbottom trousers and those cute little jumpers or blouses, as soon as congress reconvenes," he told navy enlisted men thru an interview in Stars and Stripes today.

Returning from a Pacific tour with other congressmen, he said he had discussed uniforms with sailors from Manila to Pearl Harbor, and was going to "see that they get what they want," a uniform more like that worn by navy chief petty officers or enlisted soldiers.

Jurors in Collaborationist Court Strike Over Leniency

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

MONTPELLIER, France, Aug. 3—The jurors of the high court of justice went on strike for a week here today, to protest at what they claim to be the easy sentences handed down against collaborationists. The court, consequently, had to suspend activities.

8,600 JAPS DIE, 650 CAPTURED TRYING TO CROSS SITTANG RIVER

CALCUTTA, India, Aug. 3 (AP)—Japanese troops trapped west of the Sittang river in lower Burma have lost more than 9,250 men, including more than 8,600 killed, in attempts to cross the river and escape toward Thailand, a southeast Asia command bulletin announced today.

Japanese prisoners total more than 650, the bulletin said. The toll of 8,600 dead in two weeks of fighting includes those killed by guerrilla forces.

Indian troops in a surprise thrust crossed the Sittang 12 miles east of Pyu, 120 miles northeast of Rangoon, and killed more than 100 enemy troops on the river's east bank. Allied patrols still roamed the area between the Mandalay-Rangoon road and the river, mopping up enemy stragglers.

U. S. Halts Shipment of Coal to Neutrals

Washington, D. C., Aug. 3 (AP)—United States coal exports to neutral countries and Argentina have been suspended temporarily, a high government official who declined to permit use of his name, asserted today. No details of this action were available, altho it was said a coal shortage in the United States was the main reason for the ban.

DAUGHTER SOBS OVER PLIGHT OF THE LAVALS

BY ANNE BRUYERE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Aug. 3—Small, winsome Jose Chambrun, daughter of Pierre Laval, wearing a simple black suit, burst into tears today as she prepared a package of soap, towels, lingerie, tinned food, bread, and cigarets to take to her mother who is held, charged with treason, in the Fresnes prison.

"I can't understand why mother has been arrested, too," she sobbed. "She has never taken part in politics or hurt any one in her life. She is very delicate and sensitive. I am told she is in a tiny, bare cell, and can communicate with no one, not even with father."

Neither Jose nor her husband, Count Rene de Chambrun, may see the imprisoned Laval and Mrs. Laval until next Tuesday when all prisoners whose names begin with the latter L may receive short visits from their immediate families.

Special Passes Needed

Again Jose lifted her tear soaked handkerchief to her eyes. Thin and pale, she continued slowly: "We have to get permission from the high court just to deliver packages. We also must have special passes and permits to visit my parents who, I am told, do not even get enough to eat.

"Next Tuesday we will be admitted with 14 other visitors in tiny wired cells a yard away from my parents. Guards and every one else will be there listening to us."

Jose is particularly worried that no woman prisoner in France is allowed to smoke.

"Altho mother had brought a full suitcase of her own cigarets they were immediately taken away," Jose said. "She has always needed to smoke for her nerves. I hope the guards will let her keep those I am sending now."

Hopes for "Fair Trial"

De Chambrun, who is a member of the New York and Paris bars and still practices in swanky offices in the Champs Elysees, said he would not take up the defense of his father-in-law.

"I do not think it would be for his good," he said, adding: "The present high court of justice has broken almost every rule of French procedure in Marshal Petain's case. I am hoping that when Laval is judged three months from now the trial will be fair.

"The world has criticized my father-in-law mercilessly without giving him an opportunity for defense. When he is heard, the truth about the Vichy administration and his part in winning freedom for more than a million prisoners of war and saving the lives of countless civilians will be known."

CHARGES ARMY FAILS TO PUNISH BRUTAL GUARDS

Rep. May Says Beatings Are 'Nightly Affair'

BY LAURENCE BURD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 3—Rep. May [D., Ky.], chairman of the house military committee, charged today that officers and guards involved in alleged mistreatment of guardhouse prisoners at the Lincoln, Neb., army air field have gone unpunished in spite of incontrovertible evidence of brutality.

Rep. May

The charge was made by May in a statement reporting on a subcommittee's inquiry into conditions at the air field. The investigation was undertaken after Rep. Gavin [R., Pa.] protested that Pvt. Warren C. Miller, Warren, Pa., was beaten by a guard at the field last year.

Hit with Night Stick

May's statement gave this account based on testimony he said was given the committee:

Pvt. Alfred L. Winkle of Minneapolis, Minn., who was guarding Miller, was "dissatisfied with the speed" with which the prisoner was breaking rocks.

In the presence of Capt. Leonard K. Dunn, the provost marshal, and Lt. Stanley T. Jones, the prison officer, Winkle "struck Miller across the left jaw with his night stick, knocking him to his hands and knees, also knocking out two dental fillings, and causing his cheek to bleed inside and out."

Beaten Second Time

Capt. Dunn then ordered Miller to continue work, but Miller did not "work fast enough to suit the provost marshal so the guard went behind Miller and beat him to such an extent that he spent the next 16 days in the post hospital," the statement said.

May said Miller's story was "unequivocably" supported by witnesses before the subcommittee. According to further testimony, May reported other beatings were "almost a nightly affair" at the base.

The chairman reported that Capt. Dunn has not been court martialed, and that Lt. Jones was acquitted and promoted to captain.

"Promotion seems to be a customary award for brutality," May's report said.

Guards Acquitted

"Under questioning by committee members," May reported, "Guard Winkle admitted that treatment of prisoners at Lincoln army air field was 'pretty rough.'"

The war department subsequently issued a statement asserting that the army "does not tolerate or condone brutal treatment or inhumane punishment of any of its personnel and prompt disciplinary action is taken with respect to known offenders. Promotion is not, as the release [May's statement] states, a 'customary reward for brutality.'"

TOKYO EXPECTS U. S. INVASION IN NEXT 2 MONTHS

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 3 (AP)—Speculating on the attacking strength of American forces and boasting of completion of defense preparations, radio Tokyo aired an opinion today that invasion of the homeland might come within two months.

Quoting the newspaper Yomiuri Hochi the radio said that recently the United States concentrated 500 warships in the Okinawa area, but claimed that the United States at present has only 10 divisions available for landing operations and the number will not exceed 40 by the end of the year.

However, Tokyo contemplated, invasion might come "even as early as next month."

11 FLYERS FINISH JAP WARSHIP IN 30 SECONDS

WITH U. S. 3D FLEET OFF JAPAN, Aug. 1 [Delayed]—(AP)—The heavy cruiser Oyodo lay in Kure harbor slightly damaged by an American air attack.

Thirty seconds after Lt. John P. Adams sighted her, she was torn by five direct bomb hits, was spewing clouds of smoke and fire, and, in his words, "she'll do no more damage in this war."

Lt. Adams led 36 navy torpedo planes, dive bombers and fighters which struck Kure on July 28. He picked the Oyodo as a target for himself and 10 other fighter pilots. Photographs later showed her capsized. Adams' plane, the only one hit, got a shell thru a wing.

YANKS SEARCH LUZON RIDGE FOR YAMASHITA AID

WITH 32D DIVISION, Northern Luzon, Aug. 3 (AP)—American troops hunting Gen. Yamashita, Japanese commander, combed a steep wooded ridge near Bayombang today in an attempt to trap one of his key commanders.

Three companies of the 128th regiment returned at dusk without having sighted their quarry, the commander of the imperial 2d armored division, or any of Yamashita's hiding leaders.

Beyond the 1,500 foot ridge are scores of higher mountains, any of which might be concealing the enemy generals and admirals.

Slovakian Court Sends First 'Traitor' to Gallows

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Aug. 3 (AP)—The People's court, a special tribunal to try traitors, has imposed its first death sentence in Slovakia. Emerich Nahnahacuk, a waiter of Presov, was hanged as a gestapo informer.

CHARGE FRANCE STARVES MEN IN POLITICAL JAILS

Rations Likened to Horror Camps

BY DAVID DARRAH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Aug. 3—Charges were made today that hundreds of French political prisoners in Fresnes prison near here are receiving starvation rations on a level just above what the German gestapo gave prisoners in the Buchenwald internment camp. Buchenwald was one of the Nazis' horror camps for political captives.

The ration of a prisoner in Switzerland sufficient to maintain health if the prisoner does not work is taken as a basis with a coefficient of 100, according to the charges. American and English prison rations on this basis have a coefficient of 175. The German prisoner of war camps had a coefficient of 70.

Charge It's Half a Ration

The ration coefficient at Fresnes prison, it was charged, is 45, less than half of what the Swiss consider necessary. At France's Drancy prison, also mentioned in the charges, the coefficient was put at 50. The Germans' Buchenwald coefficient was placed at 35.

The Fresnes prison, where Pierre Laval and scores of other Vichy officials and ministers are held, also has five French admirals, five French generals, and dozens of officers who served France against Germany in 1914, 1939, and even in 1944.

Gen. Dentz, high commissioner in Syria under the Vichy regime and once military governor of Paris, is in the prison. His legs are chained and he has been awaiting execution since April 29, when he was condemned to death.

Laval Sleeps in Clothes

Laval slept last night in his clothes in cell No. 159 in the 3d division of the prison. He complained at being awakened at 6 o'clock this morning to be taken to the Petain trial at 1:30 p. m. It was too early, he said. He was taken to the courthouse at 7:10 a. m.

Laval asked that his wife be allowed to share his quarters with him, but this was refused.

A plot to smuggle arms into the Fresnes prison has been frustrated. Several revolvers were seized as they were about to be delivered to four political prisoners.

Drive on Lingling

CHUNGKING, Aug. 4 [Saturday]—(AP)—Chinese troops have captured Sinning and closed within 12½ miles of Chuanhsien in a double pronged drive toward the former Flying Tiger airfield at Lingling, Chinese headquarters said early today. The enemy fled toward Tungan, midway between Sinning and Lingling.

Meanwhile, other Chinese forces struck from the southwest to points 12½ and 19 miles west of Chuanhsien on the Hunan-Kwangsi railroad 40 miles from Lingling. Bitter fighting broke out, headquarters said.

Chuanhsien is 67 miles northeast of Kweilin, site of the ninth American airbase recovered by the Chinese. Lingling lies 100 miles northeast of Kweilin.

Chinese units pushing up the railroad from Kweilin, a late bulletin said, captured Lingchwan, 15 miles north of the city, and pursued Japanese forces retreating toward Hingan, 32 miles northeast of Kweilin.

The Chinese command said the withdrawal by 20,000 Japanese in Kiangsi province had been stalled south of Siakiang, 70 miles south of Nanchang, goal of the enemy retreat. It also said the enemy had suffered 1,800 casualties in fighting around Kian, 110 miles south of Siakiang.

Fines Imposed on Bookie, 3 Policy Game Operators

Sylvester Staszewski, 39, of 8436 Manistee av., was fined $10 and costs by Judge Charles S. Dougherty in State st. court yesterday for taking bets on horse races Thursday in a tavern at 2900 E. 87th st. Three Negroes were fined on charges of operating policy games. They are Stranger Cooke, 48, of 6147 S. Loomis st., $100 and costs; Mrs. Billie Turner, 27, of 57 E. 44th st., $50 and costs, and Thomas Carter, 51, of 641 E. 33d st.

YANKS IN ITALY GET EDUCATION AT RACE TRACKS

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN

[Tribune correspondent who has just returned from Germany, France, and Italy.]

Those GIs stationed in Italy who visit the race tracks of Milan and Rome are getting an education in how horses can be pulled and how deep state and track officials can reach into the till.

Two race tracks are operating in Milan, one for flat racing and the other for harness events. Each is open several days a week. There are harness races in Rome but the flat racing season has not yet opened, that track being occupied by an American military unit. Some Romans complain about that, saying both tracks operated while the Germans occupied Italy.

There are pari-mutuels, of a sort, at the Italian tracks, but no totalizators. In fact, the tracks never post odds. It was explained that they are afraid to do so because of crooked jockeys who might pull every horse in the race except the longest priced one if they knew which one it was.

Bookies Play It Safe

A few legalized handbooks operate at the Milan flat racing track. They usually give about even money or 3 to 2 against four or five horses in the race, and only 3 or 4 to 1 on the other few entries. The book makers can't lose with that kind of offering line and the books don't get a big play.

The players put their money in the mutuels. Prices aren't posted until about 20 minutes after the race, and the player doesn't know until then if he wagered on some beast at 2 to 5 or 8 to 1, the latter being a phenomenally high payoff.

There is always a moan when the prices go up because they are so low. Players suspect someone in a position to do so pulls out a lot of tickets on the winner after the race. The state may take as much as 40 per cent of the handle, some players believe.

In the flat events, the horses are out of sight for about three-fourths of the course, going behind rises and thru hedges before reappearing. It is not uncommon to see a horse approach a place of concealment with a five length lead and come into view again trailing the pack or without his jockey.

There is a dark suspicion that on occasions jockeys have changed mounts in these respites from the public gaze.

Pictures Show Up Late

Cameras are used to photograph tight finishes, but usually the judges announce which they think is the winner without waiting for the picture. This practice caused a riot at Milan.

The judges announced No. 5 had won when it was apparent to spectators that No. 4 had beaten him by almost half a length. The judges insisted, however, that it was No. 5, and those who had bet on that horse in the handbooks forced the bookies to pay off at 3 to 1. The No. 4 backers screamed so much that the picture was hurried up. It usually takes an hour and a half to develop the photograph; this time a rush job was done in 45 minutes.

The picture clearly showed No. 4 was the winner. The bookies then had to pay off again at 2 to 1. They let out a scream and demanded that those who had collected on No. 5 pay back the money. They got what really might be called the horse laugh. The bookies appealed to the stewards, who replied in a few thousand words that it was the bookies' own fault and that the mutuels hadn't paid off until the picture was developed.

Tricks on Harness Tracks

The harness races in Milan and Rome are run on half mile tracks so the spectators can see the whole proceedings. And what they see!

If a horse is well out in front when he's not supposed to be, the driver will break him into a gallop for a stretch long enough to have him disqualified. A horse in Rome was approaching the finish with a six length lead when the driver remembered it wasn't his turn to win. He crossed the line still four lengths in front, but his horse had broken stride and was automatically disqualified.

The bettors on the disqualified steed let out a howl and some broke thru the barrier, intent on catching the driver. This time he let the horse run as it could and wanted to, and it carried him out of the track enclosure. A safe distance from the shouting mob, he dismounted and went in toward the Tiber river, where he possibly was paid off under a bridge at midnight.

"Of course I won't tell Junior I discovered his little hide-away. I only wish I had one."

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

Aug. 4—British Hang Isaac Hayne

ISAAC HAYNE, American patriot who was called upon to make one of those peculiarly difficult decisions that the nature of the Revolutionary war often demanded, was hanged by the British at Charleston, S. C., Aug. 4, 1781.

Hayne, a substantial planter and iron works owner, entered the American army early in the war and was captured when the British took Charleston in the spring of 1780. He was paroled, but later was called before the British authorities and threatened with imprisonment unless he declared his allegiance to the crown.

The dilemma was a terrible one for Hayne, for his wife and children were desperately ill of small-pox and he realized that he might never see them again if he defied the British. After struggling with himself, he signed the declaration on condition that he should not be called upon to bear arms.

Later, however, the British summoned him to fight. He escaped, reached the American lines, and was placed in command of a regiment of militia. When he successfully attacked a British detachment and captured Gen. Andrew Williamson, a patriot who had gone over to the enemy, the British were thoroly aroused. A huge force set out after Hayne with the purpose of destroying him before Williamson could be tried and shot.

Hayne was taken by surprise by a body of cavalry and once more fell into British hands. After an inquiry, but without an actual trial, he was condemned to death by hanging for bearing arms against the British government.

Altho the citizenry of Charleston begged for his life, and altho Hayne's surviving children [one of them, and the mother, had died] besought mercy on bended knee, the sentence was duly carried out. Hayne was 35 when he was executed.

TWO JAPS GET ASSISTS AS CHICAGOAN WIPES OUT 4 IN ONE MORNING

OKINAWA [Delayed]—With the help of two hara-kiri happy Japs, Charles B. Hansford, 27, of 4105 Potomac av., Chicago, a marine corporal, scored four kills in one morning.

Hansford and two buddies sighted four Japs at the mouth of a cave and Hansford shot one between the eyes. The others ran into the cave. Hansford tossed a grenade into the darkness and the Japs scrambled out. One shot a marine in the arm before Hansford plugged him in the head.

The two remaining Japs stopped, held hand grenades to their chests, and killed themselves.

"When those Japs save face, they save us a lot of trouble," Hansford said.

Monroe and Van Buren Bridge Work Planned

Rehabilitation of the Monroe st. bridge and replacement of the Van Buren st. bridge with a temporary span will be undertaken soon, Stephen J. Michuda, city bridge engineer, said yesterday. Michuda added that he is preparing an ordinance for submission to the city council to set aside funds for complete rehabilitation of the Lake st. bridge, a project which he characterized as important because of the large amount of traffic.

FLYER RESCUED MORNING AFTER DREAMING OF IT

GUAM, Aug. 3—[Friday]—(AP)—An American fighter pilot in distress rode his one-man rubber liferaft thru the tail end of the typhoon which damaged the 3d fleet—and was rescued the morning after he dreamed a ship would pick him up.

For six days, Lt. Arthur A. Burry, 21, Davenport, Ia., signaled vainly to planes which flew high overhead. Exhausted by battling the sea, he dreamed that he was back with his squadron at an officers' club and in desperation asked for a drink. It was offered to him, then disappeared.

The following morning, he heard singing by both men and women, "and by this time I was confident I would be rescued. I imagined these voices came from the rescuing party." The voices continued until 11 a. m., when a submarine pulled alongside and took him aboard.

Greek Warships Fight Japanese, Prince Says

CHUNGKING, China, Aug. 3 (AP)—Prince Peter of Greece said today that some units of the Greek navy had participated in allied naval operations against the Japanese since Greece declared war on Japan. The prince arrived in Chungking last night to visit Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek. [Greece announced July 7 that she considered herself at war against Japan as of Dec. 8, 1941.]

WARD WORKERS MADE LOAFERS BY ARMY ORDER

Montgomery Ward's mail order house at 618 W. Chicago av. is a loafing place these days for some 400 to 500 employes who are being paid for doing nothing.

An army order effective Aug. 1, which directed company branches not under army control to pay the sales price, taxes, and shipping costs of merchandise ordered by them from the parent Chicago mail order house, is the cause of the boon doggling. Montgomery Ward's, thru its chairman, Sewell Avery, has refused to obey the army order and 30,000 orders from branches have piled up. The employes who would normally be engaged in filling, packing, and billing these orders are idle.

[Ward again defies WLB orders relating to properties in seven cities; case referred to office of economic stabilization, indicating possible army seizures. Story on page 15.]

Refuse to Allow Transfers

The army also has refused to allow these hundreds of employes to be transferred temporarily to other departments where they could be put to work, altho some of the employes have asked for transfers, C. M. Odorizzi, mail order manager, said yesterday. The shipping department needs workers to unload cars, yet the idle workers cannot be put to this use, he stated.

Yesterday a stroll thru the mail order house disclosed hundreds of women sitting together gossiping, reading magazines and newspapers, putting on nail polish, primping, writing personal letters, and eating popcorn and pretzels. Others spent the day playing cards.

Calls It Too Monotonous

"This is too monotonous," complained Miss Dorothy Lawson, of 5219 Damen st., a group head in the assembly unit. "We would much rather be working."

"It won't be so bad if it only lasts a day or two but this doing nothing would get on my nerves after that," said Miss Dorothy Murphy of 8128 S. Wolcott av., a multiple biller.

Odorizzi pointed but that manufacturers had been paid for the merchandise in question long before the army seized more than $35,000,000 of merchandise and other property.

"It is unjust to demand that we pay for it a second time," he asserted. "We refuse to do it and we demand that this indefensible order be withdrawn."

By preventing the orders from reaching customers, the army is also causing injury to the public, he charged.

2,846,932 TONS M'ARTHUR'S 1945 JAP SHIP TOLL

MANILA, Aug. 4 [Saturday]—(AP)—The far east air forces and attached units in the first seven months of this year destroyed or damaged 2,846,932 tons of enemy shipping and 1,375 enemy planes in the blockade of Japan, Gen. MacArthur announced today.

These air forces, under MacArthur's over-all command, have flown more than 150,000 sorties and dropped 100,000 tons of bombs.

Bad weather forced cancellation of attacks by the far east air forces Thursday, MacArthur's bulletin noted.

Mother Sentenced

[TRIBUNE Photo]

MRS. DOROTHY CONKLIN

Mrs. Dorothy Conklin, 21, of 6042 Wallace st., was sentenced to a year in the Dwight prison for women yesterday on charges of contributing to the dependency of her daughter, Carol Ann, 2. The child was left with a neighbor June 14 and the mother disappeared for 31 days.

Judge Victor A. Kula of the court of Domestic Relations acted on the recommendation of Dr. David B. Rotman, Municipal court psychiatrist.

Mrs. Amanda Conklin, the woman's mother-in-law, said she would care for the child at the request of the father, Seaman 1st Class Lester Conklin, now serving in the Pacific.

SCREWDRIVER USED BY FLYER TO FREE BOMBS

OKINAWA, Aug. 1 [Delayed]—(AP)—A Liberator of the 7th air force made seven runs thru flak and interceptors over Japan yesterday and finally released its four 2,000 pound bombs when the bombardier pried the jammed bomb-bay doors open with a screwdriver.

The pilot, Lt. Robert H. Lounsberry of Nevada, Ia., related that he became separated from the rest of his flight by clouds, so he headed for an island south of Sasebo.

"Our bombs wouldn't release on the first run," said the bombardier, Lt. Alan H. Alch of San Francisco. "We tried two more runs and shook the ship, but they still stuck like glue." Alch grabbed a screwdriver and crawled out on the catwalk over the open bomb-bay. He leaned out over the bomb-bays, used the screwdriver as a lever and managed to pry one bomb loose. They did this for each bomb, and Lounsberry said the pictures they took showed "a pretty good job" on some Japanese factories.

NEW ZEALAND TO MAKE 45% SLASH IN FORCES

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Aug. 3 (AP) — Peter Fraser, prime minister, announced today that New Zealand's military forces would be reduced from 100,000 to 55,000.

The army overseas, he said, will be reduced from 39,000 to 18,200, that in New Zealand from 16,000 to 8,400, and the air force from 35,000 to 21,500. Small reductions will be made in naval personnel.

He told the house of representatives that New Zealand would remain in the fight against Japan according to her ability, man power and other resources.

PLANNED CHAOS FOR EUROPE

At Potsdam the Big Three [Attlee for Churchill in the second half] admittedly followed the lines of the Tehran and Yalta deals. Those, principally Communists, who have hailed Yalta and Tehran as the supersedes of the Atlantic Charter, the Constitution, and the Ten Commandments, may continue their jubilation. Those who hoped that Potsdam might remedy some of the faults of the two previous conferences will find little comfort in the report. Those who saw Tehran and Yalta as mileposts in the continuation of power politics and toward future European wars will have their suspicions hardened by Potsdam.

As on previous occasions, Mr. Stalin got what he wanted, for the most part because what he wants is physically or potentially under the guns of the Red army. He made some concessions. While his gains were concrete, the concessions were largely rhetorical.

The transformation of Poland into a soviet satellite was completed. The Poles are to have no reparations except as Russia chooses to give them. The London Polish government is disavowed and disinherited. Free elections in Poland are again promised—under the eyes of Stalin's marshals, of course—and there is the minor concession that our newspaper men shall be free to report what they see there. But the major concession of an American-British share in the supervision of the election, to assure real impartiality, is missing. The western allies are granted no power to prevent an electoral rape, but they are permitted to watch it. Above all, the territorial accretions granted the Poles, in exchange for eastern territories taken by Russia, are such as to make them eternal enemies of the Germans and, therefore, dependent on Russia for protection.

Germany is to have a Draconian peace and it may well prove a Carthaginian one, when the assurance that there is no intention to destroy the German people runs into the realities of the economic role imposed on them. It is only just and expectable that Germany should be disarmed, that the war criminals should be punished, that its industry should be stripped of potentials to rearm the nation. The German people are assured living standards no better than the average in Europe, which is less than they have enjoyed in the past, but certainly not as bad as those they imposed on their own victims.

In the light of the arrangement for reparations, however, it is dubious whether even such living standards as these can be established in Germany, and equally dubious whether the living standards of all Europe east of the Rhine will not deteriorate seriously as the result of the announced allied policy in Germany. The assurances to the Germans and the reparations policy are, in fact, a mass of contradictions.

The machinery of reparations is that the allies are to determine within six months how much of the basic industrial equipment of Germany is unnecessary to the peace time economy of that country as it has been sketched for the future. The emphasis in that economy will hereafter be placed on agriculture instead of industry.

This excess industrial equipment is to be taken by the allies as reparations. German foreign investments, including those in neutral countries, are to be surrendered similarly. Russia gets everything tangible in her own zone and the investments in eastern Europe and is to be cut in on the booty of western Germany as well.

It is doubtful whether these tangible German assets—steel mills and machine tools and chemical equipment—will be of much value to the industrially advanced western allies, altho Russia will undoubtedly find a use for the material. The Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation, for example, probably wouldn't accept as a gift those Krupp rolling mills that escaped the American air force. Except to speed the industrialization of Russia, the primary purpose of reparations seems to be not so much to increase the industrial plant of the allies as it is to strip Germany of that plant.

It is fairly obvious that provisions for Germany to emphasize rebuilding and rehousing in its bombed cities and for it to pay for its imports with exports become so much balderdash if any substantial part of German industrial equipment, beyond that already destroyed by war, is taken for reparations. Even the transformation of Germany into a primarily agricultural country becomes a dubious project without a considerable chemical industry, since German soil is generally poor and would require very heavy fertilization to feed the population.

Whether the Germans deserve all this need not be argued. The people of eastern Europe, already impoverished by nazi occupation and further disorganized by Russian power politics, certainly do not deserve the fate that inevitably will be theirs under this plan. Germany was the principal market for their agricultural products, and, in return for those products, the principal source of their imports and manufactures. If Germany cannot pay for their products, they will be hard put to find another market. Russia is going to have task enough rebuilding its own devastated country without manufacturing extensively for export in the post-war years. Other industrial powers have little use for eastern Europe's food exports. In this complete disorganization of European economy lies the greatest folly perpetrated at Potsdam.

One section of the Potsdam report may almost certainly be attributed to the British election. It is hard to conceive that Spain would have been denounced as unfit to sit with the united nations had not Socialist Attlee displaced Conservative Churchill. Spain is insignificant in Europe, in either the economic or the business sense. If the country threatens any one's interests, it is those of Britain, not Russia. The Russian obsession against Spain, and earlier in San Francisco against the swashbuckling colonels of the Argentine, seems to be a matter of propaganda rather than vital interest. [Franco is, no doubt, a nasty little brute, but no more so than Stalin's man Tito in Yugoslavia. Obviously, he doesn't hold a candle to Stalin himself in the matter of political murder.]

The most apparent basis for the consistent outcry against the fascist regime in Spain and the so-called Fascists of the Argentine is the communist determination to make international whipping boys of any one who, for any purpose, declares his opposition to communism. By the action against Spain, notice is served that any nation that attempts to prevent the destruction of its existing government by the Communists may expect, so far as Russia has the influence to accomplish it, to be denounced as an international pariah.

THE RED STAR RISES

Nobody won but Russia at Potsdam. Russian hegemony is confirmed over half of Europe. Soviet prestige is enormously enhanced by the concessions made by its partners in victory. With the leftists in strategic control of France, Italy, and Belgium, it is only a question of time until Moscow becomes the center of gravity for the entire continent. A weak Germany, with its only hope of a tolerable existence depending upon the sufferance of the strongest continental power, will take the easy road into communism.

These developments will not occur overnight. Britain is left with a beachhead in northwest Germany which will prove its Dunkerque as a European power. The ascendancy of Russia has permanently altered the historic balance of power which permitted the British to exercise a leverage upon continental affairs for many decades out of all proportion to Britain's actual strength. From now on Britain lives among the faded glories of the past. She fought to prevent the unification of Europe under Germany, only to see the same objective accomplished under Russian leadership.

Mr. Truman, as the representative of America at Potsdam, chose the role of a guest condemned to smile uneasily at another man's wedding. He asked and gained nothing for his country—for the simple reason that there is nothing in Europe that America could use or want. It was foreordained that the triumphs were reserved for others. Mr. Truman has acquiesced in them and, so far as he can do so without the advice or consent of the senate, has ratified them. He has carried on from where Mr. Roosevelt left off at Tehran and Yalta.

The tragedy of the United States is that it has been carried by its leaders thru a victorious war, prosecuted at enormous expense in life, treasure, and resources, and with effects incalculably disruptive of both its traditions and its future expectations, only to learn the lesson that was apparent from the start. That is that it is impossible for this country to intervene in the affairs of Europe and hope to achieve any settlement which would benefit America in the only way it could be benefited—by the establishment of conditions of stability and justice which would promise enduring peace.

The settlement achieved at Potsdam represents little of justice, altho it may offer the stability of the rule that Russians themselves know thru a vast stretch of Europe and Asia, where an absolute rule from the top down, supported by police terror, has liquidated all dissent. As long as Britain is content with its status as a second class power, outclassed economically and militarily by the Russian Goliath, the continent may remain passive. As long as Russian satellite governments control the helot peoples of Europe there will be no rising, just as there will be no liberty.

But the decisions taken at Potsdam promise a troubled and unhappy future. It has been assumed that nations are houses on wheels which, like Poland, can be shifted this way or that. It is taken for granted that the greatest industrial nation on the continent can be reduced to a farm without any dislocation of the European economy. It is thought that the minority problem can be settled by putting the minorities in boxcars and shunting them from one place to another. It is accepted that nations which are prostrate can pay reparations in money, goods, and human labor and still be able to make a satisfactory living.

These solutions will not work. There is nothing but torment ahead for most of the people of Europe. Those with the guns may be able to keep them in check, but can offer them nothing but despair. A whole continent cannot be run as a concentration camp.

The product of Potsdam will be praised by Americans of European and, particularly, communist orientation as demonstrating the unity of the three major powers—now reduced by the default of Britain to a Big Two of Russia and the United States. It is the unity of another Munich, of an appeasement to which America has been committed ever since Tehran. It is humiliating for Americans to assent to such deals in return for a few minuscule concessions contemptuously tossed to their President.

When Stalin said he would take care of Poland's reparations for her, his fellow conferees and the nations of Europe were hearing their master's voice. When, having made his own dispositions in Poland, Romania, Bulgaria, Hungary, and Finland, Stalin invites American diplomatic representatives and journalists to inspect and approve them, we are simply required to acknowledge the accomplished fact. We are allotted zones of occupation in Germany and Austria, where our reluctant troops, with their shaky lines of supply, are no better than hostages; and, in accepting them, we accept complicity in a policy of spoliation which brings us not a single benefit.

The Potsdam declaration is silent on the only point which might have been of concern to America. It may be assumed that Russia will eventually enter the war against Japan, already brought by the United States to a conclusion save for the formal acknowledgment of defeat. If Yalta and Potsdam are the criteria, the soviet union will be handsomely reimbursed at the expense of other friendly nations for whatever incidental assistance it provides. The reward in Asia should prove at least equally as shocking to public opinion as that in Europe.

Potsdam makes it clear why the united nations charter was rushed thru the senate, so that the United States would be committed to the new world order in advance of the reshaping of Europe. The military forces we are called upon to contribute will be employed to uphold the status quo. Our conscripted youth will be placed at the service of a foreign dictatorship to maintain its sway. As a member of the world organization our influence in behalf of liberty and justice is neutralized. It is for this kind of world that our people made enormous sacrifices.

It was a mistake for President Truman to go to Potsdam. The greater mistake was for America to have gone into Europe's war. The futility of that pilgrimage has now been made complete.

THE POTSDAM FOLLY

The Potsdam communique is hard to read. It may be a long time, therefore, until the full measure of its stupidity and infamy is recognized.

If there is one failure that stands out above all the rest it was the failure to appreciate that the overwhelming problem in Europe is economic reconstruction. Unless a solution is found promptly millions will die of hunger and cold, misery will be widespread, and political stability will be beyond attainment. The physical obstacles to reconstruction are stupendous. Much of Europe is in ruins; most of its people are impoverished and, to make matters worse, dispirited; its transportation services have been heavily damaged; houses, factories, and stores by tens of thousands have been reduced to rubble.

The catalog of Europe's ills could be continued for pages. The only hope of cure lies in rebuilding the plant and reintegrating the economy as rapidly as possible. What remains of Europe's workshops should be stimulated to produce as much as possible in as short a time as possible.

Potsdam's answer to the problem will produce precisely the opposite result. Mr. Truman, Mr. Attlee, and Mr. Stalin have decided that Europe's most important basic industries are to be dismantled and scattered. Much of the equipment is to be removed to Russia, where for all practical purposes it will be outside the European economy. Control of what remains will be rigidly burocratic, which is to say inefficient. Whole populations are to expect transfer to new areas. If the great men at Potsdam had deliberately set themselves the problem of finding the best way to promote and prolong misery and unrest on the continent they could hardly have done better than they did.

So much for their economic statesmanship. The political decisions were of the same quality. Here the great men continued to pursue the Yalta line of appeasing Russia. If Stalin didn't get everything he wanted, including Constantinople and Kars at the expense of Turkey, he at least didn't abandon those aims and will find himself in a stronger bargaining position to get them six months or a year hence.

By that time he will have his German tools turning out the planes and automotive equipment which he conspicuously lacks. By that time, too, the American army in Europe will be relatively small, for at the rate we are now moving our soldiers out of Europe for the Japanese war we shall have only a somewhat oversized army of occupation left. Our forces in Germany, it should be noted, will be in a pocket, cut off from the sea in all directions. We shall find ourselves in no position to resist Russian aggression if Stalin threatens it and there is surely no reason to expect more of the British.

Stalin emerges from the Potsdam conference with nothing lost and much gained. He is not committed to the Japanese war and if his staying out prolongs it he can be content, because the longer we have that fight on our hands the longer he can feel that our diplomacy toward him will be weak. While we are fighting Japan he is building up his war potential to be used, if only as a threat, to extend his authority in Europe, and Asia as well.

Mr. Truman got nothing or, rather, less than nothing, for he assented to unlivable arrangements in Europe that only can prevent recovery and sow the seed of a new war. Mr. Attlee did a little better: Britain gets a slice of the German loot and probably can count upon acquiring whatever of the Italian colonies she may desire. It must now be recorded with regret that Mr. Truman is as devoid of diplomatic skill as he is without understanding of the problems which he has been dealing with.

He might have done better if he had not permitted the conference to proceed in secrecy. As it was, decisions were taken without the American people knowing either what subjects were under discussion at any moment or what conflicting views were presented. Mr. Truman might have been spared his more egregious blunders if he had allowed public opinion here to express itself as the conference went along. Evidently he imagined that he didn't need this help.

It becomes the duty of the Republicans in congress to oppose the Potsdam foreign policy. The course for America is clear. We must get our troops, all of them, out of Europe as rapidly as possible, for they are merely hostages there whose presence can only signify America's approval of an outrageous folly. We must make it abundantly clear to Europe, and to our allies in particular, that if they want American economic aid they must take steps to promote peace and not war, prosperity and not misery.

Today's A Line o' Type or Two column was omitted to make room for editorial opinions on the Potsdam conference. Its editor, viewing the ruins, ruefully said: "Apparently I have been given away to the Poles."

Select the answers which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers below.

1. A four poster is most likely to have which one of these?
   Drawers Rockers Mattress Mirror
2. A person who had just been beaned would probably have what in his hand?
   Tennis racket Baseball bat Football Cue
3. A singletree should be associated primarily with Hats Shoes Horses Roofs
4. Paris green is of special interest to which worker?
   Farmer Chef Plumber Dentist
5. Which one of these ancient gods would most likely have put the horseshoes on Pegasus?
   Pluto Vulcan Janus Neptune
6. This problem tests your knowledge of English idioms, which are unique phrases peculiar to our language. Try to fill in the blanks in the left hand column below with the appropriate words from the opposite column. You are entitled to one point for each correct judgment.

[a] Checks and _____	[v] Tucker
[b] Calm and _____	[w] Testament
[c] Assault and _____	[x] Balances
[d] Last will and _____	[y] Collected
[e] Bib and _____	[z] Battery

Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6, average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—The last question counts five points].

THE CHILD WHO FUSSES AT MEAL TIME

PARENTS who remark that their youngsters of eight or ten "eat them out of house and home" may well glance backward to the years when they were concerned with the opposite situation. Some children, of course, are "piggies" from birth but all too many go thru a finicky stage that upsets the entire household. At meal time they whine, fuss, gag, or even vomit and the distracted mother does not know which way to turn.

Nearly twenty years ago an experiment was conducted by Davis on a group of totr who had been weaned at six to nine months. Trays with a wide choice of dishes were set before them three times a day. The results showed that over a period of time they selected all the essential elements even tho balanced meals were not consumed in each 24 hours. On certain days, eggs were preferred; on others, five or six bananas were relished. A few were even partial to spinach. The babies all flourished.

In the average home this plan would be difficult especially with current food shortages. The value of this study lay in the fact that most children will eat if disturbing factors are removed. These subjects were not coddled or urged; they were left to their own devices. Furthermore, a sufficient variety was offered to provide all the necessary requirements.

By the second year of life, junior has acquired the knowledge that his behavior can affect grownups. If fussing or apprehension attend the refusal of a certain item, he enjoys the excitement and will try his act again soon. Small fry crave the spotlight. Most authorities believe that the little one should be served an adequate and attractive meal. After not more than a half hour the plate should be taken away silently, no matter how much remains on it. If this is done two or three days in a row the chances are that the rebel will give up the struggle and enjoy his dinner.

It is important to nip the tendency in the bud because the longer the habit persists, the harder it will be to break.

From there onward the menus are more liberal. The child may eat practically everything with the exception of greasy and highly seasoned edibles, nuts, and excessive sweets. The fact that he can now sit at the family table often acts as an incentive.

Adults should not discuss their own idiosyncrasies before "little ears." I know one young woman who mentioned on many occasions that she never ate butter because her mother had not liked it. As was to be expected, her own daughter was impressed by these remarks and now refuses to eat the product. I don't know how many more generations will follow suit.

Any one who has assumed the responsibility of parenthood is morally obligated to see that the youngsters are well started on the road to life. This means not only proper feeding in childhood but training in emotional stability.

If common sense and good judgment do not prevail, and the no-appetite child is severely undernourished, a week or two in a hospital is advised. The physician can then study the physical or psychological elements that may be responsible.

IRRITATION

Z. W. writes: How can diaper rash be prevented?

REPLY

The diapers should be laundered properly—boiled and then soaked in boric acid, and rinsed thoroly. Don't forget frequent changes. Oiled or rubber pants may add to the irritation. Baby oil or zinc oxide on the irritated parts will be of value.

NO

S. D. F. writes: Is there any danger of contracting diabetes thru using the same washroom as a sufferer?

REPLY

Not a chance. The disorder is not contagious.

NOT ADVISED

J. H. writes: Is coffee harmful to a stomach ulcer patient?

REPLY

Caffeine should be restricted as it tends to stimulate gastric secretions. This is just what is not wanted in peptic ulcer.

UNCONVENTIONAL

Mrs. T. writes: What is the cause for a breech-birth?

REPLY

The fetus moves about frequently and the chances are it gets caught in an unusual position.

Starting tomorrow, there will be an innovation in theatrical advertising, never before done, which will revolutionize, etc., etc. The "Dear Ruth" ads will carry the curtain in army time [2030 for 8:30; 1430 for 2:30]. The backers say this will be appreciated by the soldiers passing thru town and will help mail order sales. Our own bet is that the general public will think it a new telephone number.

Vanishing Trail

What we'd like to know is what's become of the open road? Some optimists saw its recrudescence in war time gasoline rationing, but no one who has been out on a highway on Sunday will let that statement go by without a heated argument. There hasn't even been a book written with that title since 1938, and then it dealt with the open road to reading.

Looking for books on the subject under the "open" category in the Publishers' Guide revealed many more passing events. Open air. [Where?] Open shop. [Same.] Open book. [Whose life actually is?] Open city. [Not since the fall of Manila.] Open daily. [Not with the labor shortage; all the signs say "Closed for vacations—note the plural—until Aug. 10."] Open house. [With the food shortage who would dare?] Open prison. [Only in Michigan.] Open sea. [Not in time of war.] Open sky. [Same.] Open water. [?] Open secret. [No, censorship.] Open tomb. [Not in some time.]

Going down the list, little seems to be left except open sesame, which works only when your name is Ali Baba, and open fire! For those afflicted with claustrophobia, life seems to be getting grimmer and grimmer.

Minor American Athens

Now comes a letter from Hollywood to dispute the claim advanced here that Chicago, with its furious onslaught into the Great Books, is about to become the Athens of the world. Wilbur Jerger, a young man who studied the Grrr Bkkks at the University of Chicago under Hutchins and Adler, has taken what he learned to the movie stars and contends California's chances at becoming the new Athens are far greater than Chicago's. "You see," he explains, "I lived in Chicago for 23 years, and it just hasn't the climate. Here we have everything but the Mediterranean."

Mr. Jerger started to humanize Hollywood 16 months ago, and so far has had 300 students in five seminars, among them Ann Sothern, Brenda Marshall, Lillian Gish, and Mrs. Bob Hope. His readers of the Grrr Bkkks include actresses, screen writers, film cutters, directors, producers, secretaries, business men, radio performers, and "students." The youngest is 13; the oldest, 76. One group has now ingurgitated Homer, Aeschylus, Sophocles, Euripides, Herodotus, Thucydides, Hippocrates, Aristophanes, Plato, Aristotle, Cicero, the Old and New Testaments, Lucretius, Livy, Virgil, Plutarch, Tacitus, Epictetus, Lucian, Marcus Aurelius, Galen—are you still with us?—and is now up to St. Augustine.

Mr. Jerger, by the way, has met and jumped the hurdle Prof. Mortimer Adler is evading. He has added the 101st book. "What the extra book we've added is, I really don't know," he writes, "but we had to do something to distinguish us from Mortimer Adler." Our private opinion is that while Mr. Jerger may know all the Great Books from Homer thru James Joyce, he can't count. We counted his list, and it contains 102.

OPA PUSHAROUND

South Chicago, Ill., July 31—I purchased an electric refrigerator from a furniture store on Commercial av. on April 27. I paid $190 for it and received a receipt for $71.40 instead. The seller told me the OPA price was $150 and the rest it cost him to have it repaired.

Took it up with the OPA Board 40-10 on May 29. The refrigerator never worked right and the OPA is giving me the run around. The second time I went there, June 8, the OPA clerk would let me know Monday, June 11. I didn't hear from them. June 25 I went for the third time. She said she forgot to take it up but would take it up June 29. She didn't do it—said they changed the meetings to Mondays. She asked me to bring the receipt for the refrigerator July 3. I took the receipt to the OPA. I went there again the following week. She was on her vacation. I waited from July 9 to July 30. She wasn't in, but they'd tell her as soon as she got back. They told me to go home and wait for a phone call as they expected her back in one-half hour. I didn't hear from her and went again today. She was out again and they'd leave her a note to call me up. I went home and waited—still nothing.

Now then, who do I see, if any one, to get this straightened out, or just what does the OPA stand for? I asked for my receipt and didn't get it as they couldn't touch her papers.

END OF HENRY'S ERA

Chicago, July 30—The Socialist victory in England is hailed as presaging the beginning of "the era of the common man." This is balderdash. The common man has never had greater opportunities or enjoyed a better standard of living than during the capitalistic era. Rail splitters have become Presidents; section hands have risen to the leadership of vast transportation systems; the lowliest citizen has enjoyed comforts and luxuries beyond the wildest dreams of the privileged few of earlier times. And all this has been possible because fabulous rewards spurred men of brains and enterprise and industry, as nothing else could, to great achievements—achievements from which all men derived untold benefits.

If it develops that the Socialist victory in England is a forerunner of a universal turn to the left then history will record that in the year 1945 we were not entering the "era of the common man." We were leaving it.

Chicago, July 23—The WPB still refuses to allow the tailors to make or the public to buy two pants suits, so, in order to get the same amount of wear out of our clothes that we used to, we are forced to buy two complete suits of three pieces each, with a total of six garments, compared with the four pieces involved in the two pants suit. We wonder if the WPB is interested in promoting the tailoring business or really has this cockeyed idea of economy.

CLOSED BEACH

Chicago, July 31—Will the Chicago park district please explain why a 50 foot strip of beach which has been in use since the opening of the beaches from North av. to Fullerton pkwy., located alongside the south fence of the service men's center at Fullerton av. is no longer considered safe to the public, even to the extent of prohibiting wading?

A life guard sits atop his perch on this beach to instruct the public to move on. Why is it so much of a job watching over a handful of mothers and children on this smallest of all the beaches? This strip of beach is used mainly by mothers and nurses of small children who have found it a haven for busy youngsters. These children all are supervised by their parents and guardians, so why prohibit wading and filling a toy bucket with water for their play?

To prevent older children from straying too far, why not extend a rope across the water as the summer resorts on small lakes do? Why hasn't the park district made plans for a mothers' and small children's beach? At the North av. beach older children and adults topple the youngsters over in their play and we have been highly pleased to have this beach so close to home.

There have been numerous drownings at North av. and other beaches, yet these have not been closed.

Since the service men's center is closed to service men from Monday thru Friday, why not use it as a mothers' haven or permit only children accompanied by an adult to enter?

The Chicago park district has made motor lanes and nothing else out of the park, now I suppose they will start a squeeze on the beaches, too.

DIVERSION BY NAME CALLING

Chicago, Aug. 1—A reading of Elliott's statement brings back to memory the good old days of name calling, which we had to suffer and endure for 12 long years. Notice how the poor, maligned, defamed, misunderstood young man rolls 'em out in true Rooseveltian fashion: He would have us believe these are all "pernicious charges" by a "small segment of the press" in this "hate campaign," a "deliberate infamous lie" [Oh yeah? How about the 'dear John' telephone talk?], "false statements," "half truths" to "smear a man" and "sly implications" [hear! hear!], all done by "that small irresponsible section of the press," etc. My, my, how we have been told off.

Looks and sounds to me like that old Rooseveltian trait of roundly besmirching any one and every one who happens to find out about their sly, tricky, little undercover schemes. Or has Elliott gone and hired one of his pappy's ghost writers?

SHIP ARRIVES EARLY TO GET GI TO HOSPITAL

Two Other Appendicitis Victims Reach N. Y.

New York, Aug. 3 (AP)—Three troopships, each with at least one appendicitis victim aboard, reached here from Europe today. One of them—the Noah Webster—docked six hours ahead of schedule to get its patient to a hospital.

A fourth vessel, the Sea Tiger, anchored at the Camp Shanks pier up the Hudson. Six other ships reached New York harbor later, bringing the day's total of returning veterans to 4,569.

Ship Increases Speed

Capt. Eugene Rinkey of St. Paul, Minn., an army doctor, went by lifeboat from the Noah Webster to another Liberty ship, the Zane Grey, last Tuesday and removed a merchant seaman, Charles E. Howard, 19, of Reisterstown, Md.

After Rinkey, a veteran of 33 months overseas, decided against an appendectomy, the Noah Webster increased its speed. Howard was removed this morning to the Marine hospital, Staten Island, where his condition was reported good.

Units of 45th Division

Another appendicitis victim was a soldier named Arthur C. White. He was operated on by Capt. Melvin F. Polek of Baltimore, aboard the Liberty ship Ethan Allen. White's condition also was reported good. The Fitzhugh Lee also had an appendicitis case.

Largest of the ships arriving today was the Sea Tiger, with 2,605 miscellaneous troops, including advance units of the 45th infantry division.

Other ships arriving were the Aztec, Cornell Victory, Sarah Bache, Lightning, Zacapa, and John J. Archbold.

MUSIC FESTIVAL TO BE GIVEN AT MICHIGAN CITY

A program as varied as the flowers in a garden will be given at the annual music festival to be held at the International Friendship gardens, two miles east of Michigan City, Ind., at 7:15 o'clock tonight. The program of the festival will include numbers by Percy Grainger, pianist and composer; the Philharmonic male quartet; the Union Stock Yards' kitty band; three Chicago singers in a comedy skit, and winners of instrumental and vocal contests.

The festival tonight will conclude a summer series which has included two operas under the direction of Anna Fitzu, of Chicago, and a program by the music organizations of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation's plant at Gary. The gardens, consisting of 100 acres of beautifully landscaped grounds, will be open to the public until Nov. 18. J. Virgil Stauffer is in charge of the gardens.

LUTHERANS ACT TO SLASH BERLIN SUICIDE RATE

BERLIN, Aug. 3 (AP)—In an attempt to reduce the number of suicides in the Berlin area, the Lutheran synod admonished the church's followers today not to "flee from suffering and hunger into death." Meeting in complete freedom for the first time in years, the synod declared that Germany's collapse was "God's visitation upon us" and stated that "whoever has faith does not flee."

RAPE SUSPECT CAPTURED THRU NEWS PICTURE

A week ago a 57 year old mother of two men in army and navy service called on Capt. John T. O'Malley at the Shakespeare police station. She carried a newspaper clipping of a picture of spectators watching a fire in the Thomas hotel, 70 W. Grand av. She had circled one man in the picture.

"That's the man," the woman said. She identified him as the man who seized her at Bloomingdale rd. and Rockwell st., on April 7, robbed her of $20, and then raped her. From the picture O'Malley saw that the same man was one he also had been hunting for violation of parole from Stateville and for stealing $75 from a Madison st. restaurant.

Police who recognized the man from the newspaper picture description, seized him at Bittersweet pl. and Clarendon av. He is Alfred Sitkiewicz, 22, of 1823 N. Fairfield av. Capt. O'Malley said he confessed he was the rapist and the man who stole the money.

Factory Area Destroyed by Czech Fire; 7 Killed

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Aug. 3 (AP)—Seven persons were killed and 39 injured seriously in an explosion and fire which destroyed a factory district in the Krasne Brezno suburb of Aussig, Interior Minister Vaclav Mosek announced today. Mosek said there was evidence that the fire was a German werewolf enterprise and the Czech press resumed a campaign for expulsion of all Germans from the border region.

BOY, 10, KILLED BY OWN PRANK TO SCARE FRIENDS

Mount Vernon, Ill., Aug. 3 (AP)—An attempted prank to frighten playfellows caused the death of Jerry Greene, 10, of near-by Waltonville last night.

As youngsters played in the basement of the Greene home, Jerry yelled he would commit suicide by hanging. He tied a scarf around his neck, stood on the basement steps, tied the other end around a beam, then jumped—intending only to frighten onlookers since he had permitted enough slack in the scarf to allow his feet to touch the floor as he jumped.

But as he jumped, his head struck a beam, stunning him. His knees buckled and the full weight of his body swung from the taut noose. He died of a broken neck.

2 Held in $2,500 Theft of Jewelry from Hotel

Robert R. Price, 19, of 742 E. 42d st., and Jesse Harris, 17, of 550 E. 44th st., Negroes, were held by police yesterday charged with stealing jewelry valued at $2,500 from the room of Richard C. Olsen of Minneapolis, jewelry salesman, in the Palmer House July 26. The thieves entered Olsen's room by climbing a fire escape. Price and Harris are former employes of the hotel.

Safe at Home

[Associated Press Wirephoto]

Marjorie Wick in her Buffalo, N. Y., home yesterday.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 3 (AP)—Marjorie Wick, 9, told today how a "gray haired man" kidnaped her and held her captive for a week.

Marjorie, back home and apparently unharmed, said John S. Borten, 65, held on a charge of kidnaping her, "told me to forget my father and mother, to call him 'daddy,' but I called him 'hey'."

Detectives found Borten and Marjorie in a rented room at Rochester yesterday. She vanished from her home in Buffalo July 25 after being taken for a bicycle ride by a gray haired man who professed to be a friend of the Wick family.

Police reported Borten told them that a 3 month old daughter had been taken from him nine years ago when his wife was committed to a mental hospital and that he thought Marjorie was his own daughter.

JAIL PREFERRED OVER ALIMONY —AND HE GETS IT

Eric E. Bilgart, 47, president of two manufacturing companies, yesterday was sent to jail for six months by Judge Edwin A. Robson in Superior court when he told the judge he preferred jail to paying alimony to his estranged wife, Mary, 42, of 328 S. Maple av., Oak Park.

Eric E. Bilgart

Bilgart appeared in court with Holland Fla Havhan, his attorney, asking that his wife's pending separate maintenance suit be set aside and that she come back to him. He had been ordered last May 8 to pay her $125 a month temporary alimony.

"This reconciliation proposal is insincere," said Harry X. Cole, Mrs. Bilgart's attorney. "He'd rather live with her than pay alimony. He is $173 behind right now."

Judge Robson directed Bilgart to pay the arrearage and come back in the fall on his petition to dismiss the suit. Bilgart asserted he would not pay. He would rather go to jail, he said. Bilgart is president of the Bilgart Metal Products company, 2419 W. 14th st., and the Mechanical Devices company, 4444 Roosevelt rd.

State's Cigaret Tax Yield $56,204 Over July, 1944

This may baffle the folks who still have trouble finding cigarets, but state cigaret tax collections for July were $56,204 higher than a year ago. Jens Jensen, head of the cigaret tax division of the state revenue department, said yesterday that receipts were $1,095,499 last month, compared with $1,039,295 for July, 1944, when cigarets were easy to get.

FLAT FOOT HANK BACK AT HIS OLD STAND—IN ARMY

Twice Put Out, He's In Again

Fort Belvoir, Va., Aug. 3 (AP)—Twice discharged from the army because of flat feet, Pvt. Henry L. Norris, 23, is back in uniform again—and those arches are just as horizontal as ever.

The drawling North Carolina farm boy gave this chronology today of his experience with army camps, discharge centers, and draft boards:

Back in 1939 and fresh from a civilian conservation corps camp, he enlisted at the age of 17, with his mother's permission.

Discharged in 1940

In 1940, doctors decided army shoes and Pvt. Norris' feet just couldn't get along. So out he went, on a medical discharge.

Norris then went to work in Fayetteville, N. C., married, and settled down to civilian life. Then in August, 1942, his draft board tapped him, despite his protests "to the woman at the draft board, but she said the medics could decide."

They did, a year and ten days later, when Pvt. Norris became Mr. Norris again.

Termed a Job-Jumper

He went back to work, first in a Florida war plant, then to a California job, and after only one day there, back to the Florida plant.

Then he started getting word from his Fayetteville draft board again—"They said I was a job jumper. I wasn't. I just had to look around to find suitable work. But I got tired of their jabber. I didn't want them to put me down for that work-or-fight thing. So I volunteered."

Inducted again in May, 1945, Private-Once-Again Norris and his flat feet drilled for a week, and then he was told to be a cook. But he isn't too happy about that—he wants overseas duty.

Gets Injunction

MRS. MARJORIE ORTON

Mrs. Marjorie Orton, 25, of 4937 Huron st., a bookkeeper, yesterday filed suit for divorce in Circuit court against her husband, LaVerne, 28, a machinist, whom she charged with cruelty. She appeared before Judge Denis Normoyle with Sol R. Friedman, her attorney, and obtained an injunction restraining Orton from entering her home. She told Judge Normoyle that on March 31, when her husband learned she had resumed smoking, he struck her. When she came home Thursday night after being out with a girl friend, she said, her husband spanked her. He weighs 200 pounds and she weighs 100, she said.

FRANCE'S CROPS BIG, BUT FOOD'S SCARCE IN CITIES

BY HAL FOUST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Aug. 3—The jeep ride here from Le Havre is thru a fruitful countryside belying reports that France cannot feed itself. Good crops of wheat and oats are being harvested. Potatoes are being dug. Gardens are giving up green vegetables. Orchards are heavy with apples.

Yet there is no denying that food is scarce and excessively expensive in the large cities. The official explanation is that transportation is lacking. So tons of food are shipped from America, even from California.

The view from the highway may be misleading. Dairy cows are numerous, grazing knee deep in lush clover. The animals are tethered by ropes so that they do not trample their future dinners. They must be led to water, and they bawl when the watering is tardy.

Horses in Tandem

Small grains are cut with mowers and big horses in tandem or with hand scythes. Women and children outnumber men in the fields of a nation where the American army, with hundreds of thousands idle in its own ranks, is hiring French labor to relieve unemployment in the cities.

American farmer boys in our army of unoccupation awaiting deployment or discharge envy the French farmer in one particular. In the fields of potatoes, with the later varieties abloom, there are no potato bugs.

French agriculture has always been a source of wonderment to the GIs—the fond intimacy with aged manure piles just outside the front windows, a big horse hitched with an ox and adopting the pace of the slow motion beast, farm animals and farm families sharing the same building of mortar and stone, sometimes nicked by the bullets of more than two wars.

In Mined Fields

During combat American soldiers were amazed at French women and men plowing within hearing of artillery fire, ignoring the congested military traffic on near-by roads hurrying to and from battle. They even plowed in fields marked by army engineers "Beware of mines."

This devotion to food production, call it preoccupation with self-interest, left French agriculture with little war loss other than the lack of new tools and machinery, a loss also experienced by farmers in America. So the new wonderment of the GIs is why the fruitful countryside, with even the roadside ditches loaded with ripe raspberries, is not able to feed France.

French newspapers have charged their governmental agencies with inefficiency in the distribution of their own food production, but not in getting help from across the Atlantic.

10 Man Military Police Detail to Patrol in Gary

Police Chief Millard T. Matovina of Gary, Ind., said yesterday that 10 military police, in charge of a sergeant, would be detailed to Gary. Six of the MP's will be white men and four will be Negroes, he said. The latter will patrol the extensive central district of Gary, where the Negro population resides. The MP's were assigned from the 6th service command.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 3 (AP)—Hearses and ambulances went off the ration list today.

JUDGE ANCHORS ERRANT SAILOR IN A SAFE PORT

Judge Frank M. Padden in Criminal court found Leonard Heponiemi, 23, Finnish sailor, before him again yesterday and heard more of Leonard's adventures since he jumped ship at Miami Beach, Fla., Aug. 26, 1943.

Judge Padden last Sept. 24 sentenced the sailor to jail for six months and put him on probation for getting drunk, stealing a taxicab and robbing the driver of $4. After his release from jail, it was recounted, Leonard stole another cab, drove it to Pennsylvania, stole an automobile there, got into the army, went AWOL, and returned to Chicago.

Then he was sent to the Bridewell on a disorderly conduct charge and escaped for two minutes by tying seagoing knots in his bedding. It was for this exploit that Leonard was brought to court again. Judge Padden was for deportation, but an agent of the immigration service said that would take eight months, so Judge Padden sent Leonard to the Bridewell for 12 months.

DUMP MILLION TONS OF USELESS NAZI EXPLOSIVES

WITH BRITISH FORCES IN GERMANY, Aug. 3 (AP)—More than a million tons of German explosives, useless for allied weapons, are being dumped into the North sea, British officials said today.

Bombs, torpedoes, mines, shells of various calibers and 4,500 tons of chemical warfare ammunition are coming into Wilhelmshaven from all parts of Germany.

German workers under British supervision are loading obsolete ships with the explosives. The loaded craft are taken into deep water, where there is no danger to navigation, and scuttled.

MAYOR FAVORS AIRPORT ON EACH SIDE OF CHICAGO

Decision on Douglas Field Up to Committee

BY ROBERT HOWARD

Mayor Kelly said yesterday that "an airport on each side of the city would be a good thing," but he withheld, pending a report by a special committee, definite word on whether he favored utilization of the Douglas airport, near Park Ridge, as Chicago's main air terminal of the future.

Final selection of the site will be left entirely to the committee, to be composed of civic leaders and aldermen, which the city council is expected to authorize at its next meeting Aug. 21.

Only Proposed North Site

"I don't want to use my judgment alone in a question of this importance," the mayor told reporters. He added that the committee would give full consideration to the idea of a northwest airport. Of several sites under consideration, the only one northward is the 1,400 acre airport at Higgins and Wolf rds., near Park Ridge, owned by the Douglas Aircraft company.

Chicagoans vitally interested in the city's post-war air supremacy have placed a five year limit on the future of the mile square Chicago airport, at 55th st. and Cicero av. A new $700,000 terminal building there is to be of a temporary nature, in anticipation that the commercial air lines will make another port their main terminal.

Northward Trend a Factor

The city's main business center meanwhile has moved northward and now extends as far as Oak st. This trend has served to increase attention to the possibilities of using the Douglas airport.

A special committee of airways engineers, working with Public Works Commissioner Hewitt, last year reported that the Douglas airport would most efficiently and economically serve the air lines and the flying public.

ASHCRAFT WILL FILED; FAMILY TO GET MILLION

The will of Edwin M. Ashcraft Jr., Chicago lawyer whose home was in Kane county near Wayne, indicates assets of about 1 million dollars in personal property, it was learned yesterday after the will had been filed in Kane county Probate court. Ashcraft's widow, Anna, is to receive a life income, after which the estate will pass to the three children, Navy Lt. Edwin M. Aschcraft III., Mrs. Raymond O. Mitchell, and Mrs. Gerald H. Smith. The trustees are to be the Northern Trust company, Lt. Ashcraft, and Raymond M. Ashcraft, brother of the deceased. Ashcraft died July 24.

Religious News Notes

The Rev. Dr. John W. Behnken, president of the Evangelical Lutheran synod of Missouri, will leave soon for Europe to survey church needs there. He will be accompanied by the Rev. Herman Mayer, Bay City, Mich.; the Rev. Dr. Louis T. Buchheimer, New York City, a member of the board of home missions, and the Rev. Dr. Lawrence Meyer, St. Louis, Mo., executive secretary of the mission department. The synod's recent campaign to raise 5 million dollars for rehabilitation activities was oversubscribed by a million dollars.

Lee Jacobs, minister of First Congregational church, Fort Dodge, Ia., will be guest minister this month in Avalon Park Community church, 8100 Dante av., in the absence of the Rev. Allen Keedy, on vacation in New England.

The 26th annual series of united gospel tent meetings conducted by 14 churches—Methodist, Evangelical Mission Covenant, Baptist, and Free Methodist — on the south side will open at 7:30 p. m tomorrow at 7300 State st. with a rally. The Rev. Bruce Fleming of South Shore Baptist church will preach. The nightly speaker, Tuesday thru Friday, will be the Rev. Edwin Omark, professor of homiletics at Bethel Theological seminary, St. Paul, Minn.

KORMAN TO GIVE GERMAN PICTURE AFTER DEFEAT

Seymour Korman, Chicago Tribune war correspondent who recently returned from the European war fronts, will give an eye witness report of the Nazis' collapse and some personal observations of the first phases of post-war readjustment and reconstruction at 5:45 p. m. today over W-G-N. Korman also will have something to say about the GIs and their reaction to their experiences overseas. Korman covered the campaigns in Africa, Italy, France, Germany, and Austria.

The coast guard is celebrating its 155th anniversary this week-end. To give listeners an idea of the work of the coast guard in the Chicago area, WIND has taken a wire recorder aboard the 83 foot coast guard cutter used as a crash boat and which follows the two carriers on Lake Michigan. Lt. W. A. Dorfmeyer, skipper of the craft, and Chief Jules Friedman, who recently won the silver life saving medal, will be heard at 8:05 o'clock tonight. They will tell about the rescue work of the cutter and its crew.

Lt. Gen. Vandegrift, marine corps commandant, will speak as a guest on the Family Hour over WBBM-CBS at 4 p. m. tomorrow on the third anniversary of the American invasion of Guadalcanal.

W. C. SMITH LEFT $1,664,202, TAX FILING DISCLOSES

The estate of William Clifford Smith, leather goods broker and philanthropist, which was estimated at $250,000 when his will was filed in Probate court, is valued at $1,664,202, an inheritance tax appraisal filed yesterday in County court discloses.

Three Chicago charities inherit the bulk of the estate. The Chicago chapter of the Red Cross and Presbyterian hospital each receive $261,780; the Salvation Army and Alexian Brothers hospital, $196,385 each, and the Visiting Nurses association and the Glenwood Manual Training school, $59,000 each.

Smith's chauffeur, Frank Sturtevant, 45, of 4053 N. Francisco av., who had been with the millionaire for more than 20 years, was bequeathed $100,000. Federal inheritance taxes were listed at $78,867, and state taxes at $73,459. Smith, who lived at 742 Gordon terr., died Aug. 14, 1944, at the age of 74. He was unmarried.

OBITUARIES

Miss Elizabeth W. Murphy

Miss Elizabeth Murphy, 79, of 911 Ainslie st., who was assistant superintendent of Chicago schools under Ella Flagg Young and William McAndrew, died yesterday. She retired as district superintendent in 1930 after 47 years' service in the schools. As Miss Young's assistant Miss Murphy was ousted by the school board in 1915, but was restored when McAndrew became superintendent in 1924. Three years later Miss Murphy was returned to a district superintendency, which she held until she retired. Born in Chicago, she was graduated from the old West Division High school in 1883 and started teaching at once. Before becoming assistant under Miss Young she had been principal of the Moss, Sheldon, Ogden, and Hamilton schools. Three nieces survive. Services will be held at 10 a. m. Monday in St. Thomas of Canterbury church.

Sydney Arnold

LONDON, Aug. 3—Sydney Arnold, also known as Lord Arnold, 67, undersecretary for colonies in the first Labor government in 1924 and paymaster general from 1929 to 1931, died at Hindhead, Surrey, today. He was born in Manchester, the son of a stock broker. An ardent advocate of free trade, he was a close friend of Ramsay MacDonald. His resignation from the party in 1938 was dictated particularly to its manifesto calling for a general election on the question of a proposed British-Italian agreement, the terms of which he maintained would lead in the direction of war.

Mrs. William H. Fisk

Mrs. Clementine Eddy Fisk, 87, of 508 Leonard st., Park Ridge, died yesterday. A member of the Daughters of the American Revolution for 25 years, she also had been active in the Illinois Society of Fine Arts and the Church Home for Aged Persons. She was the daughter of the late Devotion C. Eddy, lawyer who came to Chicago in 1854. Her husband, William H. Fisk, survives. Services will be held at 2:30 p. m. Monday in St. Mary's Episcopal church in Park Ridge.

Mrs. Kate McCreery Clendinen

Services for Mrs. Kate McCreery Clendinen, 83, of 2600 Edina blvd., Zion, who died Thursday in her home, will be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow in the Zion auditorium. She was the widow of W. Hurd Clendinen, for many years general manager of the Zion Industries, mayor of the city for 12 years, and formerly president of the Zion school board. She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Dorothy La Rose, with whom she lived, two grandchildren, and a sister.

Robert W. De Pau

Services for Robert W. De Pau, 63, of Fairfield, Lake county, retired executive of the Illinois Bell Telephone company and former semi-professional baseball player, will be held at 2 p. m. Monday in the chapel at 5301 N. Ashland av. Mr. De Pau, who died Thursday in Highland Park hospital, is survived by his widow, Elizabeth W.; two sons, Robert W. Jr. and Raymond T., and a daughter, Mrs. Dorothy C. Hurdle.

Mrs. Dayle G. Malone

Mrs. Helen Dudley Malone, 41, wife of Dayle G. Malone, vice president of the Petroleum Heat and Power company, died last night in her home at 7337 Merrill av. A graduate of the University of Illinois in 1925, Mrs. Malone formerly was president of the Chicago Alumni chapter of Alpha Gamma Delta. Two sons, Dudley D. and Gerald T., and her father, Ira Dudley, Springfield, Ill., also survive.

Maurice L. Harris

Services for Maurice L. Harris, 62, of 5110 Kenwood av., owner of the Harris commercial art studio at 53 W. Jackson blvd., will be held at 10 a. m. Monday in the chapel at 6935 Stony Island av. He died Thursday night in his home. Before entering art work 25 years ago, Mr. Harris was in vaudeville and later owned one of the early motion picture theaters here. He is survived by his widow, Hattie, and a son, Arnold.

Dr. John C. Ferguson

Clifton Springs, N. Y., Aug. 3 (AP) — Dr. John Calvin Ferguson, 79, founder and first president of Nanking university in China, died today.

Delia Stacey

Twenty-Nine Palms, Cal., Aug. 3 (AP)—Delia Stacey, 74, one time New York stage actress and champion of women's rights, died today.

Wirt Davis

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 3 (AP) — Wirt Davis, 71, chairman of the board of the Republic National bank here since 1934, died today.

BARRETT RULES PASTOR, 17, CAN MARRY COUPLES

A minister regularly ordained need not be of legal age to tie a lawful matrimonial knot, Atty. Gen. Barrett ruled yesterday. His opinion was given in response to an inquiry from State's Atty. Lan Haney of Williamson county, where the Rev. Kenneth Marshall has been ordained at the age of 17.

"In view of the fact that the minister is merely a witness and celebrant, and not one of the contracting parties to the marriage, it would appear that his minority would not preclude him from performing the marriage ceremony," the opinion said.

The young minister is the son of the Rev. Seba Marshall, pastor at Indian Camp and chaplain of the Marion veterans' hospital. Haney said the opinion was desired before the young minister might be called to perform a marriage.

Death of Keeper Mauled by Bear Ruled Accident

A verdict of accidental death was returned by a coroner's jury yesterday at an inquest on Anton Rauch, 59, of 1677 Olive av., a keeper at the Lincoln park zoo who died Thursday in Passavant hospital. Rauch was bitten and mauled by a 500 pound bear last Monday when he entered the cage.

BIKE IN FRONT OF HOME STOLEN

Jack Miller, 1367 Greenleaf av., reported to police yesterday that his bicycle was stolen from in front of his home.

W-G-N TO MARK COAST GUARD'S 155TH BIRTHDAY

The Chicago Theater of the Air will mark the coast guard's 155th anniversary with a salute on the summer hour broadcast over W-G-N, WGNB, and Mutual from 9 to 10 p. m. tonight. Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, will be the speaker. John Mallow will review the coast guard's achievements. The orchestra and chorus, directed by Henry Weber, will present "Coast Guard Forever." Penny Perry, soprano; Bruce Foote, baritone, and Angelo Raffaelli, will be the soloists.

Foote will sing "Non Piu Andrai" from Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro," the "Ranger's Song" from "Rio Rita" by Tierney, and, with Raffaelli, the duet from act I. of Bizet's "Pearl Fishers. Accompanied by the chorus Raffaelli will offer "Berceuse" from Godard's "Jocelyn."

"Giannina Mia" from Friml's "The Firefly" will be sung by Miss Perry and the chorus. The orchestra will play selections from "Music in the Air." The broadcast is to end with a presentation of Victor Herbert's "Irish Rhapsody" by the orchestra and ensemble.

FINED AFTER ARREST ON FIRE ESCAPE

Benjamin Murray, 25, of 632 S. State st., who was arrested Wednesday night on a 14th floor fire escape of the Blackstone hotel, was fined $10 and costs on a charge of loitering yesterday by Judge Charles S. Dougherty in South State street court.

In our hearts a silent sorrow.
JAMES, EMILY, JOSEPH, AND ENSIGN GEORGE, U. S. N, R.

OLSON—Pfc. Bernard Tansey Olson, who gave his life fighting for his country in France one year ago today.
When we think of you the teardrops start,
For you are enshrined within our hearts.
Years may come, and years may go,
But, O, dear Bud, we miss you so.
Memorial grass St. Ignatius' church.
MOM, DAD, BROTHER, SISTER.

SHERRICK—S/Sgt. Edward John Sherrick, U. S. A. A. F., killed in action over Germany Aug. 4, 1944.
A VERY DEAR FRIEND.

WALLACK—Dora Wallack. In loving memory of our dear mother, who passed away a year ago today.
The flowers we place upon your grave
May wither and decay,
But our love for you who sleeps beneath
Will never fade away.
Our hearts will ache with loneliness,
Our eyes shed many tears;
God alone knows how we miss you
As ends this first year.
LOVING CHILDREN, MAYBELLE, LESTER, AND VERA.

W. C. SMITH LEFT $1,664,202, TAX FILING DISCLOSES

The estate of William Clifford Smith, leather goods broker and philanthropist, which was estimated at $250,000 when his will was filed in Probate court, is valued at $1,664,202, an inheritance tax appraisal filed yesterday in County court discloses.

Three Chicago charities inherit the bulk of the estate. The Chicago chapter of the Red Cross and Presbyterian hospital each receive $261,780; the Salvation Army and Alexian Brothers hospital, $196,385 each, and the Visiting Nurses association and the Glenwood Manual Training school, $59,000 each.

Smith's chauffeur, Frank Sturtevant, 45, of 4053 N. Francisco av., who had been with the millionaire for more than 20 years, was bequeathed $100,000. Federal inheritance taxes were listed at $78,867, and state taxes at $73,459. Smith, who lived at 742 Gordon terr., died Aug. 14, 1944, at the age of 74. He was unmarried.

Chicago Golf Club's Members Are in Midst of Busy Season

BY JUDITH CASS

MEMBERS of the Chicago Golf club, while making daily rounds of the golf course, are keeping an interested eye on the progress Mr. and Mrs. William B. Brown are making in the conversion of the former coach house on their property into a summer residence. Mr. and Mrs. Brown, who spend the winters in Mississippi, sold their big Wheaton home but kept the coach house, and it is being remodeled into a "little dream house," according to their neighbors. One of the finishing touches is a terrace which looks out over the course.

Summer time neighbors of the Browns in other homes along the golf course are the David Tabers and the Norris Loves. Mr. and Mrs. John J. Bryant have taken one of the club's cottages for the month of August and will be joining the large and informal groups gathering for the club's famed Thursday night and Sunday noon buffets.

With young men conspicuous by their absence again this summer, there have been no dancing parties at the club, but the members make their own fun around the piano—with Mrs. Donald MacMurray frequently at the keyboard—and in the Casino, a large recreation room, which is a favorite gathering spot.

Much missed this summer around the club is Mrs. William A. Ryan, who is spending the season in Easthampton, N. Y. Mr. Ryan was expected back this week from a holiday there. Their Wheaton home has been leased for the summer to Mr. and Mrs. Edward Robbins.

Absent again this year are Maj. and Mrs. John R. Hurley, whose Wheaton home adjoining the Ryans' is rented while Maj. Hurley is stationed in Washington, D. C. Good news for their friends is that Mrs. Hurley and the children probably will return to occupy their Chicago apartment in September. Mrs. Hurley was in Chicago Thursday with one of her daughters but left yesterday to join their other two daughters and Mrs. Hurley's mother, Mrs. H. Paul Juergens, in Mr. and Mrs. Juergens' summer home in Leland, Mich., until after Labor day. Mrs. Hurley's brother, Richard K. Juergens, and his wife and children are spending the summer in Mrs. Alexander Fletcher's Winnetka house.

Engagement News

Interesting romantic news is being told today by Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell S. Evans of Evanston, who are announcing the engagement of their elder daughter, Anamary, to Newton Lee Compere, son of Mr. and Mrs. Comfort H. Compere, also of Evanston. As Mr. Compere recently was discharged from the marines after two and a half years of service, he has returned to his classes at Northwestern university, at which his fiancée also is a student. Pretty Miss Evans, a graduate of the Roycemore school, is on the board of the Margaret Etter Creche.

Week-End Events

Those Chicagoans who patriotically are staying at home this summer need not complain about nothing to do this week-end. Horse racing at Washington Park, music at Ravinia Park tonight and tomorrow afternoon, tennis matches at the Skokie Country club, a large picnic for Wellesley alumnae, and numerous other events are on the calendar.

Mixed doubles tennis teams from the Onwentsia, the Saddle and Cycle, the Exmoor, the Indian Hill, the Glenview, and the Evanston Country clubs will meet on the courts of the Skokie Country club tomorrow afternoon in a tournament that will provide plenty of fast tennis. It is expected that spectators will fill the Skokie's grandstand. Refreshments will be served at the end of the afternoon.

Former Wellesley students, their children, and present and prospective students will gather at 12:30 p. m. today in the Winnetka home of Mrs. Burton W. Hales for the old fashioned picnic which the Chicago Wellesley club gives every summer. The guests will bring their own luncheons, and the club will provide coffee and soft drinks.

The MacDowell society of Allied Arts will entertain at a garden party from 5 to 7 p. m. tomorrow in the Highland Park home of Mr. and Mrs. Ross J. Beatty.

The Knollwood Country club reports a sell-out for its traditional summer pool party tonight. Colored lights will be strung in the trees overhanging the cabanas around the pool, and a waxed canvas will be spread for dancing at one end of the pool. A buffet supper will be served at 11 p. m.

Parties at Lake Geneva and Delavan Lake, Wis., within easy commuting distance, will provide a week-end in the country for Chicago friends of members of the summer colonies there. The annual farm auction and county fair of the Big Foot Country club in Lake Geneva tonight will attract a large crowd. Mr. and Mrs. William Steinmentz are serving as chairmen of the event. Mr. and Mrs. Burr L. Robbins have taken the Lake Delavan club for a dancing party tonight.

At Party in Winnetka Home for Young Naval Officers from Glenview

Miss Elizabeth Ann Kerber dancing with Ensign Daniel O'Connell at a party recently in the Winnetka home of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Curtis, given for young officers from Glenview naval air station.

Miss Carolyn Kuehnle and Ensign Allen A. Stoddard played ping pong at the party. The gathering was one of a Friday night series Mr. and Mrs. Curtis started in 1942 to entertain officers at Glenview.

Miss Claire Curtis, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis, who was hostess at the party. She will be introduced to society at a tea at home Dec. 23. Miss Kerber and Miss Kuehnle also are debutantes. [TRIBUNE Photos]

One Piece Dress Again Is Given a Big Welcome

BY REA SEEGER

Once again, the simple one-piece dress is back in the fashion spotlight. After weeks of shirtwaists and separate skirts, bolero with sunback dresses, one-piecers are being given a loud welcome. These have what it takes to make the sleek, typically American streamline and that neat, flawless, well groomed look. Because they look so simple and unadorned, especially off the body, they seem unassuming, but when being worn these dresses are the very essence of perfect design, expert detail, and fit.

The wool crepes and soft, clinging wool jersey materials are the most popular and most effective. These fabrics, in subtle neutral shades of beige, gray, and off white or deep ivory, as well as in the vivid high colors of scarlet, carbon-blue, emerald green, and sultry copper, make ideal first fall dresses to wear with the first fall hats and accessories, later with jackets of wool; still later as a foil for fur coats. Their sleeves date them as new, inasmuch as the armholes are much wider and deeper than in former years. This designing has been done by experts, for that wider, looser look is neat, trim, and not exaggerated.

Soft bows at the neckline, glittering buttons, either ball or the flat discs, fancy plastics combining two, three, and sometimes four colors, decorate these fall woolens. Belts are extremely narrow, with sometimes a decisive bit or streak of color achieved with either grosgrain or soft suede used with the leather making the belt. Skirts are soft in outline, with side shirrings still under flat control, or else the fullness is managed by the semi-circular cut of the front panel. The wider long sleeves, the high necklines, and the soft flattering details mark these dresses as new and of fall, 1945, collections.

Thru the Looking Glass

In our mail bag this week we found a letter from the mother of a 17 year old who wondered [1] how she could break her daughter of the distressing habit of incessantly combing her long, shiny locks at any moment and place the fancy struck her, and [2] how she could discourage her additional habit of wearing finger nails overly long and overly stained with fearsome shades of red.

We wish we knew.

Teen agers, we have discovered, are nice little sheep, but they are sheep nevertheless. Individuality is the thing most of them fear most. They like to dress as their "crowd" does, do as its members do, and even use the same stereotyped lingo.

The average 17 year old would rather be dead than without a mane of long, glossy hair—and certainly no one can deny that it's pretty, and that it's the healthiest, best brushed, cleanest hair to be seen on any group of females in the country nowadays. But they do toss it about fearfully, and see nothing unappetizing in the ritual of combing it in public. They're not at all distressed at seeing others of the crowd do it, and can't fathom the fussy fastidiousness of any onlooker who might object. What will reawaken their own sense of fastidiousness we don't know, but we rather suspect that this thoughtless fad will pass, on some great day when the most popular girl in high school announces flatly that SHE thinks it's a dumb thing to do.

The same is true about the nails. It's the school fashion to wear 'em long and blood stained, and until the fashion passes we don't imagine one mother's wail, or the protests of thousands, will have much effect.

The mothers of the teen agers can take hope tho in this: The standards of dress and behavior will be much higher when the "crowd" moves on to college. In the colleges nowadays it's the fashion, thank heaven, to be conservative and to regard the high school hoop-de-do as lamentably infantile. Parents apparently must just sit it out and wait for a good set of fads to replace a bad one. ELEANOR NANGLE

Inquiring Camera Girl

By Maryon Zylstra

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Mrs. A. J. Kane, 603 N. Spring st., Elgin, Ill.]

THE QUESTION

How old do you think a girl should be before she has dates?

WHERE ASKED

Monroe st. and Wabash av.

THE ANSWERS

Margaret Coffey, elevator operator, 6208 S. Green st.—If a girl starts dating when she is younger it gives her more time to learn to know various types of men. I think she should be allowed to go to mixed parties when she is about in the eighth grade and to have dates when 15 or 16, but with an early curfew.

Gerrie Hoffman, student, Rock Island—In a small town where every family knows every other family, I think it's all right for a girl to have dates at an early age—say around 14. She especially should be allowed to go to parties or with boys and girls in a group. I don't think she should go steady until much older.

Robert Vandewalker, pharmacist, 4800 Kenmore av.—I don't think it does a girl any harm to take her education seriously until she's 16 or 17. Then she should go out with boys her own age and not older men. If she's a smart girl and has wise parents, she can learn her etiquet at home and have plenty dates when older.

Nancy Ruff, student, Rock Island—When a girl is a freshman in high school she should be allowed to date at school dances, dinner parties, picnics, and the like. Unless it's a special occasion, like a junior-senior prom, I think she should be home by 11:30 because a girl that age needs sleep.

Charlessa Davis, manicurist, 652 Oakdale av.—Dating depends on the way the girl has been brought up. It doesn't depend upon the girl's age but on her knowledge and ability to use common sense. When a girl proves by her conduct that she is grown up enough to have dates, I think she should be allowed to have them.

Frances Dallio, elevator operator, 259 W. 31st st.—If properly controled, dating early is part of a girl's education. She should learn when she's young to dance, meet people graciously and feel at ease at dinners and parties. When old enough to take romance seriously, she'll have a better chance to make the correct choice.

Lake Geneva Mission School to Open for Its 27th Year Tomorrow

With the opening of the Geneva Summer School of Missions for its 27th season tomorrow, Protestant church missionaries who have worked in Africa and the far east will gather with scores of laymen to tell of their experiences in foreign lands and to discuss problems and plans for the future. The vacation school, located on Conference point in the Williams Bay vicinity in Wisconsin, will be in session thru Sunday, Aug. 12.

Among missionaries attending as faculty members or lecturers will be Dr. Catherine L. Mabie, who was a missionary doctor in the Belgian Congo; Miss Gusta Robinett, from Yanking, China; Miss Lois M. Marsilje, nurse in the Scudder Memorial hospital in Ranipet, India; Miss Selma Bergner, former teacher in the Union Christian College for Women in Tokyo, and the Rev. Mina Malek, who worked in Africa.

Wednesday, guest day, the school will focus especially on the foreign missions. Tables will be placed on the lawns with trophies, costumes, pictures, and other memorabilia brought home from far lands. The traditional Galilean vespers, an evening service on the lake, centering upon the lighting of a cross of candles afloat on the water, will be held that night.

Fifteen denominations participate in the school.

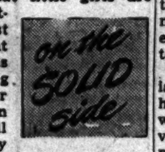
Girl Cautioned Against Giving Boy Ultimatum

BY SHEILA DALY

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Sugar and spice and everything nice, that's what little girls are made of—all little girls. It just happens that some little gals have "everything nice" in larger quantities than others. They all have ordinary hair in varying lengths and colors, but some make the most of it by remembering a hundred strokes a night, frequent shampoos, and attractive styling. They all have at least one or two dresses in their wardrobes— and some achieve that cover girl look with good grooming and a sense of chic. They all have fundamentally the same possibilities for personality but some develop it more than others. And here's a letter from a high school gal who might take time out to analyze herself instead of complaining of the super-personality tactics of other girls. It gives out this way:



"I like a boy named Jim, and I know he likes me. There is a girl I know very well and during school she and I used to meet Jim in the hall every day after the last period class and he walked back to our lockers with us. Because we live near each other, he sometimes walked both of us home. All the way home she talks almost entirely to him, rolls her eyes, and flirts, and Jim plays up to her, too. I've heard from his friends that he likes her alightly even tho I'm still his favorite girl. What should I do? This goes on every time she and Jim see each other. Should I ask Jim to stop it or threaten to break up with him, or shall I tell this so-called friend to stop flirting with him? I'm sure she's doing it intentionally...."

Don't give Jim a "keep your eyes on me or else" ultimatum, and don't let your gal friend know she is annoying you; there's been no harm done so far. You're still Jim's girl. Sometimes flirting is just natural; it comes from good-natured effervescence and a real feeling of friendship. So why not relax a bit and do a bit of bubbling yourself if that's what Jim likes. There's nothing to stop you from laughing and rolling your eyes, is there? You can never stop another gal from being attractive, and you can never stop a boy from liking it. If your friend happens to know more about having fun than you do—more man power to her!

Park Orchestra Again at Best Under Solomon

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG

It was a pleasant reminder of days gone but not forgotten to hear Izler Solomon conduct the Grant Park Symphony orchestra last night in a program of music as interesting as it was unhackneyed. And it was a pleasant outlook for days to come to make the acquaintance of his soloist, the new and excellent young baritone, Robert Merrill. Together these two up and comers provided an evening that was never dull and that rose to moments of real excitement.

Mr. Solomon is never better on the conductor's stand than when he is touched with missionary enthusiasm for music that is good and deserves to be familiar. His opening number, the so-called "Amaryllis" suit of Handel dance movements was new only in the form in which Sir Thomas Beecham cast it for public performance. But the wonderful freshness of Handel's inspiration made it seem as novel as anything off this morning's press and tho the conductor read it with becoming strictness the performance had a lightness and buoyancy that comes into music only when an orchestra is being intelligently led in a score it likes to play.

Tikhon Khrennikoff's Symphony, Opus 4, was not exactly a novelty either, since Mr. Solomon had given it its second American performance and its first one here with the Illinois Symphony. The work, especially in the enthusiastic and well considered performance of last night, holds up far better than most contemporary scores. It pays to Shostakovich the sincerest of flatteries, yet it has a definite validity of its own, often making the familiar idiom seem as if it were of a time rather than of a man. The first and second movements have the concision and economy of their model; the final section tends to top heaviness and in the interests of audience attention might be subjected to judicious pruning.

William Grant Still's "In Memoriam," dedicated to the Negroes who have fallen in democracy's battle, was entirely new. As sensitively unveiled by Mr. Solomon, it sings with naive lyricism over martial rhythms, sustaining the interest without quite achieving full effectiveness.

The evening's soloist, Robert Merrill, proved to be another good argument for calling this the age of baritones. He is easily one of the best of the new crop, with a dark colored voice of remarkable resonance and an engaging flair for hitting an audience between the eyes. Valentine's aria from "Faust" was only good, but the humor and vocal virtuosity of "largo al factotum" from "The Barber" was very nearly tops. His good score continued with his second group of songs and as we reluctantly departed he was on the third encore demanded by an audience jarred out of its customary lethargy.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Bright Eyes

If you think that persons who handle checks and collections do not need extra bright eyes, you haven't heard about the La Grange lady who put her wedding ring in a nice safe place—in an envelope—and then mailed the envelope with her bill to Marshall Field & Co. Or you haven't heard of the other resourceful housewife who tucked two $100 bills into an envelope containing a merchandise certificate. The ring, and the bills, were recovered thru the watchfulness of employes.

But especially bright were the eyes of a white collar girl who found a priceless heirloom in a business letter recently, returned it to the family, and received a generous reward. The heirloom was Junior's carefully preserved baby tooth!

Perhaps some of the WCGs could tell me who they were: The tall, blond soldier wearing many overseas bars with six gold bars on his sleeve and his dark haired bride wearing a white eyelet dress, white hat, and a corsage of red and white roses. Week-End Clearance

Did you know a Minneapolis gentleman received a reward on behalf of other husbands — three service stripes — for "putting up with hastily prepared meals, unironed shirts, and missing buttons" while his wife worked in a hospital? His service pin represented "1,000 hours of generosity in sharing his wife." . . . Some of the offices are frowning on leg make-up for the gals. The reason: It rubs off on chair legs and subsequently on the men's light summer suits. . . . Chicago models have formed a club with rooms where the girls can hold clinics and talk over things pertaining to their profession. . . . Few people realize how important are the needle and thread in airplane building. An interesting article in the Douglas Airview says there is more sewing on planes than ever before, despite the fact that metal is supposed to have replaced wood and fabric.

'This Nettle Danger' . . . . . By William MacLeod Raine

(Copyright, 1945, By William MacLeod Raine)

STORY: As the homesteaders' attempt to cut wires used by the cattlemen to fence in government land for their herds, Bruce Sherrill, leader of the homesteaders, is wounded. Bruce shot Ben Randall, son of old Jeff Randall, owner of the Diamond Tail ranch. Bruce is not a killer but had to protect his own side. He knows he was recognized and must make a getaway. Trapped, he rides to the ranch of Cliff Applegate, his chief enemy and brother-in-law of Jeff Randall. Linda Applegate hides him from the posse headed by Bill Cairns. While Cairns' men search the ranch buildings Cairns remains with Linda and becomes insulting. Rod Randall, older half-brother of Ben, arrives opportunely and warns Cairns never again to annoy Linda. Linda dresses Bruce's wound and hides him in her bedroom upstairs. When her father and brothers return the latter says Ben was shot in a fight—not ambushed. She admits hiding Bruce from Cairns because he is wounded and insists they give him shelter until he is able to travel, then they may turn him over to the law. In yielding to her demands, Cliff Applegate feels they are betraying their friends. Linda quarrels with Bruce when he accuses the cattlemen of trampling down the homesteaders, and during the night he slips away. Then Linda and her father ride to the Diamond Tail to tell Jeff Randall what they have done. Linda wonders if the homesteaders have a just claim. Jeff and Cliff quarrel bitterly. Bruce reports to the sheriff who releases him on bond. He suspects Black of being a spy for the cattlemen. Pete Engle's house is burned. An attempt to destroy Bruce's house is unsuccessful but his fences are cut. He borrows $500 and boards a train for Washington. Cliff and Linda visit Sheriff Humphreys and his wife and tell them they are considered traitors and double-crossers.

INSTALMENT XII

A SEARCH

"It isn't because the nesters voted for Tim we feel sorry for them," Jessie interrupted. "You ought to be fair, Linda."

"I know it isn't, Jessie. You and Tim are the salt of the earth. Sometimes I get all mixed up about these homesteaders myself, especially lately. They are awfly poor, some of them, and they have families. But we were here first, and if they had a lick of sense they would see this is grazing land, except some pockets along the creeks maybe."

"I think Bruce feels a sort of responsibility for them, even tho he isn't a farmer himself," Jessie said.

"What did he come here for—to give himself up?"

"He wanted it understood he wasn't an outlaw. If the law wanted him, here he was. But Tim felt there was no sense in putting him in jail. It was easy enough to get some one to go bail for him."

"Where is he now?"

"We don't know. He didn't tell us where he was going. He rented a horse from Matt Zang and disappeared three days ago."

"I suppose he has gone back to his ranch to make more trouble."

After supper Tim and Cliff sat on the porch and smoked. Soon after the women joined them. A squat, ungainly figure shuffled up the path to the house. The visitor was Jeff Randall.

"Quite a bunch of Mr. Sherrill's friends present," he jeered.

The sheriff ignored that. He rose. "I'll bring out another chair, Mr. Randall," he said.

"Not for me. I don't belong here. I'm just one of those cowmen you were elected to fight, Humphreys. I wouldn't expect any justice from a nesters' sheriff, and I'm not one of the kind of cattlemen who sit around and chin with fellows trying to ruin the country."

The sheriff's voice was carefully amiable. "Now you have that off your chest, Mr. Randall, I'll be glad to hear what I can do for you."

"You can tell me where that skunk you turned loose is holed up."

"Meaning Sherrill, I reckon."

"Meaning Sherrill. The guest you had staying with you while you were fixing it with Lanigan to free him."

"He left here Friday evening. I haven't seen him since."

"When he left town he was riding Prop Zang's gray."

"Was he?"

"You know right well he was. Where did he go?"

"I don't know.

"I wouldn't be surprised if he had come back and was in this house right now."

"He isn't here, Uncle Jeff," Linda said.

Randall glared at her. "Do I have to believe you—after you hid him from me for several days?"

"You don't have to believe any of us," the sheriff said firmly. "I'm sorry you feel so hostile, but there is nothing I can do about that."

Cliff had had about enough of his brother-in-law's domineering ways. "What are you beefing about, Jeff? Tim hasn't got Sherrill tucked away in his pocket. You sent him word you could take care of the fellow without any official help."

"So I could of, if you hadn't thrown down on me and hidden the scoundrel. If he ever gets where I can throw a gun on him, I'll blast the life out of the scalawag, even if he is yore friend."

"That's wild talk," Humphreys said. "I hear Ben is getting along fine. Sherrill is under bond to appear here if the law wants him. After all, the Pitchfork boys wounded two of the other side. Doesn't that make it even?"

"The nesters were cutting a Pitchfork fence, weren't they?" Randall snarled. "If they had all been shot into rag dolls they wouldn't have any just complaint."

"Pete Engle's house was burned the other day. Haystacks have been fired. This can't go on. There is law in this country."

"If you're claiming I fired Engle's house, you're a liar, Humphreys," Randell flung out harshly. He lumbered down the path, slamming the gate behind him.

A rueful smile creased the lips of Applegate. "He always was bull-headed and cantankerous," Cliff remarked. "But I'm with him in most of what he claims."

Ramrod Spindler, in charge of the the Quartercircle D C during the absence of Bruce Sherrill, did not take his responsibilities lightly. He and the boys under him had repelled the attack on the ranch house made one dark night but they had not been able to prevent the firing of two haystacks and the cutting of the wire fence. Cattle had strayed, and Ramrod had not felt it safe to let Neal and Mark ride the range except together and armed with rifles. He was not so worried about Bruce, since he had received the letter from Denver telling him to have one of the boys meet him at Redrock when the stage arrived on the 17th.

What Bruce was doing at Denver Ramrod could not guess. The old cowhand had been afraid that his employer had been dryguleched in the hills. Sherrill was so vitally alive it was hard to think of all that energy stilled forever. Still, the coming of the letter had been a comfort.

He decided to go to Redrock himself to meet Sherrill. Neal and Mark were topnotch boys, but the weight of years had not quelled their carelessness. It was his job to keep Bruce alive if possible, and he was not going to delegate the task.

Ramrod started before daylight and reached town in the middle of the afternoon. Redrock was a cowtown. It had been laid out by a Texan who had come up the Chisholm trail and pushed his longhorns thru Colorado to Wyoming.

The foreman of the Quartercircle D C tied at a rack in front of Doan & Devon's general store. He stepped on the sidewalk, rifle in hand. Since he had no other place to keep it, his idea was to ask permission to leave it back of the counter for an hour or two.

Bill Cairns and Wally Jelks were standing in the doorway talking with a Diamond Tail rider known as Quint Milroy. Cairns stopped, to watch Spindler as he came forward.

"I see you've turned into a two-gun man, Ramrod," he jeered. "Taking after yore boss, I reckon." His gaze shuttled from the rifle to the revolver in the Quartermaster D C man's belt and back again.

"A three-gun man," Jelks corrected. "I'll be doggoned if he hasn't got a Winchester cased beside the saddle, too."

Ramrod shifted the rifle to his left hand casually, to wipe the perspiration from his face with a handkerchief. His guess was that the big bully was merely needling him.

"A regular walking arsenal," Cairns prodded. "A sure enough wolf on the prowl. His night to howl, I expect, Quint."

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 3—Judy Canova landed in "Breakfast in Hollywood," Tom Breneman's first film, with an all-star cast. Here's the roundabout way she got it! Judy had only an hour for a noontime snack, found every lunch place jammed, so her friend suggested Tom Breneman could get them a table at his place. Tom did, met Judy for the first time, gave a double take, said, "You're the very one for my picture," and worked out a deal with Judy right over the blue plate. "Breakfast in Hollywood" is a John Golden production to be made at United Artists, and Eddie Ryan and Bonita Granville will play the romantic leads. . . . Gladys Cooper, back from England, is cast for a spot in Metro's "The Green Years." Gladys went home in May to see her son and daughter; traveled by convoy. It was a two weeks' crossing. The return trip by plane took just 24 hours. . . . Arlene Francis may be off to England before your next set of ration stamps comes good. Dinky Beaumont, English producer, is paging Arlene for a role in his original story by Martha Gelhorn which is based on her experiences in Europe as a war correspondent. Well, Mrs. Ernest Hemingway certainly hit enough fronts to write a thriller. Constance Cummings, already set in the play, asked Beaumont to get her pal Arlene for one of the roles.

Celebrations Are in Order

Congratulations to the coast guard on its 155th anniversary! . . . There are fewer years involved in Lucille Ball's celebration Sunday. It's a birthday party at her Chatsworth home, Desilu, and she's invited a service man for every guest, making 80 in all. Lionel Barrymore will make his annual appearance—he went to Lucille's party last year; has done no other since. . . . When Clark Gable offered Keenan Wynn $3,500 for the slick roadster he was driving the other day, Keenan said, "No soap. Too much of my sweat, blood, and tears have gone into the making." Keenan bought a jalopy for $500, worked over the engine himself, and gave it a fancy paint job. . . . Lina Romay, who began her career as a canary in Xavier Cugat's band, gets her first dramatic part in "This Strange Adventure" with Gable and Green Garson. Lina knows it'll be a lucky go, because she gets her first screen kiss from Clark Gable. That's luck any way you look at it!

This Servant Problem

If Ben Bogeaus wants some technical advice on the domestic situation for his "Diary of a Chambermaid" he can get it first hand from Judith Anderson, who's in the picture. Judith recently hired a couple—cook and butler—and gave them her guest room for their living quarters. Couple moved in so much stuff Judith became suspicious. Suspicion deepened when they locked the door of the guest house, told her they'd be back shortly, then faded from the scene. Judith called the police. When they opened the servants' quarters they found all the loot which had been stolen from Barron Polan's house. . . . "Tars and Spars" got a slick launching with Alfred E. Green at the helm. I watched the first day's work. Anita [One Touch of Venus] Alvares certainly can dance. Marc Platt is another who'll give you a lift. Jeff Donnell finished early—she was off to get a few moments with her husband, S/2C Bill Anderson, who was passing thru town. Jeff wanted to wear the uniform she sports in the picture, because she'd then outrank the better half and he'd have to salute her—but that's agin' the law.

The Solid South

The Memphis board of censors rode into the limelight when it banned "Brewster's Millions" because of the part Rochester had in it. Now the board's at it again. It's nixed "The Southerner" because, it says, the picture's not a correct depiction of the south. Since the Daughters of the Confederacy gave the picture their full indorsement in Atlanta, Ga., David Loew's appealing the decision. . . . When Ann Sheridan heard that her friend Martha Giddings, wardrobe girl at Warners, lost her husband in the service she made a typical gesture. Ann called her friend from New York, told her to buy herself a snazzy wardrobe, and make ready to go east by plane for a vacation in New York and Connecticut. Ticket arrived by air mail.

Everybody Wants in the Act

About a year ago Barbara Stanwyck tried to buy a spirited riding horse from a man who lived in the valley, but the fellow wouldn't sell. Yesterday Barbara played a sequence in "The Bride Wore Boots," in which she's gifted with a horse. When the animal was led onto the sound stage it turned out to be the one Barbara had tried to buy. She walked over to him, rubbed his nose, said, "Why didn't you tell me you wanted to be an actor?" . . . Marshall Thompson, who likes to be a Western actor and plays lead in "Bad Bascomb," met up with a runaway team of oxen in a way not indicated in the script. The panicky animals were headed for Margaret O'Brien's tent on the location set when Thompson headed them off. When the company crowded about to congratulate him, he said, "Be as grateful to the guys who are out stopping tanks."

I guess I'm going to have to change my mind about cider vinegar for pickling. For years many authorities have recommended it, for the sake of flavor in pickles. Now a big pickle maker and vinegar manufacturer tells me that distilled white vinegar has been proved better for keeping the natural color and flavor of the fruits and vegetables pickled in it. Experimental research in foods is always turning up some new idea to make us homemakers revise our ways of doing.

Don't use ordinary strength tea or coffee for the iced beverage. Make it double strength to accommodate those fast melting ice cubes. And don't use left-over tea or coffee or a brew that has stood for long, or results will disappoint you. The juice of a couple of the 1945 golf ball sized oranges will add interest to a tall glass of iced tea. Fruit flavor and coffee don't mix, but ice cream or cocoa and coffee, do. Top a glass of iced coffee with a small ball of vanilla or chocolate ice cream, or mix chilled cocoa and iced coffee half and half.

Fresh fruit is about the best topper for a dish of ice cream, but there are times when a sirup is good. Coffee sirup is delicious. Make it by adding ⅛ cup sugar to 1¼ cups boiling water, bringing to a boil, then adding 1 cup finely ground coffee. Don't let the coffee boil. Remove the pan from heat and let stand covered 15 minutes. Strain and store in a covered jar in the refrigerator to use as needed. This sirup also is good on baked custard.

Maybe you'd like to barbecue the next broiler you get your hands upon. Here's hoping the occasion may be soon! This is the way it's done. Split the broiler down the back to serve two persons. For four, cut each half in two so that somebody gets the drumstick, someone else the wing and breast section. Place the chicken in a baking pan and brush over with hot barbecue sauce. Cover and bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, until meat is half tender, about half an hour. Uncover and continue baking, basting occasionally with more barbecue sauce, until the chicken is tender and browned. Total cooking time may be an hour or longer, depending upon size of broiler.

To make the sauce, blend 1 chopped onion, 1 cup tomato puree or catsup, ⅓ cup margarine, ½ cup hot water, ¼ cup lemon juice, 1 tablespoon worcestershire sauce, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon sugar or honey. Heat to boiling.

Kitchen Pointers

By Mary Meade

"Does gelatin lose its stiffening power with time?"

Not as long as it's kept dry.

"Last year I processed green beans for three hours in a boiling water bath, and they were overdone. This year I plan to process them only 2½ hours. Is that long enough? Is it impossible to can green beans to taste like fresh cooked?"

First, since green beans are non-acid, it is not safe to can them in a boiling water bath. They should be processed in a pressure cooker at 10 pounds pressure, 40 minutes for quarts, 30 minutes for pints. Second, the long period of cooking in the boiling water bath naturally causes the beans to become too soft. Properly processed in the pressure cooker, green beans more nearly approach the fresh cooked beans.

"Can the glass coffee jars recommended for canning be used in the pressure cooker?"

It is safest to use them only for fruits, to be processed in a boiling water bath, and for pickles and relishes. The pressure in the cooker might cause the jars to crack, since some of them haven't been tempered to withstand high heat.

"We're lucky enough to have two large chickens which we can't eat immediately. Can I cook them, put in quart jars and seal, and save for future use?"

No. Even processing the chicken all night in a boiling water bath, as some women do, is not sufficient. Poultry is satisfactorily canned only in a pressure cooker, processed at 15 pounds pressure, 75 minutes for quarts, 65 minutes for pints, for chicken with bone. For boned chicken, process 120 minutes for quarts, 85 minutes for pints.

Apron Economy

These days the clever housewife has more aprons than she has dresses in her wardrobe. Pattern No. 2950 offers three apron styles which may be made with or without a bib. Each requires only 1 yard of 35 inch material. Combining print and plain materials from the scrap bag, one can create an apron for only the cost of the braid trimming.

Order Clotilde patterns from Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex, NEW YORK CITY. Print name and address; state size. Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing. The summer fashion book, on sale at Tribune Public Service offices, is 15 cents; 18 cents if ordered by mail with a pattern.

Movie Strong in Music but Weak in Plot

"OUT OF THIS WORLD"

By Mae Tinée

Another ribbing of the Sinatra-swoon soxers, etc., situation, this comedy is strong in the music division and a little weak in the plot department.

Eddie Bracken plays another hapless small town boy, this time the victim of wimmin of all sorts and ages. Diana Lynn, leader of an all-girl orchestra suffering from an acute shortage of engagements, needs his voice in order to get a radio contract for her hungry band. She gives him a contract, but carelessly sells 125 per cent of him in order to pay her hotel bill.

Veronica Lake is a villain for most of the piece, staging swoons for commercial reasons, threatening the stockholders, and generally behaving like Mrs. Shylock. The climax comes when one faction threatens to sue if he sings, another if he doesn't, and a busy time is had by all.

There's plenty of jive, Bing Crosby's voice pops out of Mr. Bracken at the right moments, Cass Daley clowns gayly thru a couple of numbers, and no less than five band leader pianists are propelled out on a stage, each carefully labeled by small signs, in addition to having his name carefully lettered on his instrument. Miss Lynn is a pretty and ladylike orchestra director and can also play the "Minute Waltz" in 60 seconds flat, with a clock to prove it.

It's all light, but likable, and the four little Crosby offspring are on view for just a moment or two. They take it all pretty calmly and seem to have plenty of papa's savoir-faire.

Paris Fashions Elegant Gown for Bridesmaid

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Aug. 3—French girls love grand doings, magnificent receptions, and all the pomp, swank, and swagger accompanying a big Parisian wedding.

Bridesmaids do not mind looking demure, if at the same time they are "tres distinguees." This season they are choosing glowing haute couture gowns for elegant out-of-door weddings.

Lustrous yellow ochre taffeta forms the billowing skirt of a puffed sleeved formal created by Paquin. Beautifully made roses in the same material encircle the waist and skirt like ruching.

Jacques Fath thinks tulle is as necessary to a wedding as champagne, flowers, and pretty young faces. He uses lots of it to design a sparkling bridesmaid's dress in luscious pink sprayed with tiny rhinestones from the caped bodice to the airy transparent skirt worn over a gentian blue slip.

Svelte drapery of exquisite white lace encircles the hips of Lucien Lelong's latest creation for bridesmaids. The corset-tight waist is of peach satin embroidered with glowing pearls.

Fashion Flashes: Lancel displays carved lacquered pillars supplied with adjustable, indirect lighting apparatus and matched with oblong coffee tables in such surprising tints as platinum blond, postoffice red, and bishop's purple. . . . Villamor creates a fascinating coiffure for the Princess Amedee de Broglie whose hair is braided across the top and at the nape with four glossy horizontal curls covering the ears. . . . Marcel Rochas designs an eye turning brocaded lamé evening jacket styled like a man's full dress suit with the tails shortened.

Vacation Trip Often Affects Baby's Health

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"A young baby is better off at home" is a comment often made when parents talk of getting their tiny son or daughter off to a cooler place in the country or at the seashore. And unless the place to which you are going is pretty nearly ideal, I agree.

To be sure, if you have a cottage somewhere or can live comfortably in a place that will be yours for a while, and can transport yourselves and the baby's paraphernalia by car, that's another story. And paraphernalia, by the way, tho it has a number of syllables, is too short a word to describe the hundred and one things it is necessary to transport to make a baby comfortable and to attend to his foods properly in a strange place.

Still, if you have made up your mind to spend some time at a vacation resort with your baby, try while away to keep him as much on his regular routine and regular foods as is humanly possible. Don't experiment with, for instance, cow's milk in his formula if you've previously used only evaporated milk. If he is drinking cow's milk regularly, patronize a good dairy rather than some local fresh milk you know nothing about.

Boil thoroly every drop of water he drinks.

If he's an older baby and past the age when everything is sterilized for him [tho you will boil strange water] and if he is crawling around, be watchful of where you let him crawl. Don't give him little "nips" of strange foods just to "keep him quiet."

Avoid too much excitement and preserve his rest.

1,000 TELEPHONE OPERATORS BOLT INTO NEW UNION

Begin Drive Today to Win Bargaining Right

More than 1,000 Chicago telephone operators have dropped membership in the Chicago Telephone Traffic union and have formed a new organization, the United Telephone Workers' union, Miss Catherine Brophy, chairman of the new union's organization committee, announced yesterday.

The C. T. T. U. has bargained for the 7,700 Chicago operators of the Illinois Bell Telephone company for the last 10 years. Before the mass withdrawal of operators, it claimed 5,200 members.

Membership Drive Begins

The U. T. W. U. was formed July 27, when a group of 400 C. T. T. U. members withdrew, charging coercion had been used in an attempt to keep them in the C. T. T. U. when they sought to quit under a 15 day provision of a war labor board directive. The new union has offices at 308 W. Washington st.

The U. T. W. U. will begin a drive for members today, Miss Brophy announced. She charged the old union operates in a "haphazard, inefficient, and unbusinesslike manner," and "lacks democratic principles."

Three Unions' Hearings Set

Three other telephone unions will air grievances and disputes over wages later this month in Chicago before the war labor board's national telephone commission, Edwin R. Hackett, attorney for these unions, announced.

The hearings: Aug. 13, Illinois Union of Telephone Workers, on time and half for work exceeding 40 hours a week for 130 engineers, right of way agents, and representatives; Aug. 14 and 15, Illinois Traffic union, on $6 a week raises for 5,700 downstate operators and 1,800 Chicago toll operators, and Aug. 16 and 17, Federation of Telephone Clerks of Illinois, on $8 a week raise for 1,800 accounting clerks in Chicago and 200 in Springfield.

ROADSIDE BODY CLEW TO CICERO GAMBLER'S FATE

Exhumation of a body buried Thursday when it was found south of Crystal Lake, McHenry county, was ordered yesterday on the possibility it may have been that of Mike [Little Mike] Favia, 41, a Cicero gambler who disappeared July 16.

The request was made by his wife, Vern, 4827 Cermak rd., Cicero, after she conferred with Lake county authorities. Her description of Favia was similar to that of the body found in a clump of burdock 10 yards from a gravel road. Clad only in a shirt, underwear, and dark socks, the body had been there several weeks.

Favia's automobile was found abandoned with a flat tire in the parking lot of George Fritzel's lodge, a roadhouse south of Crystal Lake on Route 14, early on July 16 after an employe of the place had robbed it of $2,900. The roadhouse is about two miles from where the body was found.

STOCKPILE LOW; CHILDREN TO PEP UP PAPER DRIVE

The summer playground paper salvage campaign will enter its final phase on Monday with supplies at the waste paper consuming mills at their lowest point of the summer, William H. Bennett, chairman, said yesterday.

Latest figures from the midwestern mills show only 22,000 tons of paper in stockpiles and waste paper receipts at the mills only 1 per cent greater than the rate at which the paper is reprocessed.

The public schools will open next month with no paper towels, no foolscap, a six months' supply of arithmetic paper, no mimeograph paper or newsprint, a small supply of drawing paper, and a two months' supply of tissue paper.

Six hundred seventy-eight tons of paper had been collected at the playgrounds by last Tuesday. Collections of 200 tons a week are expected this week and each week during the final drive.

TUOHY REVEALS QUIZ OF THREE ON VAULT JURY

State's Atty. Tuohy yesterday made public the transcript of his questioning of the three jurors, two of them women, who were reported influential in swinging the verdict that acquitted Willie Niemoth and Patrick Flaherty of the 2 million dollar looting of the E. H. Rumbold safety vaults, 634 W. 119th st., last Jan. 19.

Tuohy said his questioning did not disclose any evidence of bribery or coercion among the jurors.

The three whose stories were disclosed are William Peller, 2867 Shakespeare av.; Mrs. Bea Murray, 9821 S. California av., Evergreen Park, and Mrs. Eleanor Lukes, 81 Lincoln av., Riverside.

SENATORS MAKE NEW DEMAND TO CUT ARMY'S SIZE

BY WILLIAM MOORE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 3—Congressional demands that the army release men it does not need for the Japanese war increased today in spite of the insistence of War Secretary Stimson that he needs a minimum of seven million men.

Sen. Taft [R., O.], commenting on Stimson's estimate of men needed, told reporters five and a half million is the maximum required for all purposes during the remainder of the war.

"Prevents Reconversion"

Sen. Johnson [D., Colo.], who has demanded that the army release excess troops to meet the needs of civilian economy, said in reply to Stimson's statement: "The army has no need for anything like seven million men."

He said army hoarding of man power prevents reconversion of American industry to meet the nation's requirements. On the one hand, Johnson told reporters, retaining an oversize army means an unnecessary drain on housing, clothing and other supplies, food, and transportation. On the other, it keeps veterans from taking jobs thru which greater production could be achieved.

Defends War Department

While other members of the senate and house are planning to take the army situation to President Truman as soon as he returns from Europe, Johnson refused to wait. He arranged a meeting at which he will lay the problem in the lap of War Mobilizer Snyder tomorrow.

Johnson is a leading Democratic member of the senate military affairs committee.

Chairman Thomas [D., Utah] of this committee sought to defend the war department and the Democratic leadership today.

"It is time we stopped fooling around with the size of the army," he told reporters.

Find Body Believed to Be That of Maj. Southworth

New York, Aug. 3 (AP)—The decomposed body of a man, believed by harbor police to be that of Maj. William B. Southworth Jr., was found today at the confluence of the East river and Long Island sound. Southworth was the pilot of a B-29 that crashed into Flushing Bay Feb. 15. He was the son of the St. Louis Cardinals' manager.

DAY by DAY on the FARM by BEN MARKLAND

August 3, 1945

OPPORTUNITY to settle a friendly argument between the managers of the Wheaton and Fox River farms will come this fall when it's time to open the silos and start feeding hay ensilage.

The manager of the Wheaton farm ensiled alfalfa in the standard way, with molasses pumped into the silo at the rate of 100 pounds to each ton of hay. With molasses scarce and expensive, the men on the Fox River farm decided to use ground ear corn as a substitute for molasses in putting up their hay silage.

Red Clover and Corn

On the Fox River farm the men used red clover instead of alfalfa in their ensilage experiment. They stored 70 tons of the chopped hay in one of the small silos, adding 225 pounds of ground ear corn to each ton of clover. Molasses is commonly used as an addition to hay ensilage; both molasses and ground corn increase the protein content of the feed and hasten the fermentation process.

This is the first year that the men on the Fox River farm have put up hay ensilage in any form. Their decision to try ground ear corn as a molasses substitute is based on the experience of a neighboring farmer who has used both ingredients in silage. His experience indicates that there is little difference in the keeping quality or protein content of the silage when corn is used instead of molasses, but corn is the cheaper.

Palates to Decide

The main dispute between the farm managers concerns the palatability of the two types of ensilage, with the Wheaton manager believing the molasses better in this respect. The dispute will be settled when the two types of feed are put before the cattle.

There is some mystery connected with the death of a Hereford steer this week on the Fox River farm. It was the first loss of this type in more than six years. Two of the steers were sick, but one recovered. They were with a herd in a bluegrass pasture, and were being given regular feedings of ground ear corn.

The men believe the two steers may have eaten too much of the grain before drinking heavily from a near-by stream, with the 90 degree temperature an additional factor. The only other possible cause of the sickness would be poisonous weeds, and the men have examined the pastures closely and found no snakeroot, water hemlock, or other poisonous growths.

★ The GARDEN ★

CONTINUED applications of rotenone, either dust or spray, provides the only method of combating European corn borers, which are in almost every garden and cornfield this season. This insecticide, directed into the tassels and leaf joints, helps control newly hatched borers; however, it has no effect on the insects that already have entered the stalks.

The second major brood of borers probably will start hatching in northern Illinois between Aug. 15 and Aug. 20, say entomologists of the Illinois natural history survey.

Therefore, remember to dust or spray rotenone into sweet corn at that time. From eggs deposited on leaves of the tallest plants the new borers will have to pass over the rotenone to reach the stalk. It is important to apply the insecticide in the leaf joints at least every five days between Aug. 15 and early September.

TWO WAR WIVES UNDER INQUIRY FOR ADULTERY

Investigation was begun yesterday by State's Atty. Tuohy's office into adultery charges made by a soldier and a sailor in divorce actions against their wives. Both husbands are now serving overseas.

The investigation was undertaken by Assistant State's Atty. George B. Duggan, acting in behalf of another assistant, Collins Fitzpatrick, who was designated by Tuohy to direct Tuohy's campaign to prosecute war wives accused of adultery.

Both divorce actions came before Judge Edwin A. Robson in Superior court. Judge Robson granted a divorce to Pvt. Robert F. Weilbacher, 24, now on Luzon Island, Philippines, from his wife, Lucille, 23, of 4420 Fulton st.

The sailor, Coxswain Harold Zanko, 1163 S. Humphrey av., Oak Park, got a divorce from his wife, Audrey, 22, a former WAC.

Tuohy said that under Illinois law adultery is not a felony but a misdemeanor and that prosecution is a matter for Municipal courts.

DROWNS IN PARK LAKE

Greenville, Ill., Aug. 3 [AP]—Mrs. Arlene Rench, 24, drowned today while swimming in a lake in Greenville City park.

U. S. AGENCIES UNITE FOR WAR ON BLACK MART

Woll Pledges Drive on All Violators

United States District Atty. J. Albert Woll conferred yesterday with 25 local representatives of federal law enforcing agencies and predicted increased efforts to stop black markets by prosecuting all operators —big and little.

Woll said the meeting was "fruitful," and described himself as satisfied with the discussion of undivulged plans to stop violations of price and rationing laws.

Treasury Agents Present

One of those who met in Woll's office was A. P. Madden, head of the intelligence unit of the treasury department, which was reported to be overworked already with investigations of income tax returns of men who have made big killings in the black market.

Others present included E. C. Yellowley, district supervisor of the treasury's alcohol tax unit; Rae E. Walters, James Riley, Homer C. Clay, L. D. Edwards, and Francis Zimmerman, office of price administration; James R. Bryant, war production board; James A. Doyle, department of agriculture; Capt. Thomas J. Callaghan, secret service, and William H. McDonnell, United States marshal.

United Front Disclosed

"One thing is certain—all federal agencies are now united in one front to combat the black market operators," Woll said.

The federal officials were urged to call at any time on three assistant prosecutors, all World War II. veterans, whose only assignment is to handle the black market drive. They are Raymond L. McClory, Hugo Sonenschein Jr., and Bernard H. Sokol.

GASOLINE STATION LOOTED

Theft of automobile accessories worth $826, ration coupons for 2,057 gallons of gasoline, and $35 from his filling station at 4701 Dorchester av. was reported to police yesterday by Samuel A. Bell, 1030 Hyde Park blvd.

APPEALS COURT UPSETS $360,000 FILM JUDGMENT

A jury in the federal District court of Judge Michael L. Igoe decided rightly that the film booking system of major motion picture companies in the Chicago area constitutes discrimination against the smaller theaters, the United States Circuit Court of Appeals ruled yesterday.

But when the jury assessed treble damages of $360,000 against nine of the companies, it acted without sufficient evidence on which to determine the amount of the damages, and therefore its verdict is void, the appellate court held in reversing the judgment.

Plaintiffs in the suit were the owners of the Jackson Park theater. At the office of their attorney, Thomas C. McConnell, it was said that while McConnell had not had an opportunity to read the appellate court's decision, it probably will be appealed.

SOX WIN; CUBS BEAT REDS 14TH, 15TH IN ROW

NAME NINE FOR RICH ARLINGTON STAKES TODAY

Pot o' Luck, Busher Top Choices

Handicap Field

NINE horses have been named in the overnight entries for the $50,000 added Arlington Handicap at Washington Park today. The field, listed by post position, follows:

Horse	Wgt.	Jockey	Prob. odds
Sirde	114	No boy	12-1
Busher	113	No boy	9-5
Signals 'Bloke	100	No boy	30-1
Pot o' Luck	118	D. Dodson	7-5
King's Abbey	113	Woodhouse	50-1
*Daily Trouble	120	A. Bodien	6-1
Take Wing	110	No boy	20-1
*Old Kentuck	109	No boy	6-1
Devalue	117	S. Brooks	8-1

*David Straus and Walmac farm entry.

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN

Two 3 year old thorobreds, a colt and a filly, will take the spotlight today as favorites over seven older speedsters in the 16th running of the $55,000 Arlington handicap, a mile and a quarter test which in years past saw such racing greats as Sun Beau, Equipoise, and Discovery streak across the finish line in front of noteworthy fields.

Pot o' Luck

Pot o' Luck, Calumet farm's stretch running son of Chance Play, figures to go postward just a slight choice over Busher, Louis B. Mayer's sensational daughter of War Admiral, the colt at 7 to 5 and the filly at 9 to 5. Over the tough route, these comparative youngsters will carry imposts which, on the weight for age scale, will be the heftiest in the field.

Concede Weight to Older Horses

Pot o' Luck, at 118 pounds and bearing Jockey Doug Dodson, and Busher, at 113 with Willie Bailey the probable rider, are equally weighted considering the filly's sex allowance. And they're both conceding seven pounds to the 7 year old Daily Trouble, top weighted of the older horses at 120 pounds.

Daily Trouble, owned by David Straus, is entered with the Walmac farm's Old Kentuck, both trained by Howard Wells. Then there is Mrs Ada L. Rice's Sirde, Mrs. Emil Denemark's Signals Bloke, Hulsman and Naylor's King's Abbey, Mrs. Clyde Troutt's Take Wing, and the Happy Hour farm's Devalue, surprise conqueror of Mayer's sensational Thumbs Up in the $60,000 Stars and Stripes handicap.

Nothing New for Busher

Running against colts is nothing new for Busher. She beat them in the San Vicente handicap at Santa Anita, and as for competing with older horses, she's done that successfully, too — against fillies and mares in the $50,000 Santa Margarita handicap. In her only previous appearance at Washington Park, Busher won the $25,000 Cleopatra handicap. Her earnings for the 1945 campaign are $104,720 on five firsts and one second in six starts.

Pot o' Luck's record isn't so impressive—two victories and $83,700 in eight races—but one of them was the $50,000 Arlington Classic and one of his two seconds was in the rich Kentucky Derby.

Sirde, which ran third to Devalue and Thumbs Up in the Stars and Stripes, has been improving. Daily Trouble has the second division of the Equipoise Mile and the Great Western handicap to his credit.

$189.20 Daily Double

The Washington Park portion of the 64-day coördinated meeting opened yesterday with a crowd of 15,000 on hand for a card headed by the $3,500 Ajax handicap.

W. W. Naylor's Florizan Beau led all the way in the mile event and scored by a neck over the Happy Hour farm's Happy Pilot in a six horse field. River Divide farm's Five A. M. was third. The winner, ridden by N. L. Pierson, paid $23.40, $11, $5.40 across the board.

M. C. Farnsworth's Omanette, ridden by A. L. Fay, and C. C. Ortlieb's Prince Beiltro, with Joe Marinelli up, accounted for the daily double races, Omanette paying $25.60 in the first, and Prince Beiltro returning $9.40 in the second. The combination was worth $159.20.

The day's mutuel handle was 1,089,135.

The Essence of All Life

It matters not how long the way,
Or fair or foul the weather,
Or if it should be night or day,
So long as we're together.

The essence of all life for me
Is found in loving you;
And obstacles fade instantly
And pathways open thru.

Life's conquest is an easy thing,
The heights are quickly scaled,
And happy are the songs I sing
Whom love has never failed.

BY WILFRID SMITH

John Tavener, veteran Indiana university center and captain of the last two Hoosier football teams, will bid for the starting assignment on the All-Star eleven which plays the Green Bay Packers in Soldiers' field Aug. 30. Tavener won the center position for last year's game with the Chicago Bears.

Tavener's competition from the All-Star list now announced is Gordon Appleby of Ohio State, Caleb [Tex] Warrington of Alabama Poly, and Martin Sillovich of Marquette university. Additions will be made before the college men report at Northwestern university Aug. 12 to prepare for the 12th game in the series sponsored by The Chicago Tribune Charities.

Other newcomers to the All-Star squad today are Paul Bruno, guard from the West Chester, Pa., State Teachers college; Damon Tassos, Texas A. & M. guard, and Bob Kennedy, former Washington State full back.

He's a 60 Minute Man

Tavener played center at Indiana for four years and he was a 60 minute man for the last three seasons. Now 24 and weighing 210 pounds, Tavener is an invaluable addition to the squad which Bernie Bierman, head coach, and his assistants will prepare for their battle with the champions of professional football. Jack is best defensively at backing up the line, but the war time shortage of experienced players last year gave him varied assignments including defensive guard and tackle.

Tavener is fast and a sharp, accurate tackler. On attack he can pull out and lead the interference for off tackle smashes and end runs, an unusual skill. Shortly after the start of the war Tavener was a member of the marine corps reserve but failed to pass the physical examination and later was rejected by the army.

Breaks Kenny Washington's Mark

Kennedy, who was captain of the Washington State football team in 1942, played full back four years for the Cougars. In 1942, incidentally, Kennedy broke Kenny Washington's ground gaining record for Pacific Coast conference competition and this, Bob says, was his greatest thrill in sports. Kennedy also played baseball and basketball.

Bob's home is in Sandpoint, Idaho, where he attended high school. He was graduated with a bachelor of arts degree in economics and has been in military service for two years. He is 24, weighs 195 pounds, and is 5 feet 11 inches tall.

Tassos attended Jefferson High school, San Antonio, Tex., before entering Texas A. & M., where he has played guard for two years. He points to the victory over the University of Texas last year as his greatest thrill in football. Tassos also has received two varsity awards in track. He is 21, weighs 215 pounds, and is 6 feet 1 inch.

Plays Three Years at Guard

Bruno, who has been in military service since Jan. 9, 1943, played three years as a guard for the West Cheser, Pa., Teachers college. His home is in West Chester. Paul is 25, weighs 200 pounds, and is 5 feet 9 inches tall. He was graduated with a bachelor of science degree. His greatest thrill in sports was blocking a kick which resulted in a safety and a 9 to 7 victory for West Chester.

SPEED AND POWER FOR THE COLLEGIANS

Bob Kennedy (left), former Washington State full back, and Jack Tavener (right), Indiana center, were added to the rapidly growing College All-Star football roster yesterday. Tavener was the starting pivot man on last year's eleven and will make a determined bid for the job against the Green Bay Packers in Soldiers' field the night of Aug. 30.

ORDER BOROWY PLACED IN NEW DRAFT BRACKET

Trenton, N. J., Aug. 3 (AP) — The Bloomfield, N. J., draft board of Henry [Hank] Borowy, pitching star traded to the Chicago Cubs by the New York Yankees last week for a reported $100,000 in cash and players, was directed today by state selective service headquarters to reclassify him.

Col. Edgar N. Bloomer, New Jersey selective service director, in making known the directive, said an investigation had disclosed that the 29 year old Borowy was not entitled to the 2-B classification he now holds.

Bloomer, who said it was expected the Bloomfield board would act on Hank's cast next Monday, declined to say what draft group he thought Borowy belonged in.

"Borowy is not entitled to a 2-B classification," he said. "It will be up to the local board to decide whether he should be shifted into 1-A or 2-A."

Borowy is married and has one child.

Borowy was placed in 2-B by his draft board last winter while he was employed at the Eastern Tool and Manufacturing company of Bloomfield. He quit in March to enter spring training with the Yankees in Atlantic City and has been playing ball ever since.

FOOTBALL HEADS CLOSE TWO DAY SESSION TODAY

Football coaches of the Western conference met in the North Shore hotel in Evanston yesterday for the opening sessions of a two day clinic designed to clarify rules interpretations for this fall. More than 60 officials will attend today's session which will be held in Northwestern university's Dyche stadium.

The rules clinic, the first of its kind to be held by the conference, was called by Commissioner K. L. Wilson to provide for more uniformity of officiating in the conference. Fritz Crisler, athletic director and football coach at the University of Michigan, and a member of the national football rules committee outlined the new rule changes to the coaches yesterday.

Members of Northwestern university's football team, now engaged in summer practice will demonstrate different rule situations at today's meeting.

Caldwell Shuts Out Tigers, 5 to 0; Schalk Leads Attack

BY IRVING VAUGHAN

The White Sox, who while touring didn't develop much beyond a willingness to take it on the chin, revealed a one-two punch as well as a few other potent items last night to mark their homecoming with a 5 to 0 thumping of the top place Tigers. The James Dykes' piece de resistance on the mound was the 40 year old youngster named Earl Caldwell, but the latter's steadiness hardly eclipsed the highly productive batting tricks exhibited by Wally Moses and Le Roy Schalk.

So as to get their constituents, numbering 26,919, in a proper mood the Sox went to work early on one Frank Overmier, a lefty who has been known to beat them. They clipped him for a run in the first inning, thanks to the one-two punch. They clipped him for two in the third, with the one-two punch again in operation. After that everything was easy, the Sox continuing to cut dividends for themselves despite a switch from Overmier to one Forrest Orrell and later to Walter Wilson.

Schalk Drives in 5 Runs

Schalk, by driving in two runs during Overmire's three inning workout, and another while Wilson was getting a one inning going over in the eighth, boosted his season's total of runs accounted for to a neat 46, which is high with room to spare among the Dykes batters. And as an indication that the fellow is in the midst of some kind of a streak, his three safe thumps of last evening gave him the pleasin; total of 14 hits in his last 23 times at bat.

Caldwell, now the winner of four decisions, was good enough except in one instance to confine the Tigers' running to first and second base. This occurred in the fifth, which was the only inning the first placers came up with more than a lone hit. With two out, Skeeter Webb fingled and Ed Mayo did the same, Webb taking third, but on the throw-in Mayo fell into a trap between first and second. Webb thought he saw a chance to break for the plate but the Sox shifted their attention to him and nailed him while he was trying to return to third.

Repeat Scoring Act

Moses made his initial contribution of the evening by opening the Sox attack with a single to left, getting a quick boost to second on Farrell's bunt. Schalk chased him to the plate by doubling to left center but Schalk went no further because Johnny Dickshot fanned and Floyd Baker, subbing for the tired Tony Cuccinello, lofted to Hank Greenberg in left.

Moses also did the lead-off job in the third and it was a duplicate of his previous success—a single to left. Farrell sacrificed for the second time. Schalk changed his previous act a bit by singling to right, Moses scoring and Schalk taking second on the throw to the plate. Dickshot atoned for his earlier strikeout by singling to center to score Schalk.

In the fifth Orrell walked Baker with one out and with two out did the same for Cass Michaels. Mike Tresh sent the former home by doubling, making the score 4 to 0. Schalk's eighth inning single drove in the fifth Sox run.

WYSE TAKES 1ST 11 TO 5; BOROWY TRIUMPHS, 9-1

Cavarretta Has Big Night at Bat

BY EDWARD BURNS
(Chicago Tribune Press Service)

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 3—The Cubs, in a ferocious return to their slugging mood, beat the Cincinnati Reds here tonight in a twilight-night double header, 11 to 5 in the twilight and 9 to 1 in the nocturnal encounter. The two games oozed statistics, which you are going to get, right off.

The two victories brought the total for the Cubs over the Reds to 15 out of 15 played this season. The Reds beat the Cubs 13 out of 22 last season.

The Cubs now have won their last 12 games played away from home.

Gain Half Game on Cards

The double triumph enabled the Chicagoans to gain a half game on the second place Cards and a full game on the third place Dodgers. The Cards now are six games behind, the Dodgers seven.

Hank Wyse went all the way in the first game to achieve his 16th victory, his fourth over the Reds. He tied his total for all last season, when he led the club with 16 victories and 15 defeats.

Hank Borowy pitched his second complete game for his second Cub victory. As in his debut last Sunday in Chicago, he was nicked for only one run. He yielded only five hits tonight, all singles. Two came after two were out in the second inning, one led off the fifth inning and the other two were knocked after two were out in the eighth.

Phil Goes to Town

Capt. Phil Cavarretta, sidetracked a bit during the home stand in his quest for the National League batting championship, started a new drive. In the first game he socked his fifth homer and two doubles and also drew a pass. He drove in five runs in this game, and scored two others besides the one he made on his homer. In the second game Phil knocked two more doubles, a single and drew a pass. He drove home three runs and scored two. His total for the evening—at bat, 8; runs, 5; hits, 1 homer, four doubles and a single; runs batted in 8. Batting average .750.

Harry Lowrey knocked three singles in each game. His batting average for the evening was .577.

The Cubs, who made a combined total of 12 hits for 13 bases in their last two home games, made 26 hits in the two games this evening for 37 bases.

Run production in the twilight game started in the second inning. Joe Bowman walked Cavarretta and Pafko but struck out Nicholson. Gillespie then lined a double past first base, scoring Cavarretta and Pafko.

An Error Aids Reds

Al Libke's homer, his third of the season, halved the Cub lead in the Reds' second inning, but the Cubs came back for three runs in the third. Hack opened with a single to left and he and Johnson were safe when Bowman fumbled the latter's sacrifice bunt. Lowrey then beat out a bunt and the bases were loaded. Cavarretta doubled to right field, Hack and Johnson scoring and Lowrey stopping at third. Pafko grounded out to Miller, the runners holding their bases, and Lowrey got home on Nicholson's bouncer to McCormick.

The Cub lead again was shaved to 5 to 4 in the home fourth, the Reds making three runs on a pass to Clay, singles by Sipek and McCormick, an error by Cavarretta, a sacrifice by Miller, and an infield out.

Nicholson opened the sixth with a double to right and scored on Gillespie's second negotiable hit.

The Cub lead again was saved to one run in the home sixth. McCormick pushed off with a single, stopped at third on Libke's double to right, and scored while Merullo was throwing out Miller.

Bowman Leaves in Seventh

A single by Lowrey, a double by Cavarretta, and a single by Pafko produced two runs and brought in Howard Fox as Bowman's replacement in the seventh.

Lowrey opened the ninth with his third single and Cavarretta banged a 380 foot homer into the extreme center field end of the right field bleachers, scoring behind Lowrey. Pafko and Nicholson were retired but Dewey Williams singled to center, took second on a passed ball,

SENATORS WIN 2; CUT TIGER LEAD TO THREE GAMES

Red Sox Victims; Scores 7 to 3 and 3 to 1

Washington, D. C., Aug. 3 (AP)—The second place Washington Senators cut Detroit's lead to three games tonight by winning their third straight double header, beating Boston, 7 to 3, and 3 to 1.

Two of the Senators' veteran hurlers, Alex Carrasquel and Johnny Niggeling, outpitched Emmett O'Neill and Jim Wilson, Boston youngsters.

MANGRUM WINS SERVICES GOLF MEET IN PARIS

PARIS, Aug. 3 (AP)—Corp. Lloyd Mangrum, 31, former Ryder cup player who doctors said six months ago might never play tournament golf again, won the professional championship of the United States forces in the European theater today with a nine under par 291 for the 72 holes.

The amateur title remained undecided after Pvt. Jimmy McHale finished with a one under par 74 to make up a three stroke deficit and tie with Lt. William Campbell of Huntington, W. Va., at 294. They'll play off the deadlock tomorrow.

Badly injured in a jeep crash last December, Mangrum displayed prewar form today in traveling the bomb scarred St. Cloud layout in 75, regulation figures for the severe test.

Five strokes behind Mangrum in the pro division came Lt. Matt Kowal of Philadelphia, Pa., with a final 78 that gave him 294.

Gregg Yields 1 Hit; Dodgers, Braves Split

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 3 (AP)—Brooklyn and Boston divided a double header today, the Dodgers winning the opener, 5 to 1, and the Braves capturing the second game, 5 to 3. Hal Gregg pitched his best game of the year in the first contest, holding the Braves hitless until the eighth inning when Joe Medwick led off with a line single, the only Boston hit of the game. A walk and an error by Ed Stanky gave the Braves their only run.

In the final, Rookie Ed Wright made his first major league pitching start a success as he hurled the Braves to their first victory over the Dodgers in 10 games.

BYRON NELSON SETS PACE IN CANADIAN OPEN

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 3 (AP)—Byron Nelson shot one of his rare over par rounds today, taking a 72 over the difficult Thornhill course, but held the lead in the $10,000 Canadian Open golf tournament as Vic Ghezzi, Deal, N. J., tumbled out of a first place tie with a 77.

The two over par 72, added to his opening 68 round yesterday, gave the Toledo, O., professional a 36 hole total of par 140. Ghezzi fell far down the list at 145.

Willie Goggin, the veteran White Plains, N. Y., player, took over second place in the 72 hole tourney. He, too, posted a two over par for a 142 to stay two strokes behind the pace setting Nelson.

TIPPY LARKIN BEATS JOYCE IN GARDEN BOUT

New York, Aug. 3 (AP)—Tippy Larkin returned to boxing's big time tonight and fought one of the best fights of his career to gain an unanimous 10 round decision over Willie Joyce in Madison Square Garden.

A crowd of 13,415 that paid $60,266 saw the 7 to 5 underdog from Garfield, N. J., hand the Gary, Ind., Negro his first defeat in four bouts.

At the end both judges, Joe Agnello and George Lecron, gave Larkin eight rounds and Joyce two. Referee Ruby Goldstein and the Associated Press each had Larkin on top, 7 to 3.

CLEVELAND PRO FOOTBALL CLUBS SIGN PLAYERS

Cleveland, O., Aug. 3 (AP)—George Cheroke, guard on Lt. Phil Brown's first Ohio State football team in 1941, will play again under Brown's tutelage. The Cleveland Panthers of the All-America conference announced his signing today.

The Cleveland Rams of the National Football league have signed two new center prospects, General Manager Charles (Chile) Walsh reported. They are Chuck Menzemer, former Canisius college star, and Joe Winkler, 1944 Purdue center.

and scored on Merullo's double to left.

Reds Score First This Time

After Borowy had retired the first five batsmen in the second game the Cincies nipped him for a run on a single by Miller, a pass to Mesner and a single by Unser. The Cubs roared back in the third inning for a pair of runs. Borowy led off with a double to right. Hack fouled out but Johnson beat out a single to Miller. Lowrey delivered his second single of the game, scoring Borowy. Cavarretta singled to left, scoring Johnson.

With one out in the fifth, Lowrey came thru with his third straight single of the game, and went to third on Cavarretta's third double of the evening. Paffko singled to right, scoring Lowrey and Cavarretta.

Then That Big Ninth

With Fox pitching in the ninth inning, Merullo was safe on Miller's error and Borowy sacrificed. Hack singled to left, scoring Merullo. Hack taking second on the throw to the plate. Johnson and Lowrey walked, loading the bases. Cavarretta doubled to left center, scoring Hack and Johnson and putting Lowrey on third. Mike Modak replaced Fox and Pafko fanned. Nicholson bounced to McCormick and when Modak fumbled McCormick's toss at first, Lowrey and Cavarretta scored and Nick reached first. Livingston then flied out.

ODELL RILEY KO's BILL PETERSEN IN 4TH ROUND

Odell Riley, Detroit heavyweight boxer, won his fourth Chicago fight in as many starts last night in White City, 63d st. and South Park av., when he knocked out Bill Petersen of Indiana Harbor in the fourth round of a scheduled 10 round bout.

In an exchange of punches in the early minutes of the fourth round, Riley landed a right to the chin of the Indiana heavyweight, sending him thru the ropes and out of the ring.

Other results:

Benny Dreil knocked out Pete Jackson (3).
Joe Atkins stopped Ted Barnadoe (4).
Wray Carter knocked out Bernard Paige (1).
Bill Sullivan beat Cy Hilson (6).
Tommy James knocked out Doug Jordan (2).

CHOOSE CHICAGO BOY TODAY FOR NEW YORK GAME

A player to represent the Chicago area in the annual boys' baseball game in New York late this month will be selected today following the baseball game between the Metropolitan league All-Stars and a team from the Chicago Sports association. The contest, part of an original double header scheduled last week, will be played in Rock-Ola stadium.

In last week's play, halted by rain, the C. Y. O. All-Stars defeated an American Legion team, 1 to 0.

WPB PREDICTS BOOST IN CIVIL STEEL SUPPLY

Industry Advisers Less Optimistic

Washington, D. C., Aug. 3 (AP)—Revising upward previous estimates, the war production board today predicted about 2,100,000 tons of steel will be available for nonpriority civilian orders in the last quarter of the year.

This estimate was based on a predicted increase of 400,000 tons in sheet and strip steel production, making a fourth quarter total of 4 million tons. WPB said the 400,000 ton increase should result from improvement in the man power supply, together with normal fall production gains as the weather cools.

Forecast Difficulty

Members of the iron and steel industry advisory committee, however, were less optimistic of the outlook of steel for civilian production.

They told WPB they were "seriously concerned" by dwindling coal stock piles, and said some steel plants are running with only a few days' supply in reserve.

They also reported "unsettled labor conditions," and said absenteeism might slow down production.

Apprehensive Over Coal

"Some of the steel executives said they felt that unless the present coal shortage is remedied and the current labor uncertainties dispelled, the anticipated increase for the fourth quarter would not materialize," WPB said after the closed meeting with the advisory committee.

WPB had hoped for a 400,000 ton increase to 4 million tons this quarter, but accounts from the meeting said committeemen reported the boost could not be made. They attributed the difficulty partly to "slowdowns" and the man power shortage.

STANDARD (IND.) EXPANDS SCOPE OF ENGINEERING

A new engineering research department and expansion and reorganization of its present engineering activities were announced yesterday by the Standard Oil company [Indiana]. Dr. M. G. Paulus, vice president, said George W. Watts has been named director of engineering of the manufacturing department, with D. A. Monro its chief designing engineer.

Altho Watts will direct all engineering work in the department, he will devote his time principally to the engineering research department. P. L. Krauel has been appointed chief engineer of the engineering division, Whiting refinery, where the company's largest engineering unit is located.

The new engineering program was developed in connection with company plans for post-war expansion and improvement. It is significant because it indicates the company is going into research and development of its own equipment and methods of refining.

OPA HIKES SOFT COAL CEILINGS FOR PRODUCERS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 3 (AP)—The OPA tonight announced an immediate average increase of 3.47 cents a ton in producers' ceiling prices for soft coal mined in 13 districts.

The increases range from 3 to 20 cents a ton and will be passed on to consumers. They were granted to provide each district with the standard earnings margin of 15 cents a ton or the 1942 margin, whichever is larger, OPA said. They are in addition to increases allowed May 1 to compensate producers for higher authorized wages.

The increases in district 10, Illinois, ranged from 1 to 10 cents a ton.

LOCKHEED AIRCRAFT

How much of Lockheed Aircraft corporation's war time profits has been plowed back in the business? I should like information on its post-war production plans.—M. L.

Lockheed's earned surplus at the end of 1944 amounted to $23,974,076, an increase of $20,969,560 since 1939, after paying dividends of $2 a share yearly from 1941 on and $1.50 in 1940. The increase is equal to $19.54 a share on the 1,075,889 shares.

The company had also accumulated a reserve of $15,778,474 for contingencies and post-war adjustments, compared with no reserve of this kind in 1939. This is the amount remaining after deductions for renegotiation refunds applying to 1942 and 1943. The management expects no renegotiation liability for 1944. The reserve is equal to $14.66 a share.

Paid-in and capital surplus has increased $5.59 a share since 1939. Current assets last Dec. 31 totaled $161,969,000 and current liabilities $138,186,000, with no long term debt. The $23,783,000 net working capital compares with $2,888,000 in 1939.

When the military situation permits, Lockheed plans commercial production of its four motored Constellation transport plane and the new Saturn short haul transport. The company is a leader in the jet propulsion plane field.

Altho earnings were $4.20 a share in 1944 and more than $7 both in 1943 and 1942, the maximum annual profit prior to 1939 was 67 cents a share on 660,879 shares in 1938.

Vast Building Industry Job Source for Vet

[This is the 21st article in a series outlining opportunities for returning war veterans.]

BY ANTHONY WIRRY

Limited to war purposes for almost four years, construction of homes, industrial properties, and public roads and buildings is expected to be resumed after the war on a scale surpassing any period in the country's history. Ten million jobs for war veterans and others are forecast.

Industry spokesmen expect home building to double the 1937-'41 average and surpass by 6 or 7 per cent the 1925 peak, when about 937,000 family units were built. Factory expansion was predicted at three times the pre-war average and 35 per cent above the 1920 peak. Highway construction double the 20 year pre-war average and 38 per cent above the record period of 1927-'31 was forecast.

Need Million Homes a Year

The Mortgage Bankers association estimated the country needs 1 million residential units annually for about the first five post-war years. It used authoritative estimates of five companies in the building and building materials field, two private fact finding organizations, four national associations, and four government agencies.

The Twentieth Century Fund, an institute for scientific research in current problems, said the demand for housing probably will exceed 1 million units a year for the first 10 years after the war, and should bring employment and production in home construction and related industries up to levels "in excess of anything accomplished in the past."

The Producers' Council, Inc., national organization of manufacturers of building materials and equipment, said the need will be 10 million new urban homes within six years after the war instead of 10 years as projected by the fund. Estimates of the fund were identical with those of the National Home Builders association.

Chicago Demand Is Big

For Chicago, Joseph E. Merrion, president of the Chicago Metropolitan Home Builders association, predicted residential building at a rate of 50,000 units a year for seven or eight years after victory. This means a quarter of a billion dollar business employing a half million men, directly and indirectly, he said.

"In the boom of the '20s construction exceeded 40,000 units a year for eight years and employed 400,000 men," he said. "Virtually nothing was built from '29 to '39. Since Pearl Harbor there has been nothing but war housing."

Bror Dahlberg, president of Celotex corporation, Chicago, forecast millions of better homes at lower prices thru adoption of assembly line mass production methods. He estimated 20 million homes can be built the first 10 years.

Plan Industrial Expansion

Appraising industry's post-war building needs, Amos E. Taylor, director of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, said a preliminary survey shows manufacturing industries expect to spend "about 1 billion 350 million dollars for plants and a rather large expenditure for alterations during the next 12 months." He explained the plant outlay is "roughly three times the pre-war average and 35 per cent above 1920."

The Structural Clay Products institute predicted an additional 63,000 skilled brickmasons will be needed because relatively few apprentices entered the building trades in the years prior to the war.

In the field of public works Claude C. Blair, president of the Paving Brick institute, forecast an outlay of between 8 and 9 billion dollars for highway construction within five years after the war.

EXTEND U. S. AIR INSURANCE RATE THRUOUT WORLD

The premium rate of $1.40 per $1,000 of domestic air line passenger insurance has been extended to apply to insurance up to $100,000 on American air liners in any part of the world, the United States Aviation Underwriters, Inc., representing many casualty insurance companies, announced yesterday. The same rate will be made on group policies on foreign air lines in the western hemisphere.

Previously a limit of $25,000 had been set on individual policies and the coverage had extended only to air travel in the western hemisphere. Another new provision is a premium of $3.40 per $1,000 a year for war risk travel of noncombatants on certain military transport planes.

Domestic Whisky Stock Below Year Ago Total

Washington, D. C., Aug. 3 (AP)—Stocks of domestic whisky on June 30 were 307,600,000 gallons compared with 348,600,000 a year earlier, the treasury department's alcohol tax unit said today. Stocks of rum, gin, and brandy increased in the fiscal year.

Big Decrease Scheduled in State, City Bond Sales

New York, Aug. 3 (AP)—State and municipal bonds and notes scheduled for sale next week total $8,047,500, the Daily Bond Buyer said today. This compared with $32,058,000 in the current week and a weekly average this year of $24,826,000.

NEW DISPUTES BOOST STRIKE IDLE TO 60,000

Detroit Carpenters, Auto Workers Out

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Seven new labor disputes involving more than 10,000 workers broke out yesterday and raised to nearly 60,000 the nation's total strike idle.

Five of the new strikes were in labor troubled Detroit, where a lumber yards dispute over a closed shop and wage increases made idle at least 700 members of the AFL Carpenters' District council and four other walkouts involved 6,200 members of the CIO auto workers.

Argue Grievance Process

The four were at the Federal Mogul corporation, 2,000 idle over grievance negotiations; Bower Roller Bearing corporation, 1,500 over a worker's suspension; Fruehauf Trailer company, 1,200 over job classifications, and at the Marysville plant of the Chrysler corporation, 1,500 over a job assignment for a worker.

Other new disputes put 3,500 workers out at two plants of the Electric Storage Battery company, Philadelphia, Pa., and 400 United Mine workers at the American Smelting and Refining company, Alton, Ill. Grievance of the battery workers, members of the United Electrical, Radio, and Machine workers [CIO] was not announced. Principal issues at the Alton plant were a 10 cent an hour wage increase and a closed shop.

Metal Workers Out

Nearly half the total idle were in strategic metal working industries which included 6,500 Reynolds Metals company employes in 16 plants at Louisville, Ky.; Richmond, Va.; New York City, and Glendale, N. Y., who left their jobs Tuesday during contract bargaining.

Both the war labor board and Eddie R. Stahl, Pittsburgh, president of the International Council of Aluminum Workers [AFL], ordered the Reynolds workers to return.

Some 40 other walkouts continued thruout the country.

GRAINS HIGHER, AIDED BY CCC's WHEAT BUYING

Grain futures prices turned higher yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade, led by wheat. Heavy buying of wheat futures by cash interests followed announcement that the Commodity Credit corporation would purchase No. 1 and No. 2 hard winter wheat at western and southwestern terminal and subterminal markets at a flat price, accepting the best offers daily until further notice.

The close was near the top with wheat up 1¼ to 1⅝ cents a bushel. Rye gained 1⅝ to 2¼, corn finished unchanged to ¼ higher and oats ½ to ¾. Trading in barley was limited and the close unchanged to ¼ lower.

Cook Leaves SEC to Take Justice Department Post

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 3 (AP)—The securities and exchange commission today announced the resignation of Donald C. Cook, Escanaba, Mich., and Ralph T. McElvenny, Tacoma, Wash., as assistant directors of the public utilities division and the appointment of David K. Kadane, New York, and Robert F. Krause, Rocky River, O., SEC attorneys, as their successors. Cook will become special assistant to Atty. Gen. Tom Clark. McElvenny will enter private employment.

People and Events

William E. Snodgrass has become associated with Western Electric company as general manager of its hearing aid division, F. R. Lack, vice president, said yesterday. Snodgrass formerly was executive vice president of Dictograph Products company and more recently was sales consultant for American Telephone and Telegraph company.

Frank E. Kassner, at one time controler and associate director of Michael Reese hospital, has become associated with Maxwell Abbell & Co., accountancy firm. Until recently he was executive director of City hospital in Springfield, O.

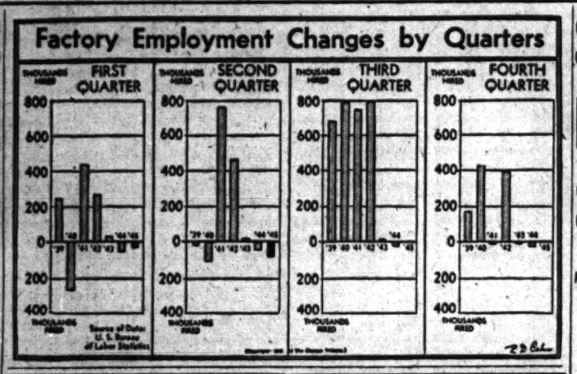
Paul W. and P. Hayward Tatge said Gerhardt S. Jersild has become associated with their law firm, the name of which has been changed to Tatge & Jersild. He formerly was with Sidley, Austin, Burgess & Harper.

The Armour Research Foundation of the Illinois Institute of Technology has scheduled a Mexican-American conference on industrial research from Oct. 1 to 6, Dr. Jesse E. Hobson, director, said.

Hans A. Franke has been appointed general agent of Ohio State Life Insurance company with offices at 208 S. La Salle st. He recently resigned after 11 years with National Life and Accident Insurance company.

The New York Central railroad announced the retirement of George H. Harris, assistant to the vice president in Chicago, and the appointment of Neil D. Hyde, previously assistant to the chief engineer, as Harris' successor. Harris, 67, had been with the New York Central for more than 42 years.

Lt. Col. Percy W. Graham of the army air forces has been placed on inactive duty and will return to Ruthrauff & Ryan, advertising agency, as account executive.



Dairy Industry Denies Butter Spoilage Is Big

Any current spoilage of butter in Chicago was attributed by industry sources yesterday to a practice of grocers, conditioned by the long shortage, of stocking up beyond their requirements because butter is more easily available. Under such circumstances butter does not keep long. Grocery refrigerators are kept at about 40 degrees, and the constant opening and closing sends the temperature up.

Dr. H. A. Ruehe

The butter supply continues so limited that no widespread spoilage as has been reported in the east could occur, it was said. Dr. H. A. Ruehe, executive secretary of the American Butter institute, said civilians are expected to have 110 million pounds during August, the most in some time but far below pre-war consumption.

Point Cut Is Help

The recent point reduction for butter from 24 to 16 points a pound also should wipe out any excess stocks, it was said.

The position of the army in the market poses the biggest problem. Altho quartermaster corps purchases and storage figures are secret, it is known that original plans were to buy 301 million pounds for 1945. With the end of the German war the need diminished and contracts for government purchase with the Dairy Products Marketing association will expire the end of August. The original set-aside of 30 per cent of August production was reduced to 20 per cent.

Army storage supplies consist of two types, bulk butter in 60 pound cubes, which is mixed with cheese curd and tinned as an "army spread" for tropical consumption, and print butter in one pound prints, used mostly in camps in the United States.

Print Type Spoils Easily

The print butter is more likely to spoil if kept in storage more than two months. If the army finds it has too much, "it might very well have a spoilage problem on its hands," a trade authority said.

Total butter in cold storage July 1 was 131,013,000 pounds, of which 72,305,000 was government stocks, including butter for lend-lease, territorial possessions, various government procurement agencies, and the army. A month earlier the total was 70,375,000 pounds and a year earlier 103,164,000.

Trade sources predicted that the office of price administration will not lower the ration value below 16 points even with the more plentiful supply. The seasonal low point in production will be reached in October and November.

1945 LAMB CROP OF 28¼ MILLION AT 10 YEAR LOW

The 1945 lamb crop of 28,250,000 head was the smallest since 1935, the department of agriculture reported yesterday. Even larger decreases from recent years would have resulted except for the excellent early spring weather which enabled farmers to save a larger than usual total of the new lambs.

The crop was 1 million head, or 3.5 per cent, below the 1944 total and was 2¼ million head, or 8 per cent, below the 10 year average [1934-'43].

Farmers and ranchers kept 6 per cent fewer ewes for lamb raising this year, but saved 86.7 lambs per every 100 ewes, which helped to offset the smaller ewe flocks. The percentage last year was 84.3, and the 10 year average was 84.8.

Chicago Companies Get 3 Millions in War Orders

Seventy-one prime war contracts totaling $3,042,000 were awarded to 53 Chicago area companies in the last week, the Chicago Association of Commerce reported yesterday. Included was a $2,015,100 army contract with International Harvester company for tractors.

15,000 U. S. TRACTORS WILL BE SENT EUROPE, WITH 8,812 AS GIFTS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 3 (AP) — About 15,000 American tractors and many other farm implements are expected to be shipped to Europe in time for fall planting, the united nations relief and rehabilitation administration said today.

The tractor shipments, part of which are outright UNRRA relief and part paid for by the receivers, are well under way, more than 8,000 having been scheduled to reach their destination by mid-July, UNRRA said.

The largest single shipment of 3,798 is destined for France and will be paid for by the French government. The next largest shipment, of 3,526, for Poland, is a relief project for which no payment will be received. Others receiving tractor relief are Yugoslavia, 2,500; Czechoslovakia, 1,500; Greece, 1,261, and Albania, 25.

Other nations receiving tractors for which they will pay are: Italy, 810; Netherlands, 530; Norway, 330; Belgium, 150, and Denmark, 70, said UNRRA.

ONTARIO PAPER SELLS SURPLUS PULP TO OTHERS

Departing from its traditional policy of supplying paper only to its publisher owners, the Ontario Paper Company, Ltd., Thorold, Ont., is supplying limited amounts of newsprint and pulp to outside purchasers, Arthur Schmon, president, said yesterday. The company is a Canadian subsidiary of the Tribune company and supplies paper to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and the New York News.

The paper company's total production is higher than the quota allowed to be consumed and shipped to the Tribune and the News. Therefore the administrator of newsprint for Canada has required the company to manufacture on its newsprint machines 1,000 tons of pulp for the Australia supply mission and 1,200 tons of newsprint for the French supply council. The paper is to be shipped to North Africa. Both plup and newsprint are produced on the same machine.

The company said its traditional policy has been never to produce on its newsprint machines any tonnage except that required by the publisher-owners. The newspaper administrator was told that the company agreed to manufacture the tonnage only to help the general supply situation and then only upon the administrator's instructions as authorized under the law.

HOG OFFERINGS FALL TO 7,500; PRICES STEADY

Hog receipts dropped to 7,500 head, including direct shipments to packers, yesterday at the Chicago stock yards, 18 per cent under a week earlier, and 38 per cent less than a year ago. Observers estimated pork and lard production this week would be the lowest in eight years. Buyers gave ceiling prices for all they could buy, disregarding quality and weights. No price changes occurred in cattle and sheep trading.

The office of price administration increased to 100 per cent of their base quota the amount of cattle that may be slaughtered by class 2 [nonfederally inspected] slaughterers during accounting periods beginning on or after Aug. 1. This is an increase of 15 per cent over the July slaughter percentage.

Celanese Founds Firm to Make Rayons in Mexico

New York, Aug. 3 (AP)—Celanese Corporation of America today announced formation of a new firm, Viscosa Mexicana, S. A., in Mexico City, financed by Celanese and Mexican interests. It will produce and sell viscose rayons in that country.

STOCK MARKET PRICES RISE IN SLOW TRADING

Turnover Smallest for 11 Months

New York, Aug. 3 (AP)—Stock market prices generally were higher today with rails in the lead. Trading was the slowest in about 11 months.

Altho the Potsdam conference report provided little inspiration, buyers appeared more confident on the basis of earnings, dividends, refundings, and lessening of reconversion apprehension. The dearth of demand was attributed to the approach of another lengthy week-end during which it was realized anything could happen in war developments.

Carriers Gain After Slow Start

Carriers improved after a hesitant opening. Many pivotals were neglected, but gains of fractions to 2 points predominated at the close.

Stock exchanges will be closed today and every Saturday thru Sept. 1.

Transfers of 510,000 shares compared with 600,000 Thursday and were the smallest for a full session since Sept. 18, 1944.

The Associated Press 60 stock average was up 0.3 point at 64.7. Only 751 issues were traded. Of these 491 advanced, 180 declined, and 170 were unchanged.

Rails were aided by further debt reduction plans announced by Southern Pacific. This road's common held a rise of ⅞ at 49⅛.

BOND TRADING QUIET

New York, Aug. 3 (AP)—Small advances in a sizable list of rails and industrial specialties stood out in an otherwise quiet bond market today. Activity again was about the lowest of the year with sales at $3,660,000, against $3,310,000 Thursday.

CHICAGO LIST RISES

Prices closed higher and turnover decreased to 22,000 shares yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. The exchange announced sale of a membership at $6,500, up $250 from the last sale and a new high price since March, 1936.

NEWS DELIVERY MEN SHORTAGE HELD UNIVERSAL

New York newspaper publishers and their delivery union are victims of war time regulations and shortages and the union should not be blamed for a nation-wide condition, a union attorney said yesterday in rebuttal to publishers' arguments before the war labor board's daily newspaper commission. The commission hearing in Chicago stemmed from the 17 day strike which paralyzed newspaper circulation in the New York area last month.

Louis Waldman, attorney for the unaffiliated Newspaper and Mail Deliverers' union, said any present shortage of available deliverers was meaningless in the long run because it was caused by shortages which have been nation-wide during the war.

William L. Mapel, vice chairman of the Publishers' association, earlier contended union rules restricted the number of delivery men available for work and consequently forced the publishers to pay "penalty" overtime.

AIRLINE SEEKS NEW PLANES FOR SHORT ROUTES

American Airlines plans to buy 25 to 100 of a new type plane at a cost of 5 to 20 million dollars for relatively short distance routes and light traffic territories, William Littlewood, vice president in charge of engineering, said yesterday. Specifications were submitted to several aircraft manufacturers, who were asked to make bids by Aug. 15.

The plane will be flexible enough to permit loading 30 passengers and their baggage, plus a cargo load of 500 pounds, or 20 passengers and their baggage, plus 2,500 pounds.

Ward Refuses Again to Obey WLB Orders

BY ROBERT YOUNG

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 3—Montgomery Ward & Co. today refused to comply with national war labor board orders involving 1,800 employes in seven cities.

The WLB then voted unanimously to refer the cases to the office of economic stabilization for further action. These were the identical steps that preceded the army's seizure of Ward properties in Chicago and six other cities last year in a move to force acceptance of WLB directives.

The labor board sent the cases to the OES after a stormy hearing in which John A. Barr, labor relations manager for the big Chicago mail order house, denounced the WLB orders as "unfair, uneconomic, and illegal."

Bridges Asks Seizure

Representatives of CIO and AFL unions, including Harry Bridges, president of the CIO International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's union, appealed to the board to enforce its directives with government seizure.

The company was called to the hearing to show cause why it has not complied with WLB orders, some issued more than a year ago. They involve wage increases, maintenance of union membership, dues checkoff, seniority, and arbitration. The seven cities affected are Baltimore, Md.; Kansas City, Kas.; Kansas City, Mo.; Trenton, N. J.; Washington, Pa.; Pueblo, Colo., and Barre, Vt.

Barr told the WLB his company has rejected the orders because they not only violate "fundamental principles of liberty," but also the standards laid down by congress in the war labor disputes act and the constitutional guarantee of due process of law. He accused the WLB of bias and prejudice and declared the board's "disrespect for principles of fairness and of law" has been demonstrated in the past.

"Misrepresented Refusal"

"The board has consistently misrepresented to the public that the refusal of Ward's to accept its orders, all of which impose compulsory union membership, has been in violation of an agreement between industry and labor," Barr said. "The fact is that the board's propaganda about this fictitious 'no strike, no lockout' agreement has been deceitful from its inception. Industry and organized labor have never agreed to submit their difficulties to the board's decision."

Bridges, appearing as spokesman for the Longshoremen's union, which represents 1,200 employes in Baltimore, argued that "Ward's position is concealed by technicalities." He said his union will not strike, but intends to settle the present dispute by the war time machinery set up by the government.

TRANSIT RULING TAKEN TO STATE SUPREME COURT

State's Atty. Tuohy's office yesterday filed with the Illinois Supreme court notice of an appeal from a decision of Judge Miner in Circuit court upholding the constitutionality of the legislation creating the Metropolitan Transit authority and granting it powers to operate a consolidated traction system in Chicago.

If the Supreme court approves the findings of Judge Miner, the governing board of the authority may proceed with arrangements to borrow 87 million dollars with which to purchase the elevated and surface lines and an additional 3 millions for working capital. The merged company would be publicly owned and free of taxation.

The court is expected to be guided in its determination whether the price is fair by a report which is being prepared by the securities and exchange commission and which is due Aug. 13. The SEC report and related questions are set for argument on Aug. 15.

BORG-WARNER INCOME DROPS IN SIX MONTHS

Certain-teed Profit Rises in Period

Two of three Chicago companies yesterday reported substantially reduced net earnings in the first half of 1945 compared with year ago levels. Profits of the third were higher.

Charles S. Davis

C. S. Davis, president of Borg-Warner corporation, reported six months' profits were $3,528,469, or $1.51 a share, compared with $4,091,617, or $1.75 a share, a year earlier. Profits were computed after setting aside $23,046,528 and $30,920,724 for federal and Canadian taxes and renegotiation in the respective 1945 and 1944 periods.

Certain-teed Earns More

Certain-teed Products corporation, building materials manufacturer, had net earnings of $421,634, computed after appropriating $40,000 to reserve for contingencies, against $290,076 a year ago when no contingency provision was made, Rawson G. Lizars, chairman, reported. Sales amounted to $11,743,001, a 15.6 per cent increase and the highest for any similar period in more than 15 years, he said.

"Currently, our sales continue on a level comparable with the first six months of 1945," Lizars said. "The maintenance of this level during the balance of 1945 will depend upon our ability to manufacture our products in sufficient quantity to meet the demand, despite restr
